LOESCH WARNS SENATE OF PLOT ON WILKERSON

Backs Gang Charges in Wire to Borah.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Immediately after receiving a 2,000 word telegram from Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] ordered a special meeting of senate judiciary subcommittee, of which he is chairman, for tomorrow morning. This committee, which has before it the appointment of Judge James H. Wilkerson to the Circuit court, will determine whether to summon Mr. Loesch and the witnesses he offers to send in support of his theory that gangland is influencing labor to oppose the confirmation of the judge who sentenced Al Capone for income tax evasion.

FRANK J. LOESCH.

If the senate, for a reason far removed from Capone, fails to confirm the appointment of Judge Wilkerson as judge of the Circuit court, every Chicago criminal will herald it as a triumph for Capone, Mr. Loesch argues in the telegram.

Data Requested by Borah.

The telegram, with its frank words about the crime situation in Chicago, is a reply to Senator Borah's request that Mr. Loesch furnish further evidence of his charge that gangland was influencing labor to protest the confirmation of the judge who had sentenced crime's king, Capone.

Mr. Loesch's statement was considered a refutation of the bitter attack launched on THE TRIBUNE a week ago by Donald R. Richberg, Chicago attorney. Richberg attacked the charges made in the editorial columns of THE TRIBUNE that Capone was the real force behind the objections to Judge Wilkerson's confirmation.

Documentary evidence is difficult in a case of this kind, Mr. Loesch reminds Senator Borah, since the criminal-political hookup in Cook county is "subtle."

Says Influence Is "Subtle."

"It is not possible," he wires, "to put upon paper an explanation of the subtle, violent, or corrupt influence exerted upon officials or candidates for election. It is not possible to present an obvious example of the relationship, nor show by documentary evidence or photographic film the operations of the organized criminals at the present dominating certain labor unions.

"It is the hand of Esau but the voice of Jacob."

Nevertheless Mr. Loesch cites numerous instances of gangster controls of labor unions and offers the names of Assistant State's Attorneys Charles E. Lounsbury and Charles J. Mueller, together with four or five other unnamed witnesses who are willing to testify at a "secret" hearing of the committee.

The Loesch report, Senator Borah explained, is the document for which the committee has been waiting before compiling its extensive testimony into a report. Now that the report has arrived Senator Borah intends to prepare such a comprehensive report immediately.

Congressmen Discuss It.

As soon as the contents of the Loesch document became public on Capitol hill this afternoon congressmen were busy discussing "Chicago crime" about the corridors.

Mr. Loesch's declaration that Representative Peter C. Granata [Rep., Ill.] was a Capone henchman attracted a lot of private congressional attention. There was no comment forthcoming from Granata, who, it was recalled, was one of the White House guests invited to the state dinner given for Sig. Grandi on his recent visit to Washington.

Another statement which particularly arrested the attention of national politicians is the following charge about some Illinois politicians:

"Alderman Oscar Nelson," reads the Loesch document, "is the head of the flat janitors' union. All the political patronage which Gov. Emmerson controls in the north side wards has been turned over to Nelson."

Sees Plot to Free Capone.

Considerable comment, too, was occasioned by this declaration of Mr. Loesch:

"It is my opinion, based upon these facts and other indications, that the

GANG ON YACHT ASKS PASTOR TO ARRANGE TERMS

Immediate Return of Child Offered.

Police guard Paulina Longworth after her mother receives kidnaping threat and demand for money; other similar threats made to Washington families.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Three men of integrity—two of them long standing friends of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh—are now in negotiation with persons who, they believe, are holding the Lindbergh child somewhere in the vicinity of Norfolk, Va., it was established tonight.

These negotiators consulted with Col. Lindbergh at his home near Hopewell, N. J., last Wednesday night and have hopes of getting custody of the child for delivery to his parents within two or three days, perhaps even within a few hours.

The child is believed—according to dispatches from Norfolk—to be on a yacht in Chesapeake bay or one of its tributaries.

Friends of Lindbergh.

The negotiators are the Rev. Harold Dodson Peacock, dean of Christ Episcopal church, Norfolk; Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, U. S. N., retired, former commandant of the Fifth naval district at Norfolk, and John Hugh Curtis, a Norfolk shipbuilder.

It is into Dr. Peacock's hands that the child will be placed for return to its parents, if the plans on which the negotiators are working bear fruit. He is a friend of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh by reason of the fact that he was dean of the Episcopal cathedral in Mexico City when the colonel's father-in-law, the late Dwight W. Morrow, was ambassador to Mexico. Admiral Burrage became a friend of Col. Lindbergh when the aviator was returning in triumph from his flight to Paris in 1927. Admiral Burrage was then commander of the American naval forces in European waters, and the cruiser Memphis, on which Col. Lindbergh came home, was his flagship.

Contacts Kidnapers.

Dr. Peacock confirmed by long distance telephone tonight the report that he had been in contact with the kidnapers and said that the child "probably would be returned shortly."

"We have been in contact with these people and we believe they are acting in good faith," said the minister. "They want to deliver the baby and are willing to wait until after it has been delivered for their compensation.

"They want the colonel to be perfectly satisfied as to the identification. The reports that they have asked $50,000 is false. They expect some compensation, but no price has been fixed as yet.

Admiral Also Is Go-Between.

"As for reports that the child is on a boat in Chesapeake bay, all I can say at this time is that we do not know that to be true. We have a good idea of where the child is. To say any more at this time would prejudice the case."

Dr. Peacock said the men acting with him as intermediaries between the kidnapers and Col. Lindbergh are Rear Admiral Burrage and Mr. Curtis.

"I'm sorry I can't talk about this," Admiral Burrage told THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Press Service tonight. "But I'm sure you understand my position. However, you can say this for me: I'll go to the end of the earth, if necessary, to help Col. Lindbergh get his baby back."

"According to our information," said Dr. Peacock, "the baby will be returned shortly. We have been in contact with these people [the kidnapers] the last few days."

Dr. Peacock expressed regret that news of the negotiations had come out.

"I am sorry about that," he said, "but there was nothing we could do about it here. It must have leaked in Hopewell."

Believes It's Lindy's Baby.

"I visited Col. Lindbergh and I made no bones about it," Dean Peacock said. "The reporters saw me come and they saw me go. But I have no statement to make. Any statement of any kind will have to come from the colonel."

"Have any of the intermediaries seen the baby?" Dr. Peacock was asked.

"The man who approached us has the child," was his answer.

"Are you sure it is the Lindbergh baby?"

"We are sure it is. The arrange-

Stop Paying Interest, Says Mayor to City

[Copyright: 1932: By the Detroit Mirror.]

Detroit, Mich., March 24.—[Special.]—In a startling statement that will go down in history as the most daring step ever taken in big city financing Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit tonight announced that he plans to refuse to pay one single cent in interest on the city's $400,000,000 debts until better times return.

The mayor said he is taking the step so he can cut city taxes in half and "save the small home owners." There is no reason why good citizens should lose their homes just to placate a group of bankers," said Mayor Murphy in announcing his plan for the municipal debt holiday.

"There may be legal entanglements that would prevent a debt holiday," said Murphy. "If so we might push them aside and declare a moratorium anyway. There is no sane reason and I believe the future will bear me out, that the small home owner should be kept in a state of utter wretchedness just to placate a group of bankers."

Confers with Couzens.

Mayor Murphy's announcement followed a one-half hour long distance telephone conversation with United States Senator James Couzens in Washington, who had suggested that the city declare a debt holiday. The multimillionaire senator, largest individual holder of Detroit's bonds, stands to suffer the largest personal loss in case of temporary default by the city.

"Senator Couzens' attitude," said the mayor, "was characteristically unselfish and humane. He favored any program to avert financial chaos for the city no matter what the cost to him."

Mayor Murphy admitted the temporary default would give the city's borrowing power a setback, "but Detroit, strangling to death in debt's grip, can quit borrowing," he said. "With the moratorium in force the city will not need the banker promised loan of $1,900,000 for its March 29 pay roll."

$1,700,000 Loan to Pay Teachers.

Asked about the $1,700,000 loan obtained today to pay the city's 9,000 school teachers, Mayor Murphy remarked laconically:

"Well, we have that now, haven't we?"

Mayor Murphy borrowed $20,000,000 from New York bankers, of which $18,100,000 has been delivered. The last sum obtained was $1,700,000 today.

Mayor Murphy let it be known that legal barriers to the debt holiday would be discounted in view of the almost certain ruin of thousands of small home owners. He added:

"To save the city's credit we have forced the average owner of property into wretchedness. That is wrong. Now we will give him relief in time; I hope to avert his financial ruin. And we can do this without sacrificing Detroit's credit."

Calls Conference Today.

The mayor has invited Ralph Stone, chairman of the citizens' finance committee, through which all municipal loans for two years have been arranged, to a conference tomorrow morning at 9:30, at which also will be present City Controller G. Hall Roosevelt and Corporation Counsel Clarence E. Wilcox.

Announcement of the municipal debt holiday is expected to follow immediately upon adjournment of this conference.

"I look calmly," said Mayor Murphy, "upon the probable effect of the moratorium upon the city's finances. It will benefit the city greatly to be

HOUSE DEFEATS SALES TAX IN STORMY SESSION

Rejects Measure by Vote of 223-153.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—The 600 million dollar sales tax provision of the billion dollar tax increase bill went down to defeat in the house today, buried beneath an avalanche of negative votes. It was stricken from the bill on a division which revealed 153 members for the sales tax and 223 against it. There were 57 members absent.

CHARLES R. CRISP. [Acme Photo.]

The bipartisan insurrection against the sales tax during the last week, in which both the Democratic and Republican leadership were repudiated, reached its climax in a stormy session of the house ending in a dramatic and unprecedented episode. Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.], acting chairman of the ways and means committee, which framed the rejected sales tax, confessed the repudiation of the Democratic leadership and offered to surrender the further management of the bill to the leaders of the victorious insurgents.

Cheer Vanquished Leader.

As soon as the tumultuous exultation of the rebel majority that greeted the announcement of the vote was stilled, Mr. Crisp, looking very grim, made his way to the well of the house asking permission to make a statement. Instantly friends and foes alike arose and stood applauding and cheering the vanquished leader.

"What I am about to say is not said in any spirit of pique, or discontent, and with no criticism of any member of this house who voted differently from me on the vote just had," said Mr. Crisp. "That vote is conclusive.

"I rise to say this, and I say it impelled by a spirit of manliness and of fairness, that I have been turned down three or four times on the heart of this bill—the income tax, the normal and the surtax, the estate tax, and now the manufacturers' tax. Under the parliamentary law and rules of this house I have lost the right to further manage the bill. If any member of the opposition desires to take charge I will be only too willing for him to have the right."

Refuse to Let Him Quit.

"No, no," the insurgents chorused no less generally than the regulars. Mr. Crisp hesitated a moment and then said:

"If the house desires to do so, I am quite content to continue as I have done in the past, to pilot this bill through the house as best I can, and I know that no member of this body can truthfully say I have been discourteous to or critical of any member of this house."

Mr. Crisp then announced that the ways and means committee would meet tomorrow morning, to frame a substitute for the sales tax provision, and upon his motion the house adjourned.

With the sales tax beaten, the committee intends to turn for alternative taxes to the original treasury proposals which were rejected by the Democratic leaders following widespread objection thereto. These proposals include excise taxes on automobiles and accessories, amusement admissions, radio, and phonograph equipment, telephone and telegraph messages, checks and drafts, gasoline, domestic consumption of electricity and gas, and also increased tobacco taxes and increased postage rates.

Few Democrats for Sales Tax.

The votes in favor of the sales tax were cast largely by Republicans. Of the 220 Democrats, not more than 30 to 40, it is estimated, supported the ways and means committee, the Tammany members being conspicuous in the group.

Adverting to the scuttling of the Democratic program by the Democrats themselves, Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] said after adjournment:

"The house has rejected the Democratic bill and now is compelled to turn to the Republican bill proposed by the treasury in order to balance

FOIL "CABLE" SWINDLE AIMED AT 2 MERCHANTS

A "cablegram" swindler tried to dupe the secretaries of two wealthy Chicagoans out of $6,030 yesterday, but was foiled in both attempts. However, he stayed out of a police trap.

The Chicagoans marked as victims through their secretaries are Edward A. Cudahy, the packer, and Walter R. Kirk, president of the Dickinson corporation. Last month another Chicagoan, Chauncey McCormick, was swindled out of $5,925 in a ruse similar to the ones tried yesterday.

On opening her office yesterday Miss Kiefer, secretary for Mr. Cudahy, found a purported cablegram from her employer, who is now on the Atlantic bound for Europe. It instructed her that a Mr. Sand would deliver seven stones, for which she should pay $540 each without asking questions. Miss Kiefer notified Lieut. John McGinnis and he set a trap. Half an hour later "Mr. Sand" called by telephone. Although invited to deliver the stones he failed to appear.

Shortly after this incident Lieut. McGinnis was summoned by Al Kemp, secretary to Mr. Kirk. He showed a purported cablegram, dated from Rome and signed by "Mr. Kirk." Its phraseology was identical with that received by Miss Kiefer, except that Secretary Kemp was instructed to accept five stones and pay $450 each.

Church Splits on Athletics; Youth vs. Age

A division of opinion over recreational policies has developed in the membership of the Rogers Park Congregational church, Morse and Ashland avenues, it was learned last night. On one side are 300 boy and girl members of the church and on the other a group of older members.

The older members, it was said, have frowned upon the athletic and other recreational activities of the younger as being too extensive. On Tuesday night the adult group, through its religious education committee headed by Dr. Frank L. Knapp, asked the secret resignation of Dr. Howard Dabbs, a physician of 1607 Howard street, who teaches the 300 young members in a Sunday class and has been their recreational director for five years. It was requested that his resignation be effective on Easter Sunday.

Talks of New Church.

Dr. Dabbs refused to resign secretly or in any other way. He said last night, however, that he would not attend the class any longer after Sunday. It was possible, he said, that the class members might form a new church.

"If the young people don't care to stay longer with the church after Sunday, it's up to them," he said. "I won't interfere."

Dr. Dabbs asserted that many of the older group were "old fashioned." They objected to dances, to plays, to the athletic program, although those activities had earned funds for the church, he said.

Puzzled by Criticism.

"Once the religious education committee looked over the class paper," Dr. Dabbs went on. "They discovered the word 'fellow.' They circled this word in red and branded its use as disgraceful. I don't know why even now. These old fashioned men apparently preferred that the boys and girls in the class should not dance, give plays, or play basketball. They wanted them to play parlor games, like drop the handkerchief.

"I'll tell some of these things to the class Sunday. In class I'll tell them I have been asked to resign secretly. After class I'll explain why."

FLYER CRACKS UP ON PURPOSE AND SHOUTS 'SUCCESS!'

GRASSE, France, March 24.—(AP)—Albert Sauvant, 28, a French aviator, tried out a "crashproof" airplane of his invention near here today and after picking himself out of the wreckage said the test was a complete success.

He took the plane, without wings and landing gear, which the police had removed, to Escragnolles, 18 miles from here, and had himself pushed off a cliff. He fell 150 feet. The machine was demolished, but Sauvant emerged safe, sound and smiling.

Sauvant's invention is carefully guarded, but it is understood the plane works on the basis of shock absorbers operating in oil. He got his idea from a physics experiment, he said. If a hen's egg is placed inside an ostrich egg and dropped, he explained, the ostrich egg will smash, but not the hen's egg inside. He made a miniature plane embodying the principle outlined and placed a lamb in it. He dropped the plane 500 feet and said the lamb was unhurt. Then he made a full size machine, but until today's experiment the police prevented him from playing the rôle of the hen's egg.

BOYS (AND COP) MAY KEEP OFF ICE AFTER THIS

Four Evanston youths who sought excitement by running on cakes of ice in Lake Michigan yesterday saw the danger of their pastime demonstrated by a policeman who had been sent to warn them.

William Rees, 2757 Garrison street; John Elsom, 815 Clinton place; William Bushnell, 2744 Ridge avenue, and Harrison Southworth, 814 Clinton place, were skipping from block to block about 50 yards off shore at the northern end of the Northwestern campus when the report reached the police station.

Patrolmen Howard Borgeson and George Gunnerson hastened to the scene. The boys did not hear the shouts of the policemen, so Borgeson decided to go after them. But the floating ice wouldn't support his 230 pounds and he was plunged into the cold water to his waist. When the boys came ashore to help they were hustled to the police station for a lecture by the juvenile officer on the dangers of attempting to walk on ice.

the budget. It will be necessary to provide for more than 500 millions of revenue to take the place of the sales tax."

The only portion of the sales tax section of the bill that was saved from the wreck was that imposing special taxes on imported oil, brewers' wort from which beer is made, and grape concentrate for wine manufacture. The prevalent impression is that the oil import tax of 1 cent a gallon will be stricken out when the house resumes consideration of the bill tomorrow.

It was after three hours of stormy debate on a multitude of exemptions to the sales tax that the vote was taken. It was not a roll call, as the house was operating in committee of the whole, and the vote of each member, therefore, was not recorded. The vote was taken by tellers, first the members for the affirmative of the motion to strike out the sales tax and then the members for the negative filed up the center aisle. The mob of affirmative voters that flocked into the well as the tellers took their stand showed at a glance that the sales tax was decisively beaten.

The session began with Mr. Crisp offering the committee amendment exempting from the sales tax all foodstuffs, all wearing apparel, farm machinery and medicines, in an effort to appease the insurgents, or a sufficient number to muster a majority for the modified provision. Thereupon the insurgents began proposing additional exemptions. The amendments for such purpose fairly rained upon the reading clerk. Some were voted up, some were voted down. Among those adopted were exemptions of American built merchant vessels, malt sirups, electricity for farm use, ice, American flags, and coal and wood for home fuel. Thus further amended, the exemptions amendment was adopted, only to be wiped out eventually with the whole sales tax section.

Mr. Rainey made a last effort to save the sales tax when it came to the motion of Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] to strike out the whole section.

Rainey's Last Stand.

"This is the crucial point in the manufacturers' sales tax proposition," Mr. Rainey said. "The exemptions you have made this morning amount to a little less than 20 millions, but as nearly as experts are able to figure out, you leave 560 millions you must yet raise by some other kind of taxation than the sales tax.

"We have exempted food and clothing and medicines, malt sirup used in milk and medicine, agricultural products—all those things which affect agriculture and which affect power.

"I am satisfied the fight to balance the budget has been won. You are going to balance the budget, but if you vote for the Doughton amendment these are the kind of taxes you must vote for: Increased postal rates, taxes on automobiles, checks, telegraph and telephone messages, gasoline, conveyances of real estate, and the like.

"When you vote for this motion you are voting for the kind of taxes we had during the war.

Demands Balanced Budget.

"It is absolutely necessary to balance the budget.

"At the end of this year we will have an added interest charge of 210 millions. We cannot borrow now except on short term loans of 7 months or one year. This government cannot borrow money at 4¼ per cent on long term loans. Every business is depressed in this country because this great government of ours cannot sell its securities on the market."

"They tell us we must balance the budget," said Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.]. "I have never subscribed to that idea because for two or three years now we have been laboring under a deficit, and they tell me that the credit of our government and the credit of business is going to fall merely because we do not balance the budget on June 30, 1933.

"Why not impose a reasonable tax upon wealth and business and upon all those who are best able to stand it and then issue certificates for the balance until this government gets in a better condition to pay its current operations?"

Opponents of Sales Tax Crow Too Soon, Dr. Klein Declares

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Dr. Joseph J. Klein, income tax expert, predicted today that the defeat of the sales tax by the house of representatives would eventually result in the imposition of a 5 to 10 per cent tax on selected commodities such as automobiles and radios.

Paul Gourrich, economist, maintained that a moderate sales tax would not prove burdensome to the rank and file of consumers unless it was pyramided, and he suggested that pyramiding could be obviated by imposing the tax on commodities just before they reached the retailer. Mr. Gourrich explained how the retailer then could have passed it along to the consumer and added:

Would Net 600 Million.

"A sales tax of 1 per cent on total sales of between 55 billion and 60 billion dollars a year in this country should net the government approximately 600 million dollars."

"The inevitable has happened," Mr. Klein said. "As originally proposed by the house ways and means committee, the manufacturers' excise tax provision of the revenue bill was as expedient a proposal as reasonable men should have expected. It was inevitable that the proposal should have become a political football.

Sees Substitute Measure.

"Both opponents and proponents of the excise tax, now probably dead and beyond resurrection, appear to be in agreement that the national budget should be balanced. Some few legislators believe that an unbalanced budget for another year or two is to be preferred to tremendous tax levies.

"On the whole, it may be safely assumed that the preponderant majority will strive to enact legislation which will have as its goal the raising of approximately 600 million dollars as a substitute for the moribund excise tax.

"The most obvious source is a decidedly unfair levy on selected commodities such as automobiles, automobile accessories, radios, etc. It is quite within the realm of probability that some of the manufacturing and distributing groups which were most aggressive in attacks on the manufacturers' sales tax will now find themselves chosen for the imposition of a 5 to 10 per cent tax instead of the 2¾ per cent tax which they resisted."

CHICAGOANS' VIEWS

Chicago business and financial leaders, interviewed last night on the defeat of the sales tax in the house of representatives, declared their regret at the action of the house and added that they feared the attempt to make up the government's deficit with huge income surtaxes and estate levies would delay the return of fuller employment of labor.

"I have thought for a long time," said George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental and Commercial Bank and Trust company, "that a sales tax was the fairest way to raise large amounts of revenue. That tax would have furnished nearly enough to cover the deficit. To attempt to get the enormous amounts needed from special levies against special classes may destroy the incentives that make men fertile of mind."

Sales Tax Fair, Kelly Says.

Said D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair and expert in tax matters:

"There are many kinds of sales taxes. The one that was defeated today came nearest to being an even distribution of the load on all classes of merchandise; it was more nearly equitable than any other sales tax I ever heard of.

"Further, this tax would have been comparatively easy of collection, since it was applied to the manufactured cost of goods. I greatly regret its defeat."

Sees Dangers to Trade.

Clayton Mark, steel manufacturer, made the following statement:

"It is deplorable that this sales tax was defeated. I considered it the one best means of balancing the government's budget. The proposed increase in estate tax and income surtax will take capital out of the channels of trade and will have a widespread detrimental influence. This will affect not only the wealthy, but all the people; it will tend to increase unemployment."

DETROIT MAYOR TO CUT TAX HALF BY DEBT HOLIDAY

Declares City Will Stop Paying Interest.

unable to borrow any more money. The ease with which past administrations could borrow brought Detroit to its current financial chaos. The remedy is drastic, I admit. But the need for a cure was dire."

Detroit's devotion to the sacredness of its fiscal contracts will only be abated for the time being, just long enough to give its citizens a breathing spell.

Greatest Per Capita Indebtedness.

With the greatest per capita bonded indebtedness of any city in the nation Detroit has struggled to economize until today it has the lowest per capita expenses of city government of any municipality in the United States, Mayor Murphy said.

"The cost of running official Detroit right now is much less than fifteen years ago, when the city was only half its size," said the mayor. "We pared and pruned administration costs until the daily efficiency of city government was threatened if not impaired.

"And the citizens did this while fighting forward with a millstone of inherited debt tied about their necks. Economy was necessary. But it is time to call a halt when our citizens face loss of their homes. Better that the bondholder suffer than one worthy citizen and his family lose the roof over their heads."

Eager to Avert Catastrophe.

A few days ago in Washington Senator Couzens reiterated to John L. Lovett, secretary of the Michigan Manufacturers' association, that he was not only willing but eager that the city take any step deemed necessary to avert catastrophe no matter what the cost to him individually.

"Call it default, if you choose," said the senator, "but if Detroit is good for its debts ultimately, then its debt holiday involves no more than what many a business man does when he signs a new note continuing his obligations at his bank. I'm for it."

"I don't think the city's budget this year should exceed $50,000,000," said Senator Couzens, "and I have told Mayor Murphy so."

The city's plight was illustrated by citing that $37,000,000 was paid annually on Detroit's debts, and of this sum, equaling this year's basic budget, $30,000,000 was for interest and only $7,000,000 for reduction of principal.

"Our current tax budget is approximately $76,000,000, of which only $37,000,000 is for bare administration expenses, including $22,000,000 for schools," the mayor pointed out. "After paying on the city's debt, a balance of $40,000,000 is left, assuming full payment of taxes, which are running about $22,000,000 behind right now."

REVENUE BILL MINUS SALES TAX TO YIELD ONLY 527 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.] — When the house adjourned today it left behind a mangled tax bill which according to treasury officials will yield only 527 million 500 thousand dollars in revenue, as against the one billion 246 million which the measure as it came from the ways and means committee was estimated to yield.

The items of the amended bill and the amounts they are expected to yield are as follows:

Item of taxation—	Yield.
Lubricating oil	$ 25,000,000
Malt syrups, grape concentrates, wort	46,000,000
Gasoline, gas oil, fuel oil, and crude oil imports, 1 cent a gal.	5,000,000
Income tax, as amended	132,000,000
Corporation tax	21,000,000
Elimination of "foreign credits"	12,000,000
Administrative changes	100,000,000
Estate and gift taxes	35,000,000
Admissions taxes	90,000,000
Stock transfers increase	28,000,000
Telegraph, telephone and radio messages	33,500,000
Total	$527,500,000

Increases in parcel post and other postage rates and reduction of federal appropriations will amount to 150 millions, it is figured. But this still will leave a deficit of 563 million 500 thousand from the amount needed to balance the budget. This amount has been put at one billion 241 million 800 thousand.

These other possibilities as revenue sources were originally suggested by the treasury to the ways and means committee:

Item of taxation—	Yield.
Postage increase to 3 cents, first class matter	$135,000,000
Gasoline, 1 cent a gallon	160,000,000
Bank checks, 2 cent stamp tax	97,000,000
Autos, 5 per cent excise on passenger cars, 3 per cent on trucks, 2½ per cent on parts and accessories	100,000,000
Phonographs and radios, 5 per cent excise	10,000,000
Tobacco, one-sixth increase	58,000,000
Real estate transfers, one-tenth of 1 per cent on values	15,000,000
Electric energy and gas, 7 per cent on domestic consumption	57,000,000
Total	$633,000,000

The manufacturers' sales tax alone in the original committee measure was estimated as likely to produce 595 million in revenues.

INCOME TAX OFF HALF BILLION FOR 1931, MILLS SAYS

Bases Estimate on Payment of 190 Million.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—On the basis of almost complete figures, Secretary of the Treasury Mills today estimated income tax collections for the March 15 quarter will amount to 190 millions of dollars. Indications are that the 1931 calendar year income taxes will run between 700 and 800 million dollars, more than 500 million dollars below collections on incomes in the 1930 calendar year.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

According to Mr. Mills, the treasury experts had estimated 200 million dollars would be collected during March. Up to the close of business March 22, collections were 84 millions.

On the basis of the March collections it is apparent that total income tax collections for the 1932 fiscal year ending June 30 will be around one billion fifty million dollars.

Although no exact figures were available, Secretary Mills today estimated that money in hoarding has dropped 167 million dollars during the last five or six weeks. He pointed out also that bank failures had dropped from 95 in the week ending Jan. 16 to five in the week ending March 19.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation today called upon the treasury for another 100 million dollars of its half billion subscribed capital stock, bringing the total called for by the corporation to date to 350 million dollars.

Announcement of the latest call for funds disclosed that the treasury had given the corporation 100 million dollars between today's and the last formal announcement. Until today's announcement it had been understood here that the total so far drawn by the corporation was 250 million dollars.

MRS. LONGWORTH REVEALS THREAT TO SEIZE PAULINA

Letter Demands $1,500; Police Guard Home.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Paulina Longworth, Washington's most famous little girl, looks out of the windows of her mother's Massachusetts avenue home tonight and sees blue coated police standing guard in front of the blue spruce trees. The police are there to guard her from kidnapers.

Only, she doesn't know that. For her mother, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the late Speaker Longworth, and her nurse, Miss Dorothy Waldon, have sought, ever since she was born, six years ago last Valentine's day, to have her lead the life of an "ordinary" child. No frills, no publicity.

But this police guard is the result of a letter which Mrs. Longworth received three weeks ago, shortly after the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. It was typewritten, on half a sheet of folded paper; it demanded $1,500, and warned her that if she told the police about it she "would suffer the consequences."

Gives Letter to Police.

Mrs. Longworth turned the letter over to the police, who established the guard around the house. The incident of the letter, however, was not revealed until today, when another Washington celebrity, Sir Wilmott Lewis, correspondent for the London Times, who was knighted last year, turned over a similar $1,500 threat letter to the police.

This note, also typewritten and also unsigned, was however, quite outspoken in threatening the abduction of his 3 year old son, Wilmott Jr. It read:

"If you are interested in the safety of your son, do what you're instructed in the next note. Say nothing of having received this note under penalty of ??"

The note was received Monday at the Lewis home. The night before a maid at the house, answering a telephone call, was informed that another note would follow giving detailed instructions. The second letter arrived today. It contained word of a coming third note, which will give directions as to the payment of the $1,500.

Banker and Actor Threatened.

Local police admitted that two others, a Washington banker whom they declined to name, and Ben Lyon, the movie actor, had received $500 demand notes from a person signing himself as A. A. Carpenter, General Delivery, Washington postoffice. All four letters, they admitted, might be the work of a crank; but the Lindbergh kidnaping case impelled them to take extra precautions.

Paulina Longworth has been an interesting figure ever since the Valentine's day she arrived at the Chicago Lying-in hospital, and the house of representatives adjourned to congratulate its speaker, who left the rostrum to hurry to Chicago.

All during her infancy she was carried around in an ordinary market basket by her mother, who insisted that she wanted to have her baby brought up as a "normal, ordinary little baby, with no extra frills."

Later, when she was a small child, she was wheeled up to the capitol nearly every day to greet her father at the end of the day's session.

She's Beloved Baby.

Rarely photographed, sheltered from all publicity, the large, dark eyed child, with the long curls, is widely known and loved in this town.

A year ago last Easter she went for a walk with her nurse. As they were waiting at their front door to go into the house, several bus loads of tourists nearly blocked the Easter parade of motors to point and squint and squeal, "Oh, there's Paulina Longworth," as a Supreme court justice and two cabinet members walked by unnoticed. A week later her father was dead of pneumonia.

ROW OVER FALSE TEETH ENDS IN A SNAPPY DRAW

Alex Murray, 719 South 2d avenue, Maywood, settled a squabble with his wife, Inez, to his own satisfaction, but it required a hearing yesterday before C. Richard Betts, Maywood justice of the peace, to restore peace in the Murray home.

Mrs. Murray opened hostilities by hiding her husband's keys to the family automobile. He retaliated by hiding her false teeth. Honors were even until Clarence Resser, Mrs. Murray's brother, threatened to throw Murray out of the house. Murray left without being thrown.

He told his woes to Sergt. Hugo Mueller at the Maywood police station. Mueller arrested Resser and took him before Justice Betts. When they arrived for the hearing Murray had the keys to his car and Mrs. Murray had her teeth. Resser was dismissed with the warning that the intervenor in a family quarrel is always the loser.

MOB LAYS SIEGE TO OFFICIAL IN KIDNAPING CASE

Reason for Freeing Police Chief Demanded.

Berlin, Md., March 24.—[Special.]—A mob of nearly 300 men early today besieged a hotel here in an attempt to seize and compel State's Attorney Godfrey Child of Worcester county to explain an alleged kidnaping.

Leaders of the mob, angered by a magistrate's decision last night clearing Chief of Police Robert Allen of Ocean City and George K. Jarvis, Berlin farmer, of kidnaping Charles W. Brown of Berlin last week, blamed State's Attorney Child for the dismissal. They accused him of laxity in investigating the kidnaping and called on him to explain.

Tear Gas Melts Mob.

State policemen and officials dispersed the crowd with tear gas cartridges after it had surged around the hotel for three hours, yelling for Child and threatening other county officials. State's Attorney Child's automobile was wrecked and he remained in the hotel until daylight under protection.

The mob action was the latest demonstration in Worcester county's "gang war," which has flared up several times in the last three years. Rival bootleg rings are said to be responsible for the outbreaks, which have included one bombing, several machine gun attacks, and shooting up the town of Berlin on one occasion.

Recognizes Chief as Kidnaper.

Last Tuesday, Brown testified, four masked men attacked him as he was driving down a lonely road, pulled him from his automobile and overpowered him. In the struggle, he testified, he pulled the mask from one of the men and recognized him as Chief Allen of the Ocean City police. He said he recognized another man as Jarvis.

The four men kept him chained in a cave for four days, Brown said, then chained him to a tree in Holly Grove swamp. He was found on Sunday by a boy who aided in releasing him. Brown then filed charges against Chief Allen and Jarvis.

TWO DRY RAIDERS WHO 'SAVED' SEIZED WHISKY DRAW PRISON TERMS

Louisville, Ky., March 24.—(AP)—C. J. Wallace, 27, former prohibition agent, was sentenced to 2 years in Leavenworth federal penitentiary, and Johnson Walker, 39, also a former agent and son of the late Col. Thomas L. Walker, collector of customs, was sentenced to one year in the federal reformatory camp at Petersburg, Va., by Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson today.

The men were charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Testimony was that they did not destroy certain whisky after a raid, as they had reported, but brought it to Louisville. They pleaded guilty.

LINER'S RUDDER TAKES AUTO RIDE; BLOCKS TRAFFIC

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 24.—Somewhere on the road between London and Darlington the world's biggest motor truck is carrying the rudder of the liner Berengaria on its most adventurous voyage of 316 miles. The giant rudder, weighing 55 tons, is being taken from Southampton, where the Berengaria docked for repairs, and is traveling by road because it is too wide for a train.

The truck is 75 feet long and has 18 wheels. It can crawl along at an average of only five miles an hour.

The truck was such an obstruction to traffic that last night the police forbade the driver to take it through London until after 10 p. m. Then it rumbled along, with a big sign warning motorists: "I am a rudder. The S. S. Berengaria wants me urgently. I am too big to go by rail. Please be patient."

OBSCENE BOOK SELLER SENTENCED.

Harry Paulus, 21 years old, 538 South State street, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in jail by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Morals court yesterday for selling obscene literature. The court indicated that he might admit the youth to probation on March 31.

READY TO RETURN BABY, GANG WORD TO LINDBERGHS

Minister Brings Message from Kidnapers.

ment whereby the child is to be delivered for identification by Col. Lindbergh before any money is paid seems to be proof of it, doesn't it?"

"Will the child be delivered to you, Dr. Peacock?"

"It will be delivered to the three of us, but the details have not been arranged."

At this point he decided that "the less said about the matter now the better and ended the interview.

The negotiators motored from Norfolk to the Sourland mountain home of the Lindberghs last Tuesday night and returned to Norfolk early yesterday morning, it was established.

Although the negotiators themselves confirmed the fact that they had made what they felt to be progress toward restoring the child to his parents, the only word obtainable from Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, commanding the New Jersey state police, was an admission that a group from Norfolk had visited the Lindbergh home, but a denial of the validity of their information. Col. Schwarzkopf's statement was as follows:

"The three citizens of Norfolk who visited Col. Lindbergh last night gave him information which, on being investigated, was found to have no specific significance in this investigation."

"Not Police Business."

When informed that there were reports quoting Dr. Peacock as saying that the baby was on a boat in Chesapeake bay and that he expected to have the baby back "within two or three days," he remarked:

"I'm not responsible for what he says. That's none of my business."

A personal representative of Col. Lindbergh declined to discuss the matter, referring all inquiries to the headquarters of the state police in Trenton.

According to the story which they are understood to have told Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, four men and two women have the child within 30 miles of Norfolk in a sheltered anchorage in a tributary of Chesapeake bay. They themselves are understood not to know definitely the position of the yacht.

They are understood to have gone back to Norfolk with the authorization of Col. Lindbergh to deal with the kidnapers—or whoever the present holders of the child may be—pay the ransom, and obtain possession of the child.

Confer with Colonel.

The first contact with the Norfolk group came through Mr. Curtis, according to a dispatch from Norfolk. He was approached early this week by a former boat customer, reputedly a rum runner in past days.

The man asked Mr. Curtis if he could obtain the coöperation of two or three Norfolk citizens who could approach Col. Lindbergh and could be trusted not to inform the police. Mr. Curtis recalled the acquaintance of Admiral Burrage and Dean Peacock with the flyer, and broached the subject to them.

As a result of conversations said to have been participated in by two men whose identity is not revealed, the naval officer, the rector and Mr. Curtis arranged for a conference with the Lindberghs by long distance telephone and proceeded to the Sourland mountain.

What was said at the conference at the Lindbergh home is closely guarded, but the Norfolk men hurried back home by motor.

Fear New York Gangsters.

It was said that the agreement between the Norfolk men and the go-betweens for the kidnaping band precluded any contact with police or federal officials and the prescription was rigidly adhered to by the citizen intermediaries.

The intermediaries who approached Mr. Curtis explained in response to questions, it is said, that the kidnapers feared to attempt to negotiate with the Lindberghs through New York or New Jersey for two reasons.

One explanation given was that they might be set upon by gangsters who knew their identity, that they would be in danger of being "knocked off," and have the child taken from them or turned over to the police.

The other was that the New York underworld characters would demand too much of a "cut" in the ransom reward, and that they had no confidence in the two gangsters named by Col. Lindbergh as his representatives to contact underworld characters.

Suspect Rum Runner Ring.

Speculation as to the identities of the four men and two women on the yacht, said to have been a former rum runner overhauled and repainted, has led to the belief in police and shipping circles that the kidnapers were a part of a rum running syndicate operating off the Jersey coast, and some credence is given to early reports that the child may have been smuggled aboard a rum runner the night he was kidnaped.

The yacht, according to meager descriptions, could have negotiated the Chesapeake and Delaware canal, connecting the Delaware river and Chesapeake bay, and then made its way southward.

Norfolk police, the United States coast guard, the army and navy authorities here and elsewhere on Hampton Roads apparently have acquiesced in the pledge against molestation given by the Norfolk men to the kidnapers, and it was stated authoritatively that no effort would be made here to apprehend the kidnapers until after the child had been delivered into friendly hands, if subsequent developments should bring that about.

Ransom $50,000 to $250,000?

Reports in Norfolk as to the amount of the ransom demanded vary from $50,000 to $250,000, and it is said there that Col. Lindbergh was required to give his pledge in writing that the money would be delivered and that the identity of the kidnapers would not be revealed by him or the Norfolk men acting for him.

Convinced that Delaware and Chesapeake bays would be likely hiding places for the kidnapers, all coast guard boats have been searching all suspicious vessels for more than two weeks, it was revealed today.

Lieut. E. R. Duke, in charge of the coast guard at Cape May, said his men had gone over more than a dozen boats since the orders were received three days after the kidnaping.

The inland waterway from New Jersey to the Atlantic offered an excellent means of escape, investigators realized from the start. Numerous small streams close to Hopewell are navigable for small craft. The Raritan canal, a comparatively short distance from the Lindbergh estate, leads to the Chesapeake and Delaware canal, which connects the Delaware river and Chesapeake bay. It is navigable for yachts of ten to twelve feet draft.

Dean Peacock tonight at Maundy Thursday communion services at Christ Episcopal church in Norfolk asked that silent prayer be offered by the congregation for the speedy return of the Lindbergh baby.

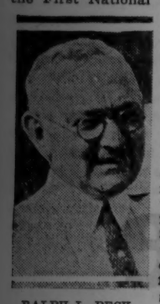
PALATINE BANKER GUILTY OF FRAUD; FACES TEN YEARS

U. S. Jury Returns Verdict After 21 Hours.

Ralph L. Peck, former president of the First National bank of Palatine, was convicted by a jury yesterday in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' court of embezzling money from the bank. Peck, who is 59 years old, collapsed as the verdict was read. He faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.



RALPH L. PECK.

The jury, deliberating 21 hours, found Peck not guilty on nine counts of the indictment and guilty on two counts. Attorney Charles A. Williams made a motion for a new trial, which was set for argument on April 2. Peck was taken into custody pending the furnishing of a new bond of $5,000 in lieu of the recognizance bond under which he had been at liberty.

Twenty Witnesses Called.

Assistant United States District Attorney Owen A. West called twenty witnesses for the government, including the directors who forced Peck's resignation after he had been with the bank 12 years. West referred to Peck as a banker who had no regard for the safety of the depositors' money.

The specific charges on which Peck was convicted were that he collected $4,500 from Lillian Crawford and $20,650 from Charles Quindel on loans they made from the bank and kept the money. His defense was that the bank owed him the money. Prosecutor West contended that the bank records showed no evidence of this debt.

Arthur H. Hein, president of the closed Congress Park State bank and cashier of the closed Brookfield State bank, was held in contempt of court yesterday by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, who is seeking to uncover hidden assets of closed banks. Hein's answers regarding the ownership of two pieces of property were termed evasive by the court and he was ordered taken into custody. A ten day contempt sentence, however, was held in abeyance due to the serious illness of Hein's wife, who is suffering from cancer. The hearing was continued until March 31.

Payments to Depositors.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson announced yesterday he had issued orders to receivers of six closed banks to make a payment of dividends to depositors. About 9,000 depositors will receive $196,400, he said. The payments are as follows:

The Morton Grove Trust and Savings bank, 25 per cent, amounting to $66,000, to 1,200 depositors; the Central Oak Park State bank, 40 per cent, amounting to $45,000, to 2,700 depositors; Hegewisch State bank, 10 per cent, amounting to $30,000, to 900 depositors; Congress Park State bank, 10 per cent, amounting to $3,600, to 511 depositors; Mount Greenwood State bank, 10 per cent, amounting to $4,800, to 724 depositors, and the Cragin State bank, 10 per cent, amounting to $47,000, to 3,000 depositors.

Not Reconciled

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 24.—While Crown Prince Michael met his mother, Queen Helen, divorced wife of King Carol of Rumania, at the railroad station today, Magda Lupescu, red haired junk dealer's daughter, packed her trunks at the palace, where she has been living since Carol's return in June, 1930, and quietly slipped out of the capital accompanied by her maid.

Queen Helen returned to Bucharest on the royal train, after receiving a royal salute at the border. Besides Michael, soldiers of the royal guard, ladies in waiting of Dowager Queen Marie, and former King George of Greece, Helen's brother, greeted her at the train.

Despite official denial that Helen's return has anything to do with a reconciliation, indications are strong that negotiations are proceeding. Mme. Lupescu's departure is believed especially significant. Public opinion in Rumania, dissatisfied with conditions at the royal court, is also exerting pressure to get the royal couple to patch up their differences for the good of the country.

WOMAN IN BANK QUIZ VANISHES FROM HOSPITAL

Miss Harriet Shosky, a witness in the court investigation into affairs of the Second Northwestern State bank, has disappeared from St. Elizabeth's hospital, where she was a patient for nearly a week after she had taken an overdose of a sleeping potion. Friends of Miss Shosky took her away from the hospital late Tuesday night, it was said.

At her home, 5245 Wrightwood avenue, her father insisted she still was a patient in the hospital. He declared that "when she can be moved we are going to send her away somewhere for a rest." Attorney Edgar J. Cook, who represents Miss Shosky, declared himself unaware of her whereabouts, but asserted he was positive she had not left the jurisdiction of the court. Her mental condition is such that rest is imperative, he said.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg continued the investigation until April 4, on being informed last week of the illness of Miss Shosky. She was secretary to the former president of the bank, Frank E. Lackowski, who ended his life in the Lincoln park lagoon.

GIRL DIES AFTER LEAP AT BROKER'S NEW YORK HOME

Suicide Surrounded with Mystery.

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Miss Laura Smith of Toronto, who adopted the stage name of Lauri Anderson when she came to New York eight years ago, died in Mount Sinai hospital early today, several hours after she jumped from the fifth floor of the apartment of Philip S. P. Randolph Jr.

Mr. Randolph, broker, was on a train bound for Pinehurst, N. C., when Miss Smith visited the apartment. He had left New York at 6:45 p. m. on Wednesday. He knew Miss Anderson fairly well, but had no idea, he said, that she was going to the apartment.

Leaves Note to Mother.

Mr. Randolph had no intimation that Miss Anderson contemplated suicide. He said that probably his butler had permitted her to enter the apartment without his knowledge.

Miss Smith was 28 years old, the daughter of William W. Smith of Toronto. The father left for New York tonight to claim the body and will probably take it back to Canada.

"I am sorry I cannot keep my promise," said the note found in the Randolph apartment after Miss Smith jumped. "I guess I am a coward, but I needed a little courage for this." The note asked that Mrs. Mileson Smith, her mother, be notified, but that the death be described as an accident.

Brother of Mrs. Ogden Mills.

News of Miss Smith's death was withheld from the mother, however, because she is seriously ill.

"In all the letters received from Laura," said her sister in Toronto, "there was no mention of unhappiness or a desire to leave New York. She called New York her second home. She was a perfectly normal and bright girl. The whole thing seems strange."

Randolph's sister is Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, wife of the secretary of the United States treasury. He was divorced in 1928 by Mrs. Madeline Cochrane Randolph.

Polish Warships Anchor at Danzig; Germans Perturbed

TRE ORE SERVICES TO BE HELD IN CHURCHES TODAY

Recall Jesus' Suffering on the Cross.

Tre Ore services, commemorating the three hours of the agony of Jesus Christ on the cross, will be conducted in Catholic and Protestant churches throughout Chicago today. Good Friday, next to Easter Sunday, is looked upon generally as the most important observance of the Lenten season.

Eighteen Protestant denominations, representing 800 churches in the Chicago area, will hold a centralized service from 12 to 3 p. m. at the Methodist temple in the loop. Dr. Robert Clements, president of the Chicago Church federation, will preside.

Seven speakers will discuss Christ's last seven words on the cross. They are Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary; Dr. James L. Gardiner, St. James' Methodist church; the Rev. William E. Grote, Naperville Evangelical church; the Rev. Armin N. Mayer, St. Luke's Evangelical church; the Rev. A. Wayman Ward, Bethel African Methodist church; the Rev. J. M. Findlay Brown, Eighth United Presbyterian church, and the Rev. Douglas Horton, United Church of Hyde Park.

Services at Cathedral.

In Holy Name cathedral Tre Ore services will be conducted by the Rev. Matthias Coen, C. P., from 12 until 3 p. m. This will include the singing of Du Bois' "Seven Last Words" by the cathedral choristers, under the direction of Father Hoover.

At old St. James' Catholic church, in Wabash avenue near 29th street, the devotions will be held from 6 p. m. to 9 p. m., for the benefit of those who are working and cannot attend the earlier services. The Rev. Louis T. McKeown, C. S. S. R., will conduct the service. The Rev. J. P. O'Donoughue is pastor of the church.

The Procession del Santo Entierro, one of the most impressive of Spanish Holy week services, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at St. Francis Mission church, Roosevelt road at Newberry avenue. This ceremony represents the burial of Christ with solemn pageantry.

Denominations to Coöperate.

At the Episcopal church of St. Paul's-by-the-Lake a three hour service will be held, beginning at 11:45 a. m. On invitation of the Rev. Charles T. Hull, rector of the church, ministers of other churches will take part in the service. The other denominations to be represented are Baptist, Lutheran, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Community, and Evangelical.

The three hour Good Friday service to be conducted in Bethlehem chapel of Washington cathedral will be heard by radio listeners today in all parts of the United States and possibly around the world.

At the North Austin English Evangelical Lutheran church services will be conducted every half hour from 5:30 to 10:30 a. m. Tonight at 8 o'clock a choir of fifty voices of Hope Reformed church, 78th and Lincoln streets, will be heard and a cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," will be presented.

At the Fourth Presbyterian church there will be a choral service, "At the Foot of the Cross," at 8 p. m.

Zack Miller Grabs Shotgun and Defends His Ranch Home

Marland, Okla., March 24.—[Special.]—While the auctioneer's hammer resounded outside, Col. Zack Miller, ranchman and circus owner, resorted to the forceful rule of the west today in defending his 101 Ranch homestead, "the White House," a small part of a once mighty western domain that disintegrated beneath a series of financial difficulties.

The elderly plainsman rose from his sickbed and fired the full charge of a shotgun into the floor near the heels of two attorneys who had entered the home to confer over the receiver's auction about to start outside.

Talks Over Barrel of Gun.

For several hours the fiery westerner barricaded himself in an upstairs room, his only companions being Selma Zimmerman, the "Elephant Girl" in the defunct 101 Wild West show, and Harley Kinnear, another trusted employé.

Deputy sheriffs were warned to stay away from the house by Miller, who talked over the barrel of his shotgun. Bruce Potter, Kay county attorney, finally entered the home and arranged a temporary truce. "He is a sick man," said Potter who announced no action would be taken against Miller.

Col. Miller, the last survivor of the famous family, is claiming ownership of "the White House" as a "homestead exemption."

Miller declared he would defend his "homestead" to the last.

"I will not come out," he said, "and any one who tries to get me out will have trouble. If they stay away no one will get hurt."

The trouble started when R. O. Wilson and Neal Sullivan, attorneys for the receiver, entered the house. Miller grabbed a shotgun and fired as the two lawyers jumped to their feet and dashed outside.

"I didn't try to shoot them," he said. "I just wanted to see how fast they could run." He then barricaded himself in a room, armed with a shotgun and dynamite. Harold Mead, deputy sheriff, approached the house and was greeted by Col. Miller peering over a gun barrel through a window. Mead said he was ordered to leave at once. A cordon of deputies was thrown around the house, but no effort made to invade it. Later when the county prosecutor entered the house the deputies withdrew.

Brothers Once Wealthy.

The public auction today climaxed a long series of financial difficulties to the famous ranch inherited by Zack and his two brothers, Joe and George, from the pioneer father. Joe and George were killed in motor car accidents two years ago. The ranch was once a show place of the west. Wealth rolled into the Miller brothers' pockets when oil was discovered.

Then the three brothers organized the 101 Ranch Wild West Show. When oil prices declined the circus began to lose money and finally gave its last performance in Washington last summer.

Creditors filed suit and after months of litigation in which he sought in vain to save the ranch, Fred C. Clarke, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was named receiver.

Lueder yesterday called attention to the fact that rates of postage for letters and postcards to Cuba, Dominican republic, Haiti, Spain, and all Central and South American countries will be changed on April 1. Letters will require 3 cents an ounce or fraction thereof; single postcards, 2 cents, and double postcards, 4 cents.

Fireman Off Duty Catches Robber and Disarms Him

Fireman Frank Maruchi of engine company No. 30 was off duty yesterday. As he passed the Father and Son Shoe store at 1205 Milwaukee avenue a man ran out. Following the runner was a clerk crying: "Stop that robber." Maruchi dashed off in pursuit, tackled the fugitive and after overpowering him took his pistol from him. The captive, who said he was Raymond Clark, recently of Sioux City, Ia., had taken $9 from the clerk, Arnold Behne.

HOOVER PRAISES GOVERNMENT AID TO SHIPBUILDERS

Congratulates Panama Line at Launching.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—President Hoover today issued a formal statement congratulating the Grace Line, Panama Canal service, upon the launching of the S. S. Santa Rosa, a big cargo and passenger carrying ship at Kearny, N. J. The addition of this ship and the three sister ships, which are to follow this vessel into the carrying trade between the United States and Central and South America, the President said, invites attention to the "revival of shipbuilding," which followed in the wake of the 1928 merchant marine act.

Building Forty-five Vessels.

As a result of this act, providing lucrative mail contracts for steamers and government financial aid in construction of new ships, President Hoover said orders have been placed for forty-five new vessels of 500,000 gross tons and for the reconditioning of nineteen vessels of 160,000 gross tons.

"The resultant revival of shipbuilding industry," President Hoover said, "has provided employment not only at seaboard shipyards but throughout the country where are produced and manufactured a large part of the materials and equipment entering into the finished vessels."

Decline in "Pork" Ignored.

In his statement President Hoover did not mention the circumstance that due to the depression, the decline of naval building, and the completion of many of the ships made possible by the 1928 act the shipyards of the country are again in serious difficulty. Despite the increase in shipbuilding which followed the enactment of the White merchant marine act in 1928, today only 9.2 per cent of American seagoing tonnage is modern or less than 10 years old.

Testifying recently before the house naval committee, Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the bureau of construction of the navy department, said that almost all the big shipbuilding yards of the country will be out of merchant work by the end of this year. He urged the letting of new warship construction contracts to keep the industry intact.

BELLS OF ROME HUSHED; CITY IN SILENT MOURNING

Colorful Ceremonies Held on Holy Thursday.

VATICAN CITY, March 24.—(AP)—Wine and water were poured on the central altar stone of St. Peter's today in the closing ceremonies of Holy Thursday.

At Sundown a throng of worshipers in the basilica saw priests carry in the wine in eight chalices, seven of crystal and one of gilded metal.

The clergy then imparted a blessing with holy relics connected with Christ's passion and death. These were reputed portions of the cross, the holy veil of Veronica, and the lance with which the centurion pierced Christ's side.

Hear Priests' Confessions.

Another colorful ceremony was held in St. Peter's this afternoon. A cardinal known as the grand penitentiary seated himself at the tribunal of penitence and heard the confessions of the priests who are confessors in St. Peter's. Their confessions finished, he tapped them sharply on the head with a long wand. This commemorated the old penance which customarily was done in public.

From the moment of the "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" this morning during the masses in Rome's hundreds of churches, not a church bell has been heard. The capital of the Roman Catholic world is in silent mourning.

King Distributes "Maundy" Money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—For the first time in almost 200 years King George personally distributed the Maundy Thursday pence to the poor at Westminster abbey today. The gift is one of specially coined money by the king to a selected group of poor people and at one time was accompanied by the ceremony of the king washing the feet of the poor in commemoration of washing the apostles' feet by Jesus.

King George was accompanied by the queen today. He was dressed in a black morning coat and the queen wore a dark wrap. The only color in evidence was in the gorgeous robes of the clergy.

After the service the king walked down the line of pews and handed a small envelope to each of 134 persons. There was one man and one woman for each of the king's age. He is 67. The men each received two pounds five shillings [about $8.25 at current exchange rates] and each woman one pound fifteen shillings [about $6.50], but the gift is worth much more, as the specially minted coins sell for high prices as curiosities.

Alfonso Scraps Tradition.

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, March 24.—(AP)—Former King Alfonso of Spain, who returned today from a Mediterranean cruise, announced that he will not observe this year the Spanish tradition of washing the feet of the poor on Holy Thursday. Because he is on French soil he will observe Easter in accordance with French customs, he said, attending church as a simple worshiper.

Religious Riot in Spain.

SEVILLE, Spain, March 24.—(AP)—Three persons were wounded and 32 extremists were arrested after four unsuccessful attempts today to break up the procession of the Virgin de la Estrella, a traditional Easter week observance.

An angry populace tried to seize the prisoners from their police and military guards to lynch them and succeeded in beating two severely. A crowd later massed in front of city hall shouting "Down with the republic!"

During disorders along the procession's route, pistol shots were fired and stones thrown at the Virgin's image. Two small bombs were exploded as the procession entered the cathedral, but no damage was done.

Smash Window of Auto with Gun, Rob Executive

Three gunmen robbed Victor T. Schmitt, 5555 Sheridan road, president of Hinckley & Schmitt, Inc., mineral waters, of $655 in cash and $1,292 in checks yesterday afternoon. They forced his automobile to the curb near the offices of the concern at 420 West Ontario street, soon after Schmitt had started for a bank. When he was slow in opening the door of the car one bandit smashed the window glass with his revolver.

CANDIDATES DENY THEY'LL QUIT IN GOVERNOR RACE

Dry Law Stand of Each Aspirant Revealed.

BY PARKE BROWN.

New rumors of withdrawals from both the Republican and Democratic governorship races spread through Chicago yesterday, but as fast as they were submitted at headquarters for verification were knocked down as inspired propaganda aimed to benefit their authors.

There was hardly a candidate of either party who was not mentioned in the new crop of reports. Even those considered to have the leads in their respective races were mentioned, much to the irritation and disgust of some of them. But in every instance there was a request that the tale be ignored rather than denied.

Want Reports Ignored.

"Don't print it," asked one candidate after another. "That's all they're trying to do—get it into print as an indication that I'm giving up the fight. There's nothing to it, but if such a report is printed, my opponents calculate, it will create doubt and wavering in the minds of my supporters."

Such rumors were at their height three weeks ago, the time for regular withdrawals expiring then, and the new crop concerned extralegal withdrawals such as that of a candidate who announces in favor of another, although his name will appear on the ballot, or who is willing to ask some court order to keep his name off the ballot. So far as could be discovered there are no contenders of that sort in the field now.

With few exceptions most of the governorship entrants were busy downstate yesterday or occupied with organization matters. Under these conditions unusual attention was given to a pamphlet issued by the Illinois Association Opposed to Prohibition purporting to quote the last official word from each of the candidates in reference to prohibition.

Small May Aid Custer.

Interest was aroused particularly by what appeared to be a new statement on this subject by Len Small, now seeking the governorship for the fifth time. Small has been a lifelong dry and in the past has carried the banner of the Anti-Saloon league, but this time there are reports that this support may be thrown to Omer N. Custer, the candidate who says this question plays no part in the life of a governor.

And this is the way Small is quoted in the wet organization's pamphlet:

"On Sept. 19, 1931, at a large gathering of my friends who are supporting my candidacy, I announced to them that I am in favor of the repeal of the Illinois search and seizure law in compliance with the referendum vote of the people.

"If I am elected governor and the legislature passes a bill for the repeal of that law I shall without further referendum sign the bill."

No Denials of Statement.

The printed copies of Small's speech of Sept. 19 at Kankakee contained no declaration against the Illinois prohibition laws such as this and several persons who heard him talk failed to catch any such statement as that quoted by the anti-prohibition association. But there has been no denial of this latest quotation, although representatives of the association say it was submitted to him for verification before the pamphlet was published.

In reply to a retort from Omer N. Custer relative to Edward J. Brundage's statement that Capone is taking an active part in the Chicago campaign and that some of the so-called Emmerson ward committeemen are backed by gangsters who expect to control them, a statement was issued by Rush C. Butler, chairman of the Brundage campaign committee.

"Gov. Emmerson's dry candidate for governor," said the statement, "is reported to have treated lightly the serious charges made by Edward J. Brundage that the criminal element is out to capture control of the Republican party.

"It is indeed a sorry spectacle when a man in the position of Mr. Custer, who is seeking to lead the Republican party in Illinois, is willing to joke about the most serious condition facing the citizens of Chicago and Illinois.

"Mr. Custer does not seem to have learned anything from his initial appearance in Galpin's ward. If he had known anything about Chicago he might have recognized some of the fellows facing him. Any policeman could have told him who they were. Did Mr. Custer want to know?

"It is easy to find out. The serious thing about his willful ignorance is that if he became governor would he do as Emmerson has done—give them places in the public employment—let them parade around with state stars?

"It shows how important it is we should have a Chicago governor who understands local conditions. It is the only way to end the gang."

Attorney General Carlstrom will start his campaign in Cook county tomorrow night at a meeting in Hagelin hall, Foster and Ashland avenues, under the auspices of the Uptown Swedish-American Voters' league, the Fiftieth Ward Republican Harmony club, and other orfanizations.

BECOMES LAWYER

PATROLMAN FRANK MURRAY

Patrolman Frank Murray, 6711 Normal avenue, assigned to the Chicago Lawn police district, was notified yesterday that he had passed the state bar examination. Murray, who is 26 years old, has been on the police force two years. He traveled a beat in the daytime and attended Northwestern university law school in the evenings to complete his law course. He will keep on traveling his beat for a time, until the law business improves, he said.

THREAT IS SENT TO CANDIDATE IN RIVER GROVE

James Kryiazopulos, candidate for village clerk on the Village Party ticket in River Grove, received a threatening letter yesterday, warning him to get out of the race. He is 21 years old, a law student at Elmhurst college and was born in River Grove where his father has operated a restaurant for 45 years. The Village ticket is being opposed by candidates sponsored by Frank Conboy, president of the village.

"We have been watching you and don't like your candidacy for the clerkship," the letter read. "In fact, the possibility of your election endangers one of our most vital functions and we suggest that you decline the nomination. We trust that this warning will not be ignored or we shall have to take more drastic measures. After all, the office means little to you and much to us. Don't make us act."

It was signed "The Skipper." The candidate said he would notify postal authorities and the "Secret Six" of the letter. His father has also been threatened, he stated.

HORNER ASSAILS IGOE BY NAME FOR FIRST TIME

Calls Him "Inconsistent" and "Unfair."

For the first time in the campaign Judge Henry Horner last night criticized by name his Chicago opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor, Michael L. Igoe.

In speeches at 6839 Wentworth avenue, in Frank J. Walsh's ward, and at 4715 West Madison street, in Ald. John S. Clark's ward, he contended that Igoe has been unfair in attacking the state central committee for selecting and backing candidates, and at the same time inconsistent, because it was by similar organization procedure that Igoe became national committeeman, south park commissioner, and state representative.

"Hope Lies in Democrats."

A large part of his speeches was devoted to straight Democratic doctrine, argument that the Republican party has failed the people and that the only hope lies in the Democrats, but his audience pricked up its ears a little more when he began talking about his opponent.

Judge Horner also rapped Igoe's opposition to the Kelly bill for the reorganization of the Cook county taxing machinery by recalling that Igoe himself advocated a similar plan in 1930.

"The Kelly plan was all right when it was the Igoe plan," he said, "but it was the same plan under a different name.

"And Mr. Igoe is also inconsistent in condemning the state central committee for making up a balanced ticket. It was that same state central committee that elected Mr. Igoe as national committeeman for Illinois.

Sent Him to Assembly.

"And it was the very same processes, used in that instance by the organization in his legislative district, that sent Mr. Igoe to the general assembly.

And it was the action of the organization that caused his election to the south park board. It was in response to the expressed wish of the organization that a majority of the Circuit judges voted for him for that post."

But even after these few remarks, Judge Horner said that if he is defeated in the primary of April 12, he will support the winner, be he Igoe or Bruce A. Campbell of East St. Louis. He pronounced both men well qualified for the office of governor.

The regular candidate stressed his repeated demand for new legislation for the protection of state bank depositors.

DETECTIVES SPEND MONTH IN OVERALLS; SOLVE RADIO THEFT

After spending the last month in overalls at work benches in the radio plant of the Grigsby-Grunow company, 5801 Dickens avenue, operatives of the Burns Detective agency yesterday arrested five men, a shipping clerk, three former employés and a drayman, whom they charged with the theft of $25,000 worth of radios and radio parts from the company.

The prisoners, who will appear today in the Felony court on charges of grand larceny, are August Soch, 5321 South Bishop street, the shipping clerk; John Maher, an employé of the Nielsen Cartage company, Kilpatrick and Armitage avenues; John Schuster, owner of a radio repair shop at 3028 North Kostner avenue; John Szymanski, 2629 North Lawndale avenue, and Ernest Trottier, 1256 Augusta street, the latter three former employés.

Trottier engineered the thefts, the detectives charged. The radios and parts were packed as if for regular shipment and carried away from the shipping room by Maher, they charge. Thirty auto radio sets were recovered from the homes of the five men. Five more were recovered after the detectives had interrogated Arthur Johnson, son of the owner of a dairy at 1940 North Kedzie avenue. He admitted that he bought the five sets from Schuster for $100.

MAYOR'S SISTER IS SUMMONED IN NEW YORK QUIZ

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Mrs. Nan Walker Burke, sister of Mayor James J. Walker, was served today with a subpœna to appear before the Hofstadter legislative committee for questioning at a private hearing, she said tonight.

The subpœna, she said, called for her appearance tomorrow morning. Mrs. Burke said she had told the committee she could not appear then, but would be willing to do so later. She explained she must visit her physician tomorrow to receive treatment for a knee injury suffered some time ago, and further that tomorrow is Good Friday.

It was reported that Mrs. Burke was to be examined in connection with the evidence the committee is known to be accumulating on the financial affairs of the mayor. The ultimate aim of this phase of the inquiry has been said by persons familiar with the plans of the investigators to be the examination of Mr. Walker at a public hearing.

Central Park casino, which has received publicity because of reports that it is rented from the city for an $8,500 a year figure, which is less than could be obtained for the hat-check concession, was an object of scrutiny today, and investigators are looking both into the operation of the casino itself and into favors reported to be granted to city officials by the management.

RAP POLITICIANS WHO 'TALK WET' AND BACK DRYS

Homer K. Galpin, Cook county manager of Omer N. Custer's campaign for governor, was asked by the Crusaders last night to furnish them with a list of Republican ward committeemen who are supporting the "Galesburg dry" candidate.

COL. IRA REEVES.

An observation that the 18th amendment will not be repealed so long as party leaders "talk wet" but support dry candidates was made in a letter to Galpin by Col Ira L. Reeves, manager of the Crusaders, who added that many politicians seem to ride in on a wet plank but forget it after election.

"We have been endeavoring," said the letter, "to get a complete list of ward committeemen and other prominent Republicans of Cook county who are supporting Omer N. Custer, one of the Republican candidates for governor Chicago, as you doubtless know, is overwhelmingly wet and a great many of its politicians have been riding into office on the so-called wet issue. Unfortunately, when they arrive many of them seem to forget the promises they made to their constituents with reference to prohibition.

"According to lists we have already compiled there appear to be a number of this type of politician now behind the Custer campaign in Cook county. I assume that those so-called wets in the Republican party who are now supporting Mr. Custer are not keeping it secret nor are they ashamed of their activities, so I believe it is altogether fair for us to ask you to supply us with a list so we can check it with ours. I am sure the Republican voters would be interested.

"We can see how you can undertake the management in Cook county of Mr. Custer's campaign, as we understand you are 'dry' politically and possibly personally, but we cannot quite see the political consistency of a number of ardent so-called 'wets' who are now supporting the campaign of Mr. Custer, when every one knows that should he be elected as governor of this state, he will in all probability use that office, as did Gov. Emmerson, to nullify the wishes of the citizenship generally, as far as their wishes pertain to repeal of the iniquitous prohibition laws—state or national."

WOMAN ACCUSER OF MRS. KEGEL QUITS HOSPITAL

Mrs. Mary Ryan, who recently charged she was given poison tablets by Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel, wife of former Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, was released last night from the John B. Murphy hospital. She is a former maid in the Kegel home and is listed as a witness for the doctor in his divorce case against Mrs. Kegel.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Kegel was charged with placing a potion in a soda Mrs. Ryan drank, the alleged motive being to dispose of her as a witness. A week ago Mrs. Ryan was given the last rites of the Catholic church. In leaving the hospital last night Mrs. Ryan ignored the advice of her physician, Dr. William D. McNally. Mrs. Ryan lives at 1139 Ardmore avenue.

CATTLE DIE IN FIRE.

Morris, Ill., March 24.—[Special.]—A mystery fire last night destroyed a large barn on the farm of Lloyd Davies, four miles south of here, and ten head of fancy cattle, a large supply of grain and feed were also destroyed.

CRUSADERS BACK STEPHEN A. DAY FOR CONGRESS

Dry League Concentrates on Richard Yates.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Crusaders, militant anti-prohibitionists, yesterday indorsed Stephen A. Day of Evanston, a leading liberal, for the Republican nomination for congressman at large, two of whom are to be elected. The Anti-Saloon league was reported to be sending out word to its following to concentrate upon Richard Yates, congressman at large, who was one of the seven Republicans from Illinois who voted against the Beck-Linthicum resolution. Its reported aim is to pool the dry vote on one candidate.

As yet the Crusaders have not picked a second man, and they are looking over the field for the strongest choice. The recommendation of Mr. Day was at once ratified by the North Shore division at a rally.

Mr. Day, who is a son of the late William R. Day, justice of the United States Supreme court and secretary of state in the McKinley cabinet, has been personal attorney for Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former ambassador to Great Britain, and he has the reputation of sleeping with the constitution under his pillow. He was among the early advocates of dry law modification.

"New Liberty Awakening."

"Give the boys and girls of America a break," was Mr. Day's theme yesterday in addressing his local division of the Crusaders. He said that the vote on the Beck-Linthicum resolution to return the liquor question to the states shows that "a new liberty is awakening."

"Apart from the foul corruption, its failure and hypocrisy," said Mr. Day, "one reason that I hate prohibition is this: It denies the freedom of the individual and is breeding runts and pygmies where the knowledge of liberty is concerned.

"You cannot recruit the courage that has built America from men thus stultified and humiliated. Men like Lincoln, Jim Hill, Cyrus McCormick, Joseph Medill, the Armours and Swifts, Marshall Field could not have grown in the atmosphere of today. They would have busted through it or failed.

Restore Constitution, He Urges.

"Give to this generation and our boys and girls a break. Let them know the America that we beheld in our youth. There is no task of greater consequence. If we fail to restore the constitution, the day of better understanding, if we do not rid the land of the blight of bureaucracy, the shame is on our heads.

"And while we are on the subject, maybe it would work a true revival of religious fervor that would bring the kingdom of God a little closer—and save our churches from humiliation of present misunderstanding.

"Bureaucracy is an admission of defeat. It expresses a lack of faith in men; we feel that they must be watched and finger-printed. Then how in God's name can we expect them to push ahead and meet the competition of the world? Let us have more liberty, not less."

Day ran for nomination as congressman at large in 1920 and 1922 and, though defeated, he carried Cook county both times. He ran again in 1930.

13 Republicans in Race.

All told there are 13 Republican candidates for the two nominations for congressman at large. Edward J. Hargrave, who ran as a liberal two years ago, called attention to a bulletin of the Harriman National Bank and Trust company of New York that the "real hoarding today is by the bootleggers."

George Edmund Foss, former congressman from the 10th district, is advocating 4 per cent beer, with a revenue tax to help solve the budget problem.

Campaign Notes

Measurement of the first specimen primary ballots delivered to the election board yesterday showed that both the Republican and the Democratic voting sheets are the longest on local record. The largest primary ballot in previous years measured 12 by 25 inches. This year the Republican sheet is 11½ by 32 and the Democratic 11½ by 30.

Since this is Good Friday there are few political meetings or speeches scheduled.

William H. Malone will speak at Clinton and Taylorville this afternoon and at Decatur in the evening. Malone headquarters announced that he was the guest at a Republican rally in Park Ridge under the auspices of the Seventh congressional district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs.

Michael L. Igoe was indorsed in a statement issued yesterday by Mrs. William A. Sauer, a member of the executive committee of the Illinois division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Dr. Mada M. Carlson, state chairman of the women's division of Custer headquarters, will be hostess to members of the Royal Neighbors of America at a tea for Mr. and Mrs. Omer N. Custer at 2 p. m. on Saturday, April 2, at the Morrison hotel.

John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, a Republican candidate for attorney general, will launch his downstate campaign Monday night with speeches at Decatur and Pana.

The Better Republican Voters' League of Oak Park has indorsed State's Attorney Swanson for renomination and Jacob D. Allen for clerk of the Superior court. Mr. Swanson also has been indorsed by the 42d Ward Business Men's league.

Judge Michael Feinberg, Republican candidate for state's attorney, issued a statement last night in behalf of the anti-hoarding campaign.

Charles C. Corso, a Republican precinct captain, was beaten by two unidentified hoodlums in front of his home at 2848 West Van Buren street, last night. He told police the attack grew out of political differences in the 25th ward where he lives.

HARTIGAN TELLS COURTNEY TO GET OUT OF PRIMARY

Says "Deal" Made Senator a Candidate.

Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan, candidate for the Democratic nomination for state's attorney, last night called upon his principal opponent, State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, to withdraw from the race. Judge Hartigan spoke at the 37th ward Igoe-for-Governor headquarters at 5735 West Chicago avenue. He said Courtney was merely a pawn moved about by Mayor Cermak.

Judge Hartigan is a running mate of Represenative Michael L. Igoe in opposition to the regular slate. Mayor Cermak forced 14 state central committeemen to indorse Judge Henry Horner, Judge Hartigan charged, and then he sought a candidate for prosecutor who would be acceptable to State's Attorney Swanson as part of a bi-partisan agreement.

Lawyer for Five Years.

"Courtney has been a lawyer only five years and in the five years he never tried a law suit," Judge Hartigan said. "I challenge him to prove the contrary. If you were about to engage a physician to treat some member of your family, you wouldn't call one who never had a patient, would you?

"Mayor Cermak attempts to tell all Democrats who their candidates must be. He has a man's sized job in running the city and if I'm elected state's attorney he'll spend his time in the city hall and not meddle in county or state affairs or I'll run him out of office.

"I was born in Chicago. I have been a lawyer for 17 years and a judge for 8 years. I have received the praise of the former Republican chief justice of the Municipal court, Harry Olson, for my conduct on the bench.

"On the subject of taxes I call your attention to the recent appointment of Harry Cutmore as assistant assessor. It was he who was responsible for the assessment about which every homeowner complained. But I don't care who is assessor or who is appointed reviewer.

Would Probe Assessments.

"As state's attorney I will assign an investigator to each of those offices and I will see to it that there is no fraud in the spreading of taxes. I know you are up in rebellion now over the confiscatory taxes.

"This is a political revolution we are now engaging in. Down in South America they have revolutions with guns, bullets and swords. Here we have them with ballots. You are the soldiers. Use your ballots on April 12 to wipe out dictatorship and bi-partisan deals."

ROB FURNITURE STORE.

Three gunmen last night entered the Amber Furniture store, 1820 West Chicago avenue, and robbed Miss Anna M. Johnson, 3226 West North avenue, the cashier, of $171.

CERMAK CHARGES STIR CAMPBELL TO DENUNCIATION

Canton, Ill., March 24.—[Special.]—Bruce Campbell, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, today stated that Mayor Cermak of Chicago had been told by him [Campbell] that the fight between him and Michael Igoe was endangering the success of the Democratic party in the coming election. Campbell said that he, Igoe, and Mayor Cermak met the following morning to discuss the situation, and that he had said:

"I told them if their fight went into the primaries it might endanger Democratic success in the fall, and suggested that both agree on me as the candidate for governor and thus avoid the factional fight in the primary. Both replied that the nominee must be a Chicagoan, and that ended the conference.

"Mr. Cermak has said that I refused to include in the 1926 state platform a plank for repeal of the state search and seizure law and that I only put it in when I was instructed to. I never made any claim concerning the authorship of the 1926 platform.

"Mr. Cermak also refers to my vote on prohibition when he and I were members of the general assembly nearly thirty years ago. The only vote I cast in that assembly on the liquor question was in favor of local option. I now favor repeal of the 18th amendment and local option by the states."

YOUTH, 15, SHOT BY POLICE AS HE TRIES TO ESCAPE

Leonard [Muggsy] Fitzgibbons, 15 years old, 5630 South Halsted street, was shot and possibly fatally wounded last night when he tried to escape arrest by two policemen who had found him in a stolen automobile at 52d and Halsted streets.

The automobile was reported stolen yesterday morning by the owner, John J. Cole, 3452 West 59th place. Policemen John McVeigh and Edward Piggott of the Stockyards police station, discovered the car and were in hiding watching for the thief, when Fitzgibbons and William Ryan, 18 years old, 1432 West 78th street, entered in it.

Ryan submitted to Piggott, but Fitzgibbons tried to escape on foot, running into a nearby vacant lot. McVeigh followed and when his commands to halt were not obeyed, he fired at the youth. Fitzgibbons was struck in the head and fell.

FOES FOSTERED VOTING FRAUDS, SAYS SWANSON

Replies to Charges of Leniency.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson charged last night that "vote frauds in Cook county were first fostered by the elements that now are opposing me." He made this assertion in a speech in the 32d ward, addressing a meeting at 1553 Milwaukee avenue. He said that any representations that he has been remiss in prosecuting vote fraud violations "are false and are a part of the campaign of misrepresentation" carried on by his opponents.

"Playing on popular prejudices, and dealing in juggled figures, my opponents have endeavored to blind the voters to the true accomplishments of my office in dealing with those responsible for the vote frauds," said Mr. Swanson.

Only Wild Assertions.

"In all their references to vote frauds these candidates have neglected to get down to facts and fundamental figures and have used nothing but wild assertions. None of them has remembered to tell the voters that it was through my personal efforts that Fred Hrdlicka, Edward Kotek, and Edward Kerstein were convicted of vote frauds and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary for their offenses.

"In the midst of their verbal gymnastics these candidates also have neglected to mention that my office secured the convictions of Sidney Nathanson, J. Stewart Robertson, James Hurley, E. J. Deering, Joseph C. McCauley and James Lorenzo on vote fraud charges, and that each of these men received a jail sentence."

Mentioned No Names.

Although Swanson did not name any of his opponents as the authors of these charges, he apparently was replying to recent assertions of Judge Michael Feinberg, Crowe-Harding candidate for state's attorney.

Gains of west side support originally meant for Feinberg were also reported by Swanson headquarters, where it was claimed that 18 of 22 west and northwest side ward committeemen are now with Swanson, going along with Homer K. Galpin, former chairman of the Republican county central committee and once close associate of the ex-state's attorney, Robert E. Crowe.

Introduced by Galpin.

Mr. Galpin introduced Swanson at a west side meeting Tuesday night, and afterwards "explained" to the audience why he "broke" with Crowe. Claims have also been made within the last few days that much of the Enmerson state administration support on the west and northwest sides is with Swanson.

The Swanson headquarters also made public a statement which they said traced the political and judicial history of Judge Feinberg as it is linked with Crowe. The charge was made that Crowe's law partner, George E. Gorman, and William Goldstein, "former legal associate of Feinberg," profited by many thousands of dollars in the settlement of the Transportation building receivership.

This example of the "benefits" the Crowe firm has enjoyed is only one of several which could be shown, the headquarters asserted.

"In 1927," the statement read, "three sitting judges, all approved by the Chicago Bar association, were left off a judicial coalition ticket at Crowe's insistence, since he wished to make places for Feinberg, then a lawyer, and Stanley H. Klarkowski, one of Crowe's assistants. The coalition ticket was presented to the voters with the names of Judge Charles R. Thomson, Oscar Torrison, and Frank Johnston Jr. omitted.

"The Chicago Bar association felt so strongly about the matter that it brought out an independent ticket with the judges' names upon it and also included James J. Barbour, long a state senator. However, the entire coalition ticket, including Feinberg and Klarkowski, was elected."

In the Transportation building receivership case, handled by Feinberg, according to the statement, Gorman received $13,000 and had an expense account of $60,000. Mr. Goldstein's fee was $25,000.

JOHN LA BARBA IS SENTENCED TO 2 PRISON TERMS

John La Barba, 25 years old, was sentenced to 1 to 14 years for assault to kill and 1 to 20 years for stealing an automobile, the sentences to run consecutively, by Judge Philip L. Sullivan in the Criminal court yesterday. Judge Sullivan characterized the assault as the "most atrocious crime" that had ever come to his attention.

The victim and complaining witness was Raba Clark, 3502 Vincennes avenue, a Negro garage attendant. He testified against La Barba in the car theft case on Nov. 9. La Barba and a companion had brought a stolen car to the Commercial garage at Superior and Townsend streets.

At night after the court appearance Clark, according to his story, was kidnaped by La Barba and three other men. He broke away from them and was shot four times. Then the gang drove their car over him, he charged. La Barba pleaded guilty to the assault.

"If the complainant had died I would have had no hesitation in imposing the death penalty," said Judge Sullivan. Clark is still paralyzed in the right arm from his wounds.

Girl Tells How Escort Died to Save Her from Attack

San Francisco, Cal., March 24.—(AP)—A terrified girl today sobbed out a story of how her companion, Paul Herman Hanson, 21, was slain by three men on a lonely road near here last night. The girl, Alice Olson, 20, a stenographer, told police the youth was shot in resisting efforts of the three to assault her. She said she eluded the men by hiding in a field. Police found the youth's body near his motor car.

The chimpanzee has been in poor health for more than a year and during N'gi's illness lay stretched out on the floor.

Beaten by Bandits for Loot of Few Cents; Victim Dies

Fred Brown, 52 years old, 567 West Madison street, died early yesterday at the county hospital of injuries suffered last week when he was beaten by four robbers in front of the rooming house where he resided. When he was attacked by the bandits he had less than a dime in his pockets.

SHOOTS AT RADIO WITH ITS CROON AND KILLS A GIRL

Miss Sally Renshaw, 23 years old, who roomed at 4866 Kenmore avenue and formerly lived at Sioux City, Ia., was shot to death early this morning in the basement of 5314 Winthrop avenue, which, police say, is a beer flat. The girl had gone to the place to visit her sweetheart, Frank Taggart, operator of the beer flat. She was sitting at a table with Taggart, according to his story to the police, when an intoxicated patron, whose identity he did not know, began shooting wildly at the radio, from which came the song of a crooner. One of the bullets struck the girl, who died a short time afterward in the Edgewater hospital. The slayer escaped.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AS TO MR. LA GUARDIA.

As a retort of injured innocence, Representative La Guardia's remarks upon a TRIBUNE reference to him as an alien in mind and spirit to Americanism leaves, it seems to us, a good deal to be said. Mr. La Guardia feels that our remarks were "libelous and willfully malicious," but his rebuke would be more impressive if he himself had not been engaged conspicuously in slandering, with what we regard as willful malice, hundreds of thousands of American citizens whose possession of what he calls wealth he would treat as something discreditable and penalize as little short of a crime.

Mr. La Guardia's utterances in the debate upon taxation in the house, in spirit, innuendo, and substance, have left no reasonable doubt of his purpose to inflame class prejudice against hundreds of thousands of reputable citizens who have acquired means under the laws of their country and in obedience to its customs and its ethics. Mr. La Guardia, with a gesture of noble indignation, reminded the speaker that "there are only two things that a poor man has in this country, his honor and his love and loyalty to his country." On that score we would say that these are possessions, with very few exceptions, of the citizens against whom Mr. La Guardia has been trying to inspire "passion and prejudice and animosity" for the purpose of justifying unnecessary and unjust exactions upon them. Mr. La Guardia is in a very poor position to resent any attack upon his conduct on the ground that it is intended to inspire "passion and prejudice and animosity."

As for Mr. La Guardia's notion that our charge that he is alien to the mind and spirit of Americanism was suggested by the vowels in his name, his Italian name, it is quite erroneous. Men and women of Italian name are among the best of our citizens, but Mr. La Guardia does not, we are confident, represent their mind or spirit. What in Mr. La Guardia's conduct reveals him as alien in mind and spirit to Americanism is obviously enough the mind and spirit he has shown and is showing in his attempt to inflame passion, prejudice, and animosity, and under that covering to impose exactions which he could not hope to enact without their vicious influence. It is not Mr. La Guardia's name, as we believe he well knows, but his public speech and conduct which justify the charge that he is alien in mind and spirit from Americanism, for not merely his proposals but his verbiage are drawn from the revolutionary radicalism of Europe and not from the mind or spirit of the American people.

Mr. La Guardia is in error also as to our difference with him on the subject of taxation. We do not differ with him upon the principle of a graduated income tax. We do differ with him on a graduation which is a device for taking a vast sum out of private hands and placing it in the hands of politicians, and Mr. La Guardia will search the editorial utterances of THE TRIBUNE in vain for any evidence to support his charge that THE TRIBUNE has favored or favors any system of taxation which "will put a greater burden on the great mass of the American people in order to relieve a favored, privileged minority." Our difference with Mr. La Guardia, as far as his proposals are concerned, is that he is proposing taxation which, as only ignorance will deny and only demagogy ignore, will put a greater burden not only upon what he characteristically describes as a "favored, privileged minority," but, as certainly as the rising of the sun, upon "the great mass of the American people." And Mr. La Guardia is as violent on behalf of this folly as he has been quiescent on behalf of the proper alternative for the revolutionary proposals he advocates, the drastic reduction of government expenditures.

But if this difference of opinion upon Mr. La Guardia's proposals is arguable among Americans of fair minds and devoted to their country, our difference with Mr. La Guardia upon the spirit he shows in this momentous debate is not, for it is a spirit alien and hostile to the Americanism of our heritage, and its ruthless exploitation in this hour of trial indicates, as we have said and repeat, the will to destroy that heritage.

The task of devising just and wise taxation at all times is a difficult one upon which the most expert will often disagree. There are persuasive reasons for and against a sale tax and for and against any tax on incomes and inheritances conceived in a spirit of justice and good sense and not in "the passion, prejudice, and animosity" of which Mr. La Guardia complains while doing his utmost to arouse them. But the malign influence of Mr. La Guardia and his coadjutors is a challenge to the mind and spirit of Americanism, as their proposal of revolutionary taxation is a blow to the confidence of the constructive forces of the nation and a threat to its economic, social, and political welfare.

INDUSTRY ABANDONS WISCONSIN.

Wisconsin is beginning to see the high price it is paying for the La Follette dynasty and its followers, who for two generations have achieved and held power on a political policy tersely expressed as soaking the rich.

The rich, in the Wisconsin instance, have been primarily the manufacturers, the employers of Wisconsin labor, and they have been soaked by taxation, regulation, uncertainty, and interference. The radicals have been in the saddle and their plan for the redistribution of wealth has been in progress.

The manner in which the manufacturers have been forced to defend themselves and the extent to which they already have gone has been revealed for the first time by a survey conducted by THE TRIBUNE in Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, and some of the smaller industrial centers in the state. Their defense has been the gradual abandonment of Wisconsin as a seat of industry.

This has been more real than apparent. The home factories, with their large investments in real estate and machinery, could not be moved physically, and, while there has been much talk of driving away industry, the smokestacks remained to aid the radical politicians in disputing the argument that their policies were crushing the market for Wisconsin labor.

THE TRIBUNE investigation has revealed for the first time what has been going on back of these factories. There has been almost a complete absence of expansion and investment in the state.

Gen. Otto H. Falk, president of the Allis-Chalmers company, has told how the political situation compelled the directors to change their definite policy of concentrating growth around their home plant at West Allis. Instead, it is now operating large factories in Springfield and Chicago and in La Porte, Ind. The Bucyrus Erie company, which for 10 years spent 76 per cent of its maintenance and improvement fund in its South Milwaukee plant, is concentrating its investments in other factories. This year only 26 per cent of the improvement budget is spent in Wisconsin and 74 per cent divided between plants in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

The J. I. Case company at Racine reports that for 20 years its total of taxes paid has been greater than the sum returned to the owners of the company for their management and investment.

George Parker of Janesville has explained that political conditions have affected the Parker Pen company so the directors no longer dare appropriate funds for the extension of business at their home plant in Wisconsin. The Bear Brand Hosiery company of Beaver Dam prepares to move its extensive plant away because a paternal state government declines to permit it to give employment at night to its trained staff of women workers, regardless of the willingness of these workers and their need of employment.

A great new building of one of the Milwaukee brewers, erected at a cost of millions and ideal for housing a modern manufacturing plant, stands idle because no purchaser nor tenant is willing to risk his investment in a state controlled by a political group whose avowed policy is to harass its employers. These are only a few of almost innumerable instances.

"Worse than the penalties imposed by the tax threat," said Frank R. Bacon, president of a large Milwaukee manufacturing institution, "is the definite effort made by the state administration to set up class hatred."

There has been a loss of many millions to Wisconsin's tax lists and to the state's labor market. The actual loss can never be known, because the deterrent effect on outside investment can never be estimated.

The simplest business prudence compels those who can move to do so and induces others to stay away. Those who remain must assume the tax burden that has grown doubly through ever increasing levies and the constant shrinking in taxable valuations.

HAPPY DAYS IN THE SUBSIDY STATES.

From the Yakima Republic: "THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has no cause to complain because the state of Idaho, which paid into the national treasury, as it says, only $723,000 in 1931, took out $2,632,000; nor because the state of Montana took from the federal treasury $2,700,000 more than it paid in.

"We have in this country a system of indirect taxation of which THE TRIBUNE does not make a note. Idaho and Montana contributed as much proportionately to give North Carolina its high rank as a taxpaying state as did Illinois. The disparity between federal appropriations for Illinois and the two western states is hardly greater than that between the largess for Illinois and North Carolina."

There's a bright dream for the taxpayer. He can support the treasury by sitting on the porch smoking cigarets.

WHO SAID DEATH VALLEY!

[Boston Transcript.]

From Los Angeles comes report of the discovery of a great cave in Death valley. To reach its floor it is necessary to descend 125 feet through a circular opening. A. W. Plummer, leader of a group of news photographers, made the discovery and says he intends to explore the cave. In the meantime it may be described as the uttermost depth of that depression in the earth which, during the summer months, is hot enough to suggest the orthodox idea of the nether regions as expounded by old time theologians.

Time was when the mere mention of Death valley suggested that idea. Here was a place at whose entrance, according to popular belief, might well be placed the declaration that all who entered left hope behind. If this was not literally true, it was believed that those who escaped the terrors of Death valley were the exceptions to the rule, even if there were occasional references in the news to wagons drawn by twenty mules transporting the borax found in this sun parched region. It was, of course, proof that under proper conditions men might live in Death valley. Stories of "Death Valley Scotty" supplied further evidence. But still it was believed that the valley was a place to be visited only by adventurers who were willing to endure discomfort and brave manifold perils.

And then Death valley furnished illustration of the extent to which popular fancy may run counter to the fact. The public read with surprise back in 1927 that a hotel was to be erected in the valley at a point where an artesian well supplied abundance of water, and that the "sink" in which a party of forty-niners perished of thirst and so gave the place its name was to become a winter resort. Marvelous scenic attractions were discovered there. Now there is prospect of the wonders of a great cave being added to them. Death valley belies its name. It has become a playground. What other spot of dread and mystery on the face of the globe will next be turned into a pleasure resort?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE QUEST.

(Mark xiv., 50, 51, 52.)

A YOUTH:

Whence comes this sense of loss
Which overwhelms my soul?
Long departed is the actuality,
Yet as here again I venture
I sense no faint recalling
But Presence so indwelling
I dissolve to tears!

A WOMAN:

Thou white and perfumed moth,
Thou petted of Jerusalem,—
Depart this holy place!

THE YOUTH:

He did not bid me go,—nor thee,
O Magdalen, from Simon's house.

THE WOMAN:

He would have no one nigh . . .
E'en His own Mother; only Peter
And the Sons of Thunder . . .

THE YOUTH:

. . . And why not eke Palomides,
The captive Greek and slave?
One time He told my friend:
"If wouldst be perfect,
Leave all and follow Me!"
In fair white linen vestured,
Locks nobly curled, fragrant
With Philippian attars, I . . .

THE WOMAN:

I would that God might fail
Such witness unto Israel!

THE YOUTH:

Three were there, fishy of smell,
Heavy with sleep, poor clods!
Let me be fair; drowsy was I,—
But sleep was not for Him!

THE WOMAN:

Prithee, what did He do or say,—
Didst thou, O Pagan, pray?

THE YOUTH:

If prayer I knew I could not pray
For sight of Him!
The beads of death upon that brow,
Those eyes all shadowy with death:
Sad orbs of exile far astrayed
From distant Sire Whom He prayed,
"Lift this Chalice from Thy Son;
My will asketh, Thine be done!"

THE WOMAN:

Came angels from the Living One?

THE YOUTH:

Came burst of thunder! Iacchus,
'T was not Olivet, but Citheron!
On tigers, lynxes, panthers,
Prodding with thyrsi, roared down
The wild riot of the Bacchanal.
The world unrolled,—a scroll
Writ red with war and ravish,
Famine and pestilence,
Widows and orphans' cries
Storming high heaven;
And each bold, sly sin that ever hedges mankind in
Crept on and over Him like scarlet lice . . .
It was a sight one's soul to harrow,
That Body red as murder-marrow!

THE WOMAN:

Pity, I have suffered enough!

THE YOUTH:

I ministered to Him,—
But ah, so brief a time left free!
Clangor of armor filled the wood,
The three who were asleep upstood
And flashed a sword and fled . . .

THE WOMAN:

Outdistanced by thee?

THE YOUTH:

Have done! I alone followed Him,
But the centurion's guard craved Roman holiday,—
Stripped me of vesture with a ribald laugh . . .
Naked I fled,—but back to hark
A bat-winged Thing of Chaos
In the dark.

THE WOMAN:

He loved Him. Forgive, Palomides!

THE YOUTH:

They say he was a teknon's son.
They lie! King-born, crucified,—
To whom but a god is fated
The cycle of such epic tragedy!
I know an altar in an Attic pass
Built to the Unknown God
Not even Phidias dared fashion
Or Sybil speak. But now shall I,
Zeuxis, flow cunning to my hand
To limn Him as He stood
There, but a stone's cast . . . !

THE WOMAN:

Thou cravest but an image. Why?
God is where we speak Him nigh.

THE YOUTH:

'Tis He . . . !

THE WOMAN:

. . . Rabboni!

THE MASTER:

Peace, Miriam,—did ye not wist
Mine is the eternal quest,
Whilst for all mortal
Cometh death . . . and rest?
Thy part is chosen wisely
And I have place for thee . . .
But thou, Palomides, that wouldst not look beyond
God's earthly Beauty; that in this Shade
Discerned not the Substance 'neath the Form,—
Tarry until I come again!
Such be thy gain and penalty:
Ever by thy quest of Beauty to be driven,
Ever of Beauty to be riven,
Till time ends and the last tide
Lifts up in travail to the troubled moon;
And thy brittle eyes, time-wearied,
Behold again the God unkenned
Of thy young days . . . !

CONVALESCENCE AFTER JAKE PARALYSIS.

WE may not have seen the last outbreak of jake paralysis. Dr. Emil Bogen of California says they had one hundred and fifty cases of it in 1931, "and no one knows where the condition will present itself the next time."

Dr. B. T. Burley, in reporting about one hundred cases occurring in Massachusetts, says the poisonous product was manufactured in his state, but the producers were careful to market it a long way off—at least, at first. When Dr. Seale Harris reported cases from a small hamlet in southern Alabama, twenty-five miles from a railroad, persons in Massachusetts little thought the product was being produced in their state and presently would be sold near home.

It has been proved that the poisonous ingredient in the Jamaica ginger was triceresolphosphate. At first the product contained two per cent of this poison. Later the proportion was greatly reduced, but not even this made it safe, since people vary greatly in their susceptibility and some are capable of being poisoned by very small doses.

The disease is a peculiar degeneration of certain nerves. Since it seems to prefer these nerves and to spare others, it causes a combination of paralysis, followed by shrinkage of muscles, that results in symptoms that follow a pattern fairly well.

There are other poisons which produce poisoning of the nerves, with symptoms somewhat like jake paralysis. Among these are common or grain alcohol and drinks made from it; lead, arsenic, carbon monoxide, carbon bisulphide, phosphorus, mercury, and also some toxins present in diphtheria, influenza, and beriberi. But none of these give symptoms that closely resemble those of jake paralysis.

Dr. Burley reports that nothing of service can be done for jake paralysis in the acute stage. Treatment resolves itself into aftercare. The affected muscles are first given complete rest. Then follow weeks, months, and years of persistent muscle training and redevelopment. For this purpose, when the paralysis is in the lower legs and feet, Dr. Burley recommends pedaling a fixed bicycle. Another device which he has found useful is a frame somewhat like the apparatus used to train babies to walk. It has four firm uprights, about three feet high, sitting on rollers. These are joined to make a firm frame, about 3x3, in which the man stands. He supports himself in part by his hands placed on the horizontal bars as he walks around. Swimming is good in that the water supports the body as the legs are exercised.

In mild cases, Dr. Burley says, there should be recovery in fifteen months. In moderately severe cases recovery can be expected in two years. In the severest cases the improvement should continue for more than two years if the patient is persistent and intelligent in using his limbs, but he cannot be completely cured.

YOU ARE THE PROOF.

Mrs. J. P. writes: I was a blue baby, and I have heard that they very seldom live. Is that true?

I am now 26 years old, have been married two years, and have no children. Would the fact that I was a blue baby have any effect on a baby of mine?

REPLY.

1. You seem to be proof enough that it is not always true, whatever the rule may be.
2. Probably not.

CURE LIES IN TRAINING.

G. M. writes: I am very shy and nervous. My face gets red when somebody speaks to me—even a member of the family. I guess I was born bashful, but I am worse now than ever. When I am working I never stay at a place long because soon the girls get wise to me and say I am crazy dumb. Am I really crazy dumb? There are lots of dumb people living in this country. Am I one of the dumbest? I have always a certain fear that makes me so unhappy. I have such funny ideas in my head that one minute I am fire and flame, and next day I laugh over it. Every night when I go to bed I say to myself that tomorrow I will feel better and act like a real human being, but it is of no use. Am I just a yellow coward, or what am I? Is there certain treatment I can undertake?

REPLY.

You have a personality trouble in which there are one or more phobias. You should be cured by training. Time, patience, and persistence will be required. No short cut will work.

DIETING OF NO AVAIL.

Mrs. L. K. writes: What basic foods should one include in the diet to get relief from nasal catarrh? What foods should one especially avoid?

REPLY.

You are betting on the wrong horse. Nasal catarrh is not cured by dieting, nor even benefited.

STOCKHOLDERS LIABLE.

Chicago, March 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Are not the stockholders of a state bank in Illinois liable to the depositors for losses suffered when the bank is closed by the state auditor? 2. Is it not the duty of the state auditor to proceed against the stockholders of a bank on their stock liability when the assets are not sufficient to cover the losses of the depositors? S. C. N.

1. Yes.
2. They are liable, but it is not the auditor's duty to enforce the liability.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEASE STILL BINDING.

Blue Island, Ill., March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two and one-half years ago my tenant signed a lease for five years. He was unable to pay rent as per lease. I agreed to reduce the rent $10 per month, no time being stated. Would this in any way affect his lease? Would it cancel same? L. S.

It would not invalidate the lease.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNPAID RENT.

Chicago, March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Being unable to pay my rent this month on my apartment, the landlord threatens to evict me if not paid by the 15th. 1. What steps would it be necessary for him to take? 2. Could he hold my furniture? Some months ago I made a loan on it for $200. Would the loan company have first claim? M. J. W.

1. The first step is serving a five day notice. After that court proceedings would occupy at least an additional ten days.
2. Yes; but his rights would be subject to a validly recorded mortgage.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BANK STOCKHOLDER.

Chicago, March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was a stockholder of a few shares of a bank. Am I liable for this stock, which was sold four years ago when the bank was in good financial condition? It has since failed. C. C. D.

You could be held for your pro rata share of debts that were incurred while you were a stockholder.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

SHANGHAI, Oct. 30.—The young empress of China, Yo-Ho-Na-La, has committed suicide. She was rebuked by the emperor, who slapped her face, whereupon she took poison. The married life of the young emperor has not been a happy one. He is hot-tempered and spirited and has bitterly resented the manner in which his consort was thrust upon him against his inclinations by the imperious and self-willed empress dowager. He was married in 1889.

HIROSHIMA, Oct. 30.—The Japanese forces which have been pursuing the Chinese north of the Yalu river at Antung captured twenty guns, many rifles, and large quantities of ammunition and provisions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 30.—Two important and significant Japanese victories are recorded by United States Minister Denby in a cable to the state department from Peking. The Chinese forces have been defeated at Chu Leang Cheng and have retreated to Mukden. The Japanese have taken one of the Chinese forts at Port Arthur. The scene of the first engagement is just across the Yalu river in Manchuria, and it marks the first real aggressive movement by the Japanese on Chinese soil. Inasmuch as the capture of Port Arthur would result in giving Japan the control of the Gulf of Pe Che Li and cut off the Chinese capital from connection with the sea, it is believed the Japanese will make a most determined effort to capture the fortress. The belief is they are prepared to do this even if it involves a long siege and a winter campaign.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 25, 1904.

TOKIO.—The Japanese fleet renewed the attempt to block up the entrance to Port Arthur harbor on the night of March 22. Sixteen warships escorted seven merchant steamers to the mouth of the harbor. Under cover of the bombardment the steamers ran in and were sunk by their crews in desired positions. Details have not yet been received. No fewer than 3,000 Japanese officers and bluejackets volunteered for the duty of manning the steamers destined to block Port Arthur.

LONDON.—The circumstantial report from Tokio that the Japanese succeeded in bottling up Port Arthur on the night of March 22 is not confirmed from any other quarter. The hills around Port Arthur are a network of wire and other obstacles to check any advance from the land side. The railway sidings have been increased and 700 cars are held in readiness in case a retreat is ordered. The western forts have been extensively damaged by the various bombardments and now are silent. One of the eastern forts also is out of action.

CHICAGO.—A storm of great fury burst over Chicago and the suburbs early last evening. It reached the proportions of a cyclone south of the city, causing death and widespread destruction. From Evanston on the north to Indiana Harbor on the south the gale played havoc with dwellings, telegraph wires, and trees. Three persons are known to have lost their lives at Indiana Harbor, and several others were severely injured. Large property losses are reported in Indiana Harbor, Hammond, and East Chicago.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 25, 1916.

MEXICO CITY.—Villa is surrounded and cannot possibly escape, according to a message received tonight by the minister of war from Gen. Luis Gutierrez. The message adds that Gen. Gutierrez's troops are spread out fanshape in front of Namiquipa and that the general has divided his forces into four commands, under Gen. Benjamin Garza, Gen. F. Cabasos, Col. Hernandez, and Col. Cano, for the purpose of hemming in Villa and his followers from the four points of the compass. The forces of Gen. Gutierrez have been for several hours in contact with the outposts of the Villa party.

SAN ANTONIO.—Gen. Pershing's report to Gen. Funston that two columns of his expeditionary force were in the vicinity of Namiquipa, 120 miles southeast of Casas Grandes, and repeated reports from Mexican sources that Villa with a comparatively small force had been forced to a stand at El Oso, near there, caused officers here to expect news at any time of a battle.

EL PASO.—Two companies of the Seventh infantry were ordered to report to police headquarters. All information regarding the order was refused by police and military officials. Previously the sheriff had appealed to the governor for state militia, saying conditions on the border demanded a guard.

LONDON.—One Danish and three British ships, one of them flying the French flag and having on board thirty Americans, were U-boat victims during the last 24 hours. Three of the vessels were sunk, but the steamer with the Americans on board was towed into a French port.

SCHOOL ECONOMIES.

Chicago, March 22.—I was very glad to read in THE TRIBUNE of March 18 the statement made by Dean Edmundson of the school of education, Ann Arbor, Mich.: "It is up to you educational leaders to decide whether you will determine the future of the public schools, or force business men and taxpayers to step in. Standardization of education may be going too far—there is danger of the machine running us, not we the machine." Also the statement of President Harry W. Chase of the University of Illinois when he told the educators "that they must accept the burden of economic readjustment or the whole scholastic system would be endangered."

This is exactly what we need in Chicago if we are to run our schools efficiently on revenue receivable. The board of education has cut the 1932 budget $18,000,000. I have no doubt they worked hard to do a good job, as good a job as could be done when no comprehensive plan to meet the educational needs of the children on income receivable was presented to them.

Mr. McJunkin is rendering a service to the public by giving them some idea as to the kind of supplies the taxpayers' money is spent for and the cost of those supplies. On the other hand if we are going to continue in our schools the activities that make these supplies necessary where are we getting? There is no economy in budgeting for the activity and then cutting out the supplies or equipment necessary to carry it on.

If our responsible educational leaders will not recognize facts or face the situation with truth and understanding in regard to our public schools and present a program for our schools that will make for the best kind of elementary training and as much secondary training as our income will allow, then the citizens' committee should not hesitate to outline the economies necessary in order that our schools may continue and our teachers and other school employés be paid regularly and in cash.

MRS. HARVEY A. TYLER.

DICK TRACY.

Chicago, March 22.—It was with great pleasure that I saw the advent of Dick Tracy to THE DAILY TRIBUNE. Cartoonist Chester Gould is to be congratulated upon his clean humor and his expression of the human interest element in his drawings. I have enjoyed his comics in the Sunday section and hope they will continue in the daily also.

LESTER E. FINCKLE.

AN OUTRAGE.

Chicago, March 22.—A vacant lot which I owned has just been sold for taxes. The city owes me—a school teacher—over six times the amount I owe the city, yet they sold the lot and I must pay 12 per cent to redeem it. The city will not pay me 6 per cent on what it owes me, not to mention the high interest I have to pay on money borrowed for life's necessities while trying to keep going until the board of education decides to pay us. The injustice of the situation is distressing. What can I do to protect myself against this unfair procedure? A TEACHER.

ABSURD ARGUMENTS.

Chicago, March 17.—This wet propaganda of yours is getting my goat. Now it is charged that the kidnaping of Col. Lindbergh's little boy was due to prohibition. The fact of the matter is that the liquor people have laid every evil that has happened during the past year at the door of prohibition, except the Chinese-Japanese war, and they will probably get around to that a little later. The arguments against prohibition are so absurd as to defeat their purpose.

C. J. BERGQUIST.

IN THE SUBURBS OF MOSCOW.

Chicago, March 19.—Comrade, believe you me, your editorial "In the Suburbs of Moscow" is the most masterly exposé of this communist régime hiding under the robe of the Republican elephant that the season has afforded. More power to you!

MRS. CHARLES WENDELL HOLMES.

BROTHERHOOD.

Chicago, March 22.—Can you tell me whereabouts in Chicago or any other city in the United States the communist party or young communists or any other socialistic or communistic organization are maintaining any sort of relief station for the distribution of clothing, food, or funds to the needy? I hear so many young people from Chicago university and older Reds at public meetings talk so vehemently about no one having two rooms till every one has one and no child needing milk that it seems to me such warm and dynamic human sympathies must express themselves somewhere in something besides words. It would be interesting to know just what these advanced thinkers are doing for suffering humanity besides talk about a happy future and what Russia is doing.

All of the churches, which are so despised by believers in the gospel according to St. Marx, are dishing out the soup and loaves and fishes in the old fashioned way; so is the Salvation Army. The wives and daughters of capitalists are working day and night for charity and big business men are subscribing to funds. Is it possible that in a time when people are crying for bread all the radicals can think of is to throw stones? Statistics of generous and kindly activities on their part would indeed prove illuminating.

EVELYN MARIE STUART.

2.75 BEER.

Chicago, March 22.—The following comments occur to me regarding 2.75 per cent beer, which is receiving so much public notice at present:

1. It is probably intoxicating in fact, and, if so, it would violate the 18th amendment.
2. If it isn't intoxicating in fact
   [a] It is silly to raise such a hue and cry over it, as we already have plenty of nonintoxicating beer and other soft drinks on the market.
   [b] It won't give the kick the wets desire.
   [c] Much has been said about its producing so much revenue, but why should it be taxed unless other soft drinks are taxed?
   [d] It will only act as an entering wedge for really intoxicating beer, as it will be so much easier to manufacture and sell the really intoxicating varieties with a much smaller chance of detection than at present.
   [e] It will, in general, make the 18th amendment very difficult if not impossible of enforcement.
3. If the wets want intoxicating beer let them be honest about it and repeal the 18th amendment and not try to deceive themselves and every one else by attempting to get intoxicating beer under the guise of its being nonintoxicating.

RAYMOND WAITE.

CHEESE-PARING.

Chicago, March 20.—THE TRIBUNE believes in cheese-paring economy for expenditures of the federal government. All the roar about paternalism turns out to be an attack on the smallest part of congressional appropriations. Not 20 per cent of all federal taxes go for the services which THE TRIBUNE would slice out. Why don't you go after the sacred cows of interest on debt, veterans' relief, and national defense? Those three items take up over three-quarters of federal taxes.

ROBERT W. SHOEMAKER.

THE PRICE OF EGGS.

Sugar Bush, Wis., March 19.—Last week I was in Chicago, and to my utter amazement I found that the people were paying 20 to 25 cents per dozen for fresh eggs, while people around Sugar Bush, Wis., are getting only 9 and 10 cents per dozen for fresh eggs. Either the retail price should be reduced, so that the demand will exceed the supply, which would raise the price of fresh eggs eventually, or the price to the farmers around here should be more so that they can make something out of their poultry. LOESCH WARNS SENATE OF PLOT ON WILKERSON combinations now formed for getting men into public office turn very largely on the efforts of the criminal organizations headed by Al Capone to control sufficient of the elected public officials, party lines not cutting much figure, to get Capone freed from the penitentiary sentence now hanging over his head, or secure reduction of the sentence."

Backs Gangland Charges in Wire to Borah.

The honest and law abiding citizens of Chicago, the president of its crime commission tells the senate, "look up to the senate not to weaken us in fighting for our lives and safety from the most far reaching and powerful criminal organization which has ever afflicted this nation."

Regarded as Exposé.

Several members of the subcommittee, however, it is understood, regard the document as a startling exposé of Chicago's conditions, but not as proof of gangs' alleged influence on labor to the end that labor is fighting the Wilkerson confirmation.

Granting that there be "union men honestly opposing Judge Wilkerson's confirmation," Mr. Loesch concludes his statement with the warning that "I give it as my conviction that no matter what ground may be taken to defeat confirmation, if he fails of confirmation such fact will be claimed by the criminal organizations as a victory for them and for Capone, and will have a prejudicial effect upon every law enforcing official seeking to curb the criminal career of Al Capone."

Text of Loesch Telegram.

Mr. Loesch's statement follows:

"In reply to your telegram asking for facts to support the statement made by Col. Randolph and myself indicating to us that undercover work of criminal organizations and organized criminals are making it appear that labor is opposed to Judge Wilkerson's confirmation and attempting to influence the senate to refuse confirmation, I submit the following statement of facts for your subcommittee's consideration:

"1. About two years ago the Cook county state's attorney, John A. Swanson, organized a racket bureau to investigate criminal union racketeering and to aid the honest and law abiding union men to take control of them out of the hands of the known racketeers and gangsters. Charles J. Mueller and Charles E. Lounsbury, assistant state's attorneys, were put in charge of the bureau. As a result of their work the assistant state's attorneys made contact with and helped straighten out and supervise the elections in some thirty-six former racket unions and secured indictments against a number of the officials for embezzlement of union funds.

"Racket Unions" Cited.

"George Barker, known as 'Red' Barker, a notorious ex-convict, has now fourteen racket unions under his control. Large sums have been illegally taken from those unions by him and it is assumed paid over to criminal organizations with whom he is affiliated, since he would not be allowed to retain such large sums as were taken by him.

"The Newspaper Wagon Drivers' union was controlled by Jack Berry, an ex-convict and a notorious police character. The union was reorganized and a Mr. Orr elected president. He got more money into the treasury of the union in six months than was ever there before. He was murdered one night shortly thereafter on his way home. It was sure death to elect another local man, and so the International union furnished the new officers.

Charges Gang Got Money.

"The plumbers' union, one of the largest in the building trades, was dominated by Ruberry, Mulcahy, and Dapper Dan McCarty, notorious police characters. They paid themselves $2,500 every Monday morning, and so took some $200,000 of the funds of that union. Facts uncovered by the racket bureau indicated that most of that money passed to the Capone gang and probably corrupt politicians who were protecting the racket. Ruberry and Mulcahy have since been murdered.

"In the motion picture operators' union controversy, headed by a notorious character, nineteen bombs were exploded, doing great property damage, to terrorize independent motion picture theater owners into joining the union. The bombs did their work, for the independent theater owners could not resist that line of argument and had no means of securing protection against it.

"Ald. Oscar Nelson is the head of the flat janitors' union. All the political patronage which Gov. Emmerson controls in the north side wards has been turned over to Nelson.

"It is the opinion of Mueller and Lounsbury, supported by other men conversant with the subject whom I have interview, that fully two-thirds of all unions in Chicago are controlled by or pay tribute directly or indirectly to Al Capone's terroristic organizations. It can be said with truth that nine-tenths of the members of the unions are honest, law abiding citizens who pay little attention to union affairs because it is not wise for their personal safety to take too great an interest in them. Therefore the hoodlums and known criminals are largely uncontrolled and dispose of the funds without much knowledge on the part of the members as to ultimate receivers of the funds.

"Mueller and Lounsbury are ready to appear before your committee at any secret hearing to give you facts to substantiate the above statements and the connections between the racket unions and the corrupt politicians.

Says Adherents Are Senators.

"2. Two personal adherents of Al Capone are members of the Illinois state senate. One of them, Senator Leonardi, was convicted of conspiracy to murder, to kidnap, and other crimes in 1928, was sentenced to pay a fine according to the verdict of the jury, and paid that fine. He was subsequently tried on two kidnaping charges and escaped conviction, but the presiding judge sent several men to jail for from six months to a year for contempt of court in seeking to bribe the juries trying those cases.

"The other senator, Serratella, is under indictment for frauds charged to have been committed by him while city of Chicago sealer, prior to Mayor Cermak's term. One of his attorneys is in the lower house. Mr. Granata, a member of congress, a Capone henchman, was elected on the face of the returns by frauds so gross that the county judge sent a number of the judges and clerks of election committing the frauds to jail.

In 1928 I traced the violences in the 20th ward back to a conspiracy between Capone, the leading politicians and the police, the result of which was exposure and convictions of some fifteen of the conspirators, all minor politicians and hoodlums.

"9. The primary nomination for candidates for senators, congressmen, state and county officials and ward committeemen takes place next April 12. The ward committeemen in convention nominate the judges of the Circuit and Superior courts so that the latter do not have to be nominated at a primary election. The fight is for control of the majority of the ward committeemen and even if a majority is not secured by one faction, it may still dictate who shall be its candidates on the bench. If a criminal organization controls the majority of the fifty ward committeemen, it, by virtue of the powers of the latter, practically controls all elected public officials in the county of Cook, including the judges.

"As evidence of what is occurring at the moment, I state the following facts: In the Twenty-fifth ward there were six candidates of Italian extraction who filed their petitions for ward committeeman. That ward is largely inhabited by that nationality. On the night of the 7th of this month, five of those candidates were taken from their homes at the point of guns and forced to sign withdrawal notices to remove them from the ticket. Those withdrawal notices were filed with the election commissioners the following morning and their names were stricken from the list of candidates.

"The candidate who was the beneficiary of those releases and withdrawals is William Parrillo, a known partisan of Capone's. He is an assistant United States district attorney here. He has much to do with the enforcement of the national prohibition act and appears before the grand juries as occasion arises. If Parrillo is nominated as the Republican ward committeeman for that ward, it will give him the so-called liquor, vice, gambling, and political control of that ward.

Sees Move to Free Capone.

"It is my opinion based upon these facts and other indications that the combinations here now formed for getting men into public office turn very largely on the effort of the criminal organizations headed by Al Capone to control sufficient of the elected public officials, party lines not cutting much figure, to get Capone freed from the penitentiary sentences now hanging over his head, or secure reduction of the sentences. Pending appeal he has been in jail some five months but up to very recently there seemed to be no diminution in his activities, or in the number of people who called on him, night and day.

"4. A witness of unimpeachable character and high standing in this city will testify if called on that at a certain interview about a year ago Al Capone, seeking certain favors, stated to him that he had on his personal pay roll 185 men, each an ex-convict and a gunman, to whom he paid $300 to $400 a week apiece.

"This private army is the force he uses for purposes of terrorism and intimidation to control the beer, booze, and gambling privileges and for the intimidation and control of labor unions. He made the proposal that if let alone on beer, booze, and gambling he would police the city and guarantee that there would be no more gang killings, bombings, or spectacular crimes of organized violence.

"The same proposition was in effect made by an authorized agent of Al Capone to the then chief justice of the Criminal court, the Honorable John P. McGoorty, in the presence of witnesses who can substantiate the statement. Judge McGoorty can be called on to substantiate those facts. Judge McGoorty voiced his indignation at the offer in a charge to the grand jury.

"5. About four years ago there was great terrorism, including murder, bombings, destruction of clothing, and other acts of violence, in connection with an effort to force racket unions among the cleaners and dyers. That was resisted by the independents. One of the leading independents found his business so seriously damaged that he publicly took in Al Capone as a partner and there were no further bombings of that establishment.

"As a result of that terrorism and to secure some sort of peace in that industry, an organization called the 'Cleaners and Dyers Institute of Chicago' was incorporated. Dr. B. M. Squires was made the head and arbitrator between labor unions and operators and he is also sales manager. Through an accredited intermediary Al Capone sent word to Dr. Squires that for a price he would police the industry. The offer was refused and terrorism in the way of destruction of property has continued down to date. Dr. Squires is ready to testify to these and other pertinent facts.

Specific Proof Difficult.

"6. It is not possible to put upon paper an explanation of the subtle, violent or corrupt influences exerted upon officials or candidates for election and the police by the well organized and well financed criminal groups. It is not possible to present an obvious example of the relationship, nor show by documentary evidence or photographic film the operations of the organized criminals at the present time dominating certain labor unions of which I have above given examples, or the manner in which that influence can make itself felt upon public officials and representatives through the most respectable source. It is the hand of Esau but the voice of Jacob.

"I shall leave to you all inferences and conclusions from the foregoing statement of facts. I do not know from my own experience the subtle manner in which organizations, criminal or otherwise, seek to influence public officials.

"7. It is but simple truth to say that the honest and law abiding citizens of Chicago look to the senate not to weaken us here in fighting for our lives and safety from the most far-reaching and powerful criminal organization which has ever afflicted this nation.

"I am not suggesting that there may not be union men honestly opposing Judge Wilkerson's confirmation but I give it as my conviction that no matter what ground may be taken to defeat confirmation, if he fails of confirmation such fact will be claimed by the criminal organizations as a victory for them and for Capone, and will have a prejudicial effect upon every law enforcing official seeking to curb the criminal career of Al Capone."

GENE OLIVER FAILS TO WIN STAY AND U. S. FAILS TO FIND HIM

Counsel for Gene G. Oliver yesterday met with no success in seeking a stay of the former assessor's penitentiary sentence for income tax evasion. And the marshal's office had no more luck trying to find Oliver.

Attorney Albert M. Blum failed to get a stay from Judges Samuel Alschuler and Will M. Sparks of the Circuit Court of Appeals, but he said he would try Judge Evan A. Evans today. Oliver, according to the lawyer, wishes some time to settle up his affairs.

The marshal's office was notified in a telegram from Oliver that he would surrender on Monday, which would be too late to go with the regular lot of prisoners tonight. But if he surrendered on Monday the marshal would have to lock him up until the next shipment of prisoners, a week or two later. Oliver's sentence is eighteen months.

EVANSTON HIGH FACES CRISIS, ITS PRINCIPAL SAYS

Francis L. Bacon, principal of the Evanston Township High school, warned last night that the financial position of the school is precarious and that stringent emergency measures must be adopted if it is to operate during the coming term.

Enough money to meet only 20 per cent of the March pay roll is on hand, he said, and the teachers already have been paid twice in warrants. The financial stringency is occasioned partly by the fact that only $190,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants with which to run Evanston's schools has been sold, he explained. The goal is $750,000.

The high school requires $300,000 to continue for the remainder of the present term. According to Mr. Bacon, the school will not be closed this year, but the outlook for the next term is less encouraging. Unless the tax warrant sale is successful it will be necessary next year to reduce salaries, decrease the personnel, shorten the school term, and, among other things, charge tuition for all students over 21 years of age.

NITTI, CAPONE AID, ENDS TERM IN U. S. PRISON

Jack Guzik Gets Week's Delay on Trip to Cell.

Frank Nitti was released from Leavenworth penitentiary yesterday, the first of the gangsters in the government's income tax war to serve his sentence and get it over with. Nitti pleaded guilty and received a sentence of 18 months, of which he served approximately 14 months, with time off for good behavior.

Nitti is one of Al Capone's captains, and his return to Chicago will be accomplished at least six weeks before Capone himself goes down to the penitentiary for an eleven year sentence.

Nitti will not have to report to a parole officer, for there was no parole. He has paid his $10,000 fine, but is still seeking to compromise a civil tax claim of $275,000.

Jack Guzik Wins Stay.

Jack Guzik, another Capone gang leader, will not begin serving his sentence of five years for at least a week. Guzik yesterday got a stay of one week from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals because of the illness of his daughter, Jeanette, in Miami, Fla. Attorney William F. Waugh will have an opportunity next Thursday to produre affidavits in support of a plea for another stay.

Nitti's release leaves pudgy, small fry Sam Guzik as the only member of the Capone gang now in Leavenworth, and he soon will have completed his one year sentence. Ralph Capone, Al's brother, is at McNeil island, Washington, serving a three year sentence. Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, however, are other gangsters now confined in Leavenworth.

There was uncertainty as to where Capone would be taken to serve his sentence. Dispatches from Washington said Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, declined to give out the information on the ground that "to disclose the decision would defeat its purpose."

Other Capone news yesterday included the sentencing of Louis Prisco, the gangster's former chauffeur, to six years in the penitentiary for violation of the narcotic laws. Prisco's girl friend, Ruth Williams, was sentenced to two years on the same charge by Federal Judge Fred L. Wham.

They pleaded guilty after being caught in a south side hotel as fugitives and bond jumpers. They were fugitives for some time before they made bond, but Prisco got in a shooting scrape in New York and was caught. Capone is said to have kicked Prisco out of his organization because he was a dope addict, according to Prosecutor Mary D. Bailey.

130 FLOSSMOOR CITIZENS WANT DUGDALE CHIEF

The closed session of the Flossmoor village board called for last night to decide on the dismissal or retention of Edward Dugdale as chief of police, turned out to be an open meeting.

Dugdale was summarily suspended as chief on Saturday by Francis Hoyne, village trustee, chairman of the police committee, and son of former State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne. The charge was that he "talked" against the trustees. At a meeting on Monday, Trustee Hoyne announced he would produce Dugdale's accusers at a closed meeting last night.

The meeting was held, but the accusers did not appear. Instead some forty-five citizens, all demanding Dugdale's retention as chief, showed up. They presented a petition, bearing 130 signatures, requesting the same thing. Trustee Hoyne then announced he would need more time to prepare his case, and the hearing was adjourned to April 4. Meanwhile, Dugdale is acting as a patrolman. Trustee Hoyne is acting chief.

U. S. INDICTS FOUR FOR $35,000,000 PIPE LINE FRAUD

Parish Accused of Using Mails in Promotion.

Four officials and directors of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company charged in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury yesterday and Frank P. Parish & Co. were with using the mails in a $35,000,000 stock fraud.

Fifteen persons were originally under investigation by the federal postal inspectors, but the grand jury indicted only Frank P. Parish, of Chicago and New York; S. J. Maddin, Kansas City; Ralph G. Grandall, Chicago, and James F. McManmon, Chicago. Six of those exonerated had gone before the grand jury after signing waivers of immunity.

20,000 Buy Stock.

Frank P. Parish & Co. is alleged to have sold stock in the holding company, which also was headed by Parish, to 20,000 persons for as high as $50 a share. The stock, now held by purchasers in virtually very state in the union, is worth about 25 cents a share.

Parish, Maddin and one C. Stuart Shippey organized the Missouri-Kansas company in 1928, according to the indictment, two years after Parish, a former oil pipe salesman, had voluntarily gone into bankruptcy. The company started out in the business of producing and selling gas in Kansas City, but an expansion program was undertaken. The capital stock was increased to 5,000,000 shares at $5 par and 5,000,000 class B shares and the company was represented to the public as worth $30,000,000.

$35,000,000 Is Wiped Out.

According to Prosecutors Joseph A. Struett and Francis J. Kennedy, a steadily rising market was maintained from Jan. 30, 1930, to June 16, 1930, by the purchasing of the company's own stock. Large sums were expended, the government alleges, in maintaining of this market, and when the stock crash came it was found that $35,000,000, all collected from stock purchasers, had been wiped out.

The defendants allegedly spent large sums on an advertising campaign, giving wide publicity to a $40,000,000 pipe line project from Texas to Indianapolis. The building of the line was then in the promotional stage, according to the prosecutors, and the company was later forced to mortgage all its equity for the completion of the work.

Du Pont Interests Misrepresented.

The government charges that Francis I. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., was elected to the board of directors and that various representations were made to the public that the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company was heavily interested in Missouri-Kansas. The company and Francis I. du Pont repeatedly objected to this misrepresentation, the government alleges.

Parish is a small town boy who at the age of 35 has made and lost several fortunes. Born in Sidell, Ill., he quit school at the age of 17 to sell marine engine parts. He made a fortune in southwestern oil ventures and later headed several manufacturing enterprises in Chicago and Kansas City. The voluntary bankruptcy in 1926 was his second collapse, the first having been involuntary. But five years after it, in the fall of 1929, he returned to Chicago from Montreal in a 150 foot yacht, the Theo.

Bought Presidential Yacht.

Last November he was revealed as the real purchaser of the presidential yacht Mayflower, for which $16,105 was paid by "the boy wizard of finance." The yacht was sold to Leo P. Cole, an employé of Parish.

Parish is married and has three children, Lawrence, 14; Virginia, 11, and Frank Theodore, 3.

Crandall is a Chicago lawyer with an office at 10 South La Salle street. He was a vice president of Missouri-Kansas and secretary of the Frank P. Parish company. McManmon was a director of the Missouri-Kansas company and an officer of the Parish company.

Inspector Roy M. North handled most of the investigation of the case and the indictment was returned before Judge John P. Barnes.

TEACHER FINDS HUSBAND DEAD FROM CAR FUMES

Mrs. Colette McCullough, a public school teacher, returned to her home at 648 West 87th street with her pay check, the first received in a number of weeks. She was anxious to see her husband, Henry, a bank teller who had been out of work since the Bain bank chain collapsed last summer, for he had an appointment with prospects for a job. There was a light burning in the family garage. She sent her son, Billy, 9 years old, to turn it off. He ran from the garage, screaming. McCullough was dead in the seat of his automobile, asphyxiated by motor fumes.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

FIND TAMMANY IS A PIKER IN SCHOOL COSTS

Chicago Spends 90% More for "Business Rule."

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Tammany of New York—with its reputation as the champion municipal spender of the nation—appears almost a tightwad in comparison with the Chicago school trustees in expending cash for "business administration" of the public schools.

Chicago has less than half as many pupils as New York, but on a comparative basis Chicago spends 90 per cent more for "business administration" of its schools than does New York, according to data submitted to the federal bureau of education. The comparison is for the year of 1930, the last for which complete information is available on both cities.

Daily Attendance Compared.

For that year the average daily attendance in regular day schools was 967,971 for New York and 429,347 for Chicago.

Chicago's school attendance was 44 per cent of that of New York, yet for "business administration of its schools" Chicago spent 86 per cent as much as New York did.

New York supplied "business administration" for 967,971 pupils at a cost of $1,405,396, while Chicago spent $1,210,411 to furnish "business administration" for 429,347 pupils. With the expenditure of only $194,985 more than Chicago, New York took care in business matters of 538,624 more pupils than Chicago did. New York spent $1.44 per pupil as compared with $2.82 spent by Chicago.

Figures Collected by Bureau.

The figures used in these comparisons are those collected by the Washington bureau. The bureau's figures for "business administration" expense and school attendance in Chicago correspond closely to those given in the published financial report of the board of education.

At the Tammany rate of spending for "business administration" a term that has a specific meaning in school accounting Chicago is spending $570,000 a year too much for its business administration of the public schools.

The school trustees have authorized in their budget the spending of more money for business administration this year than was spent in either 1930 or 1931. As against the $1,210,411 spent in 1930, the board spent $1,232,740 last year and proposes to spend $1,240,366 this year.

Only One of Budget Items.

"Business administration" is the only one of the items in the $90,180,263 budget for this year. No one has yet shown how the board proposes to get the cash to pay the expenses which this budget authorizes.

On the basis of the average teacher's salary in Chicago it appears that the trustees are denying the pupils 240 teachers in order to spend the money on jobs in the "business administration." That is at the Tammany standard.

CANAL BOARD'S EMPLOYES WILL HAVE A PAY DAY

Employés of the sanitary district will be paid for the last half of December by the middle of next week, Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the district's finance committee, announced yesterday.

The money necessary, $200,000, will be obtained by sale of tax warrants to loop banks. D. F. Kelly, chairman of the citizens' committee which is selling the warrants, informed Mr. Woodhull yesterday that the sale had been arranged.

School employés got checks for half a month's pay yesterday. The checks, mailed Wednesday night from the offices of the school board, were for the last half of November. The pay day was made possible by the city's action in turning over to the school board part of the proceeds of a $4,500,000 tax warrant sale to banks.

Aviation Notes

J. W. Donahey, war time flyer, has been appointed manager of Curtiss-Reynolds airport at Glen View, replacing Karl S. Day. Mr. Donahey also manages the Curtiss-Wright airport at Milwaukee.

The newest development in high power motors for aircraft, a direct injection Hornet engine that develops more than 525 horsepower, is completing arduous tests on the route of United Air lines between Chicago and Cheyenne, Wyo., in a Boeing 40-B-4 mail plane. The motor has operated with great efficiency during the winter months, officials said.

A low wing, all metal monoplane that is expected to be the fastest amphibion in the world has been designed and is being built by Maj. Alexander P. Seversky, former Russian ace, now a consulting engineer for the army air corps. The first plane will be powered by a 420 horsepower Wright motor and is expected to cruise at 180 miles an hour and land at 60 miles an hour. It is being built on Long Island.

HEAVY TAXATION SEEN AS MENACE TO U. S. BUSINESS

Steel Executive Holds Old Law Must Rule.

Boston, Mass., March 24.—[Special.]—The law of supply and demand, continuation of the tariff and the menace of taxation are outstanding features in our present economic situation, and any palliatives of a destructive nature offered to ease the depression are bound to prove costly later on, Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation, today told the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The speaker drew a somewhat gloomy picture of the immediate outlook for improved foreign trade, foresaw the ultimate automatic control of production in this country, and envisioned a slower growth of the nation as a whole due to the decline in the birth rate and restriction of immigration.

Supply and Demand Rules.

"Time honored precedents in situations like the present," he said, "are worthy of utmost respect and new panaceas should not distract our minds from fundamental truths. We cannot rebuild the economic world over night and if we could do so it is open to very grave question whether we would make a better job of it. There are some principles which seem to be firmly established by tradition and to retain man's confidence. The law of supply and demand still functions.

"In the endeavor to find a solution of our present troubles many plans have been advanced, some of them palliative, some constructive, but unfortunately many ill advised and destructive in character. The latter, like the nationalization of industry and the artificial fixing of commodity prices through attempted stabilization by governmental control, invite defeat at their inception."

Warns Against Nostrums.

"Nostrums which undertake to interfere with the even flow of trade and the law of supply and demand will ultimately bring a severe penalty in their wake. Even if we could upset for the moment the working of this great underlying principle we would pay doubly for it at a later day.

"We would only postpone the inevitable crash that would follow. On the whole, the working out of this relation between supply and demand will be most effective if guided by the responsible individuals directly concerned, since their self-interest acts as their strongest incentive to rationalization and stabilization of the economic system."

Assails Mounting Taxes.

Regarding the price of increasing taxation, Mr. Taylor had this to say: "The extravagance in which we have indulged, personal, corporate, municipal and national, has led us into a state where the burden upon the individual to support this great, many stories structure of extravagance is one which we are now finding it difficult to meet; and, if my judgment is worth anything, it will be more difficult to meet as time goes on."

Mr. Taylor upheld the tariff and the need for its protection, characterizing it as the "bone and sinew of our national economy," and give it as his opinion that "if in a moment of fright we should tear down those tariff barriers behind which we have built this great nation, we would destroy our economic safeguards. Such a policy would offer no inducements for our products to flow out, but would encourage competitive products of other countries to flow in."

CERMAK ASSAILS JACOB KESNER OF TAXPAYER GROUP

Lists $294,384 Taxes Owed on Properties.

In his fight against the tax strike advocated by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, Mayor Cermak yesterday turned his guns on Jacob L. Kesner, vice president of that organization. He made public a list of thirty properties in the downtown district of which, he said, Kesner is owner or agent and on which the 1929 taxes totaling $294,384 are still unpaid.

JACOB L. KESNER.

Mayor Cermak that he believed it was significant that in the 1927 assessment, which was later declared invalid because of fraud, Kesner or his agents had been able to obtain reductions from the board of review on the assessments made by the board of assessors on 22 of the 30 properties.

A number of these reductions were for considerable amounts. On the property at 1-7 North Wabash avenue the assessment was cut from $1,659,098 to $1,204,488 that year, the mayor's figures show. Another 1927 assessment, on 12-14 Quincy street, was cut by the reviewers from $203,081 to $61,324, the list shows. The Cutmore scientific assessment the following year raised this to $133,585. The reviewers in 1927 cut the assessment on property at the rear of the same address from $181,433 to $58,753, according to Mayor Cermak, and this valuation was boosted to $170,411 when the old "rule of thumb" assessment methods were swept away in the 1928 reassessment.

Some Figures Lower Now.

"Another thing which I think is very significant in the light it throws on the sincerity of Mr. Kesner's organization in conducting a tax strike, is this. On a large number of these properties the assessments for 1927, under the old system, were higher than they are now under the 1928 and subsequent assessments. Yet Mr. Kesner paid his taxes under the higher valuations and now refuses to pay them on the lower ones."

Larger Properties Listed.

Some of the larger properties on the mayor's list were as follows:

1 to 7 North Wabash avenue—1927 board of assessors' valuation of $1,659,098 cut to $1,204,888 by board of review; 1928 and 1929 assessment, $908,137; unpaid tax for 1929, $61,385.

216-28 South State street—1927 board of assessors' valuation of $300,314 cut to $240,036 by board of review; 1928 and 1929 assessments, $170,019; unpaid tax for 1929, $10,456.

222 South State street—1927 assessors valuation of $780,054 cut to $610,534 by reviewers; 1928 and 1929 assessments, $538,515; unpaid 1929 tax, $33,118.

220 South State street—1927 assessors valuation of $780,063 cut to $505,024 by reviewers; 1928 and 1929 assessments, $416,903; unpaid 1929 taxes, $25,639.

520 South Wabash avenue—1927 assessors valuation of $185,980 cut to $170,980 by reviewers; 1928 and 1929 assessments, $106,860; unpaid 1929 tax, $25,639.

112 South Michigan avenue—1927 assessors' valuation of $966,725 cut to $637,000 by reviewers; 1928 and 1929 assessments, $531,587; unpaid 1929 taxes, $32,602.

11-12 South Wabash avenue—1927 assessors' valuation of $524,373 cut to $471,028 by reviewers; 1928 and 1929 assessments, $282,488; unpaid 1929 taxes, $16,775.

"The small property owners should know who is doing the fighting in this tax strike," said Mayor Cermak. He exhibited at least 50 other sheets which he said contained the tax records of other large taxpayers, many of them connected with the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers.

Fire Escape Burglars Loot Home of $1,450 Gems

While Mrs. Esta R. Nash and her daughter, Jane, were in the library of their three story home at 1320 North State parkway last night, one or more burglars climbed the fire escape to the second floor, ransacked several rooms, and fled with jewelry valued at $1,450. They overlooked a considerable amount of gems in Mrs. Nash's room, she told the police.

NEW CIVIL WAR MENACES PEACE SEEKING CHINA

Shanghai Armistice Parley Becomes Deadlocked

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, March 25 (Friday). —(AP)—Sniping between Chinese and Japanese soldiers near Chiawangmiao today added to an uneasy situation of armed watchfulness around Shanghai. Both sides said there also had been a skirmish between their outposts near Kating, northwest of the city, each accusing the other of precipitating the fighting.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, March 25.—[Friday.]—While the Sino-Japanese armistice parleys were reaching an impasse at Shanghai yesterday, China's central government made the first move to frustrate the rapidly developing independence movement at Canton, which threatens again to plunge the country into civil war. Developments at Canton were so grave that they overshadowed the importance of the peace parleys here.

The Sino-Japanese delegates met twice yesterday and spent more than six hours arguing. They not only failed to reach an agreement but were farther apart when they adjourned than when they began. The Chinese spokesman officially charged that the Japanese introduced and insisted upon discussing irrelevant and political questions outside of the agreed agenda, while the Chinese endeavored to confine their considerations solely to military questions.

Met Again Today.

The Chinese declared the Japanese introduced the question of a guarantee against future Chinese plain clothes snipers and also attempted to exact a promise from China that nothing would be done after the Japanese military withdrawal "to prejudice Japan's national honor."

Though the delegates will meet again today, Chinese official sources last night expressed pessimism, fearing that Japan merely intends to prolong the discussions until the central government becomes involved in civil warfare against the Cantonese faction.

In addition to charging the Japanese with time killing evasions, the Chinese insist that the Japanese military are openly preparing for a long sojourn in the present occupied areas. They cite the contract awarded to a former Japanese military leader for drilling five artesian wells near Nanziang, which will require a minimum of ninety days, and also the construction of many military highways at Woosung, Kiangwan, Nanziang, and Liuho, the erection of brick and concrete aerodromes and barracks, and the construction of artillery replacements for the Woosung forts.

Political Suicide Feared.

In this connection it was revealed that when the Japanese expressed their willingness to withdraw their troops to the international settlement, Hongkew, "and adjacent areas," they specified that Woosung was considered adjacent to Hongkew though it is actually 17 miles distant.

A Chinese spokesman expressed the conviction that Japan intends to gradually unfold terms and conditions which would mean political suicide for any Chinese accepting them. It is understood the Japanese delegates today intimated future conditions concerning the policing of the evacuated area which, if accepted, would alienate from the Chinese administrative authority the entire zone around Shanghai now held by the Japanese army.

Flays Laxity in Assassinations.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, March 24.—Declaring that no civilized nation could tolerate a "blood brotherhood," vowed to political assassinations, Giichi Matsumura, in the house of peers, today accused authorities of having condoned the activities of the band whose members killed Junnosuke Inouye, former finance minister, and Baron Dan, the financier.

The attack, part of which was directed at Lieut. Gen Sadao Araki, the war minister, brought from him a promise that he would see to it that young officers were not led into association with political "death bands" in the future. Matsumura was formerly chief of the department in the metropolitan police which handles Red activities.

Denounces Police "Impotence."

He denounced the police "impotence," declaring:

"It is impossible to understand how there could be a place in Tokio where the authority of the state does not extend—a secret world where the arm of the law cannot enter," he said, addressing himself to Premier Inukai.

Then turning toward Gen. Araki, Matsumura asserted that behind the blood brotherhood one of the "nation's bulwarks" was active.

"That may mean either the army or navy reservists," replied the general. "I regret that you do not think it important enough to say which."

"The man I mean [Commander Fujii] has since died a hero's death," said Matsumura. "Out of respect for his widow I have not mentioned him, but the facts are known."

$3,000 FROM GOLDEN GLOVE TOURNEY WILL AID HUNGRY PUPILS

A check for $3,000 was turned over to the Hungry School Children's fund by The Tribune company yesterday, representing a contribution from the proceeds of the Golden Gloves tournament. This will be used to provide free lunches for needy children in the public schools.

Ordinarily the children of the primary and beginners departments of the First Methodist Sunday school of Rogers Park are given potted plants on Easter Sunday. This year the departments voted to give the money to the Hungry School Children's fund. Miss Frances L. Swain, head of the household arts department of the board of education, who with a citizens' committee expends the fund, said a check for $20 was sent her for the fund yesterday.

Other contributions are listed below:

$25—E. S.
$5—Lawndale-Crawford unit, No. 98, American Legion auxiliary.
$4—Lady Washington circle, No. 15, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Students Praised

Machinery and machine parts, made by students of the Washburne Continuation school who are apprenticed to metal working concerns in the city, were exhibited yesterday in the Palmer house under the sponsorship of the Chicago branch of the Metal Trades association. Henry J. Roesch, director of industrial education for the association, inspector of the school, asserted that the work was highly creditable to the students and added that in normal times all of them would get well paid jobs in the metal trades.

CHINA'S FINANCE CHIEF ESCAPES ASSASSIN'S BOMB

SHANGHAI, March 25.—[Friday.] (AP)—Another unsuccessful attempt upon the life of T. V. Soong, finance minister of China, was made today when a bomb exploded in the garden of his former home here.

Mr. Soong moved out of the house on Jan. 23 and therefore was unaware of the explosion, but the 9 year old daughter of his gardener was seriously injured when she picked up the bomb, the blast blowing off her arms.

CHINA GOES IN FOR KIDNAPING TO SAVE AMERICAN

[By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, March 24.—The Chinese government agreed today to go in for kidnaping in an effort to save the life of a captive American. This course was decided upon when the friends of Charles Baker, a Yangtze river boat captain of Pasadena, Cal., found themselves at their wits' end to pay the ransom demanded in exchange for his life.

Lansing Hoyt, president of the Yangtze Rapids Steamship company, Bakers' employer, tried paying a ransom, but the brigands got the money by a ruse, and kept their prisoner. All governmental agents were helpless, because Baker is held in Kienli province, where communists have complete control.

Then somebody thought of a plan. Nanking agreed to try it. Orders went out to the Chinese navy patrol in the Yangtze to seize hostages in bandit centers in Kienli province, thus turning the tables on brigands. But whether the idea will work is yet another matter, for—Kienli province covers some 10,000 square miles in central China.

Woman Found Unconscious from Chloroform in Hotel

A woman about 25 years old, who registered on Tuesday at the New Drake Apartment hotel, 6352 Maryland avenue, as Marie Hall of Chicago, was found unconscious in her room there last night, a chloroform soaked towel over her face. Hotel employes broke down her door after noticing that she had not left her room for 24 hours. A fire department squad under Capt. J. H. Hoff revived her, but she was too weak to make a statement and was taken to the county hospital. She will recover, it was said there.

R. P. LAMONT JR. DICKERS ON MEAT JOB WITH STALIN

U. S. Trade Head's Son May Run Soviet Industry

MOSCOW, March 24.—(AP)—Robert P. Lamont Jr., wearing the ten gallon hat of the American plainsman, reached Moscow today to talk with Joseph Stalin, soviet dictator, about running Russia's cattle industry so as to furnish enough meat to meet the needs of Russia's workers.

The soviet government invited the son of the American secretary of commerce to look over the ground for himself and he came all the way from his 15,000 acre ranch in Colorado.

He would not talk about the undertaking today because, he said, he does not know much about it himself yet. He does not know just what sort of job Russia wants him to do nor has he talked salary so far. Tomorrow he will meet the officials of the agricultural commissariat's live stock division.

Will Study Russia 3 Weeks.

Then he will investigate the present status of the industry for about three weeks before returning home to think the matter over.

Mr. Lamont left Denver last month, announcing that the Russian government had asked him to take complete charge of cattle breeding. There had been considerable correspondence, he said, but he wanted to see for himself how things are in Russia.

Soviet officials want to raise the per capita consumption of meat to 100 pounds a year, placing it on a par with that of the United States, he said, but he thought that would take about twenty years.

Report Salary Offer of $50,000.

Russia has 35,000,000 cattle and 17,000,000 sheep, as compared with 65,000,000 cattle and 60,000,000 sheep in the United States, Mr. Lamont said. He indicated that if he could inaugurate a scientific breeding system he might be willing to undertake the job on a one year contract. Reports which he has not confirmed said the Russian government has offered him $50,000 a year.

Mrs. Lamont, the former Frances Kemp, the sculptress, did not accompany her husband, but if he accepts a position with the soviets she will go back to Moscow with him.

Russia Places Big Order in Reich.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUSSELDORF, Germany, March 24.—Russia has ordered 300,000 tons of rolling mill products from the German Steel Works union and has promised further orders for 200,000 tons. The German Tube union has received orders for 30,000 tons, of which 7,500 tons will be transferred to England under the regulations of the International Tube cartel.

The total of Russian orders to be placed with German industry this year is estimated at $80,000,000. The Germans have agreed to payments extending over 18 months.

WHEAT FARMERS CONFRONTED WITH RECORD SURPLUS

Holdover to Be Largest in History.

BY PAUL POTTER.

With a bumper wheat harvest in the offing American wheat farmers yesterday were faced with the prospects of competing with the largest holdover of surplus grain on record as a result of federal farm board stabilization efforts.

Artificial stimulation of production by holding up prices on the part of Canada and the United States, it was pointed out, now indicates that taxpayers in these two North American countries will be holding over three-fourths of the entire world surplus on July 1, the official date of recording the annual breadstuffs carryover.

Enough on Hand for Year.

Between the two countries there will be mountains of wheat on hand large enough to supply European demands for an entire year. The Canadian government, it was reported for the first time yesterday, holds future delivery contracts for almost a year's consumption in the dominion. There is enough wheat in store and controlled by the United States to feed its 122 million persons for almost a year.

The steady piling up of wheat stocks on this continent, since 1926 in the United States and since 1921 in Canada, was further accentuated by federal reports showing farmers of the northwest intended to plant 53 per cent of last year's spring wheat acreage, a figure higher than for even two years ago.

The report from Washington followed by a day the announcement of plans to secure $125,000,000 additional credit from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the farm board.

Canada Selling Wheat.

The competition of federally financed wheat holdings in Canada and the United States in foreign markets yesterday took a new turn. It was learned that about 100 million bushels of Canadian wheat taken over by the dominion government had been sold to millers and exporters by John I. McFarland, heading a special commission to liquidate the balance of Canada's wheat pool stocks from 1929 and 1930.

Yesterday Mr. McFarland was asked in Winnipeg to verify reports that he now held from 60 to 80 million bushels in future delivery contracts taken in exchange for the pool leftovers. He maintained a policy of silence which he said the pool management had adopted, yet declared the opening gun in the competition between Canada and the farm board in disposing of their federally financed holdings had been fired.

Canadian Sales Hurt.

"We had been selling some wheat from both Atlantic and Pacific coast ports and are selling some now," McFarland said, "but when the farm board threw a monkey wrench into the selling business in wheat it hurt Canadian sales. Why the farm board made the announcement I cannot understand; but it did no good to any one."

The announcement referred to was that issued by Secretary Hyde in Washington recently in which he declared that every effort was being made to sell all the farm board holdings possible. He was followed by Chairman Stone of the farm board in a denial that any "dumping" or sales below current market prices would be made.

How the farmers of Argentina, Australia and other wheat growing countries have seen their crops being sold while artificial protection was being given in Canada and the United States is shown in the table of mounting crop surpluses on July 1 for each year. In 1921, Canada had but 14 million bushels excess.

July 1 of—	United States carryover [millions of bu].	Canadian carryover [millions of bu].
1926	99	39
1927	123	58
1928	128	94
1929	227	130
1930	290	131
1931	334	140
1932 (estimated)	390	100

In 1924 the North American continent held over 43 per cent of the world surplus carryover. The percentage, it was shown yesterday by grain analysts, has increased every year until last year Canada and the United States had 473 of the 675 million bushels excess wheat in the world, or 73 per cent of the total.

As the new wheat harvest opens in Texas in May and June, it is estimated that the two American countries will be holding about 490 of the 680 million bushels left over from preceding years, almost three-fourths of the wheat available for world trade.

HELD TO JURY ON THEFT CHARGE.

Stanley Para, 21 years old, 4633 Laflin street, was held to the grand jury by Judge Freeman L. Fairbank in the South Chicago court yesterday on a charge of taking equipment from the Operary Laboratories at 7923 South Racine avenue.

N. Y. Realty Men Threaten Tax Strike to Force Saving

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—The city administration was warned today by organized property owners that it must curtail its expenditures. The message delivered to Controller Charles W. Berry said that if the administration does not keep its economy pledge drastic steps will be taken to force retrenchment. The warning came directly from the largest taxpayers in the city.

Officials of the major realty organizations said they would try to avert a general tax strike until Mayor James J. Walker returned from Hot Springs, Ark., but made it clear that they considered the situation critical and were demanding an end to municipal extravagance to relieve the burden on property owners.

Slap at Tammany.

The realty men struck at the very root of Tammany's rule this afternoon when they advocated an increased subway fare. "The 5 cent fare" has been the campaign slogan of Tammany for many years, and if the administration is forced to raise it, the wrath of the straphangers, who are also voters, will jolt a lot of politicians out of soft jobs.

The Manhattan and Brooklyn real estate boards declared they were opposed to such drastic action as a tax strike, but admitted that the actual inability of many property owners to pay their taxes might cause a somewhat similar condition.

Conflicting opinions were received when realty men were asked if property seized for nonpayment of taxes would be difficult to sell. A spokesman for the New York Real Estate board said:

"We have no general tax strike yet and can only guess at what might happen. It may be true that there is a dearth of tax buyers in Chicago, but here city property at bargin prices usually is snapped up. I believe New York will escape a tax strike, but if it does come, there will be plenty of buyers at the forced sales."

Payments Are Guaranteed.

At the finance department it was pointed out that tax payments were virtually guaranteed by the terms of the mortgages of the buildings. Most mortgages carry clauses specifying foreclosure immediately after tax default. The city receives its taxes as soon as the property is sold.

Independent operators, however, admitted privately that tax buyers here who purchased foreclosed property with expectation that owners would buy back the title might find themselves holding the bag. They said conditions had not yet reached that crisis and would not unless there was a concerted action to refuse to pay this year's taxes.

George F. Horton, president of the Brooklyn realty board, said the administration can reduce expenditures and that it should be made to do so in "this distressing emergency." Mr. Horton said such savings "should either be refunded to the taxpayers this year or held for the express purpose of reducing taxation on real estate in 1933.

Demand Economy Action.

The delegation from the New York board which met Mr. Berry, included Anton L. Trunk, president; William H. Wheelock and Robert E. Simons, governors. They said after the meeting that the administration had so far acted on only one of its economy pledges. This was to postpone new improvements.

They demanded that the city act on other retrenchment propositions adopted by the board of estimate, namely, [1] seek in every way to reduce the cost of its present activities, [2] to make new projects self-sustaining, [3] to seek new sources of revenue, and [4] to try to put some of the city's present activities on a totally or partially self-sustaining basis.

A meeting has been called in Brooklyn tomorrow to formulate a definite economy program to lay before the city officials. Thirty civic and business organizations have accepted invitations.

The New York Real Estate board has definite ideas concerning the steps the city should take to relieve the present financial crisis, but is not prepared to make its program public at the present time.

'Winter Funeral' Painting Wins Altman Art Prize

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Victor Higgins of Taos, N. M., was awarded the first Altman prize of $1,000 for his painting, "Winter Funeral," at the 107th annual exhibition of the National Academy of Design today. The Ellin P. Speyer memorial prize of $300 went to Ralph Hamilton Humes of Chester Springs, Pa., for his sculpture, "Wounded Crow."

Andrew W. Mellon, 77, Spends Birthday at Home

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 24.—(AP)—Andrew W. Mellon, newly appointed ambassador to Great Britain, observed his 77th birthday quietly with his family today. He arrived here last week to be with his brother, Richard B. Mellon, on the latter's 74th birthday, and also to arrange personal matters before sailing for the Court of St. James's. He leaves tonight for Washington.

GANG GUNS DEAL DEATH TO EX-COP AND BOOTLEGGER

St. Louis Pair Are Slain on Lonely Road.

St. Louis, Mo., March 24.—[Special.]—Joseph Colone, former Madison county deputy sheriff and ex-policeman of Collinsville, and Charles Bowers, a bootlegger, were shot to death at 1:45 a. m. to day by machine gunners, who waylaid them on the Caseyville road at Miller's hill on the northern edge of St. Clair county.

The bodies were found by a motorist a few minutes after the shooting. Colone, shot 35 tir es in the head and upper part of the body, was found at the wheel of his sedan from which both front doors had been torn.

Bullets Halt Flight.

Bowers, struck eight times in the back by machine gun bullets, apparently as he tried to escape, lay beside the road 20 feet in front of the sedan.

Time of the killing was fixed by a resident who heard the shot.

The motorist who discovered the bodies, Tom Riley Jr., son of chief of police of Edwardsville, reported immediately to police of Collinsville, the city limits of which lie a few hundred yards east of the scene of the shooting.

Sheriff Munie of St. Clair county, who took charge of the investigation, said he had learned Colone and Bowers went out together last night to a home brew establishment. He expressed the opinion that the murderers, trailing their victims, had crowded Colone's car from the highway and then carried out the killing. No motive has been established by investigators.

Victim a Bookmaker.

Colone was a Collinsville policeman when he was appointed a deputy by Sheriff Otto Hermann, predecessor of the present Madison county sheriff, Peter Fitzgerald. His brother, Louis Colone, dominant political figure in Collinsville and campaign manager for the present mayor, Dr. M. W. Harrison, told reporters that since Hermann had left office Joseph Colone had been "running a race book."

Colone was 43 years old and lived with his wife and two children at 613 West Clay street.

Bowers, 41 years old, is survived by his widow and a child, who live at 107 St. Louis road, Collinsville.

SPEED TEST VOTE ON DRY REPEAL BEFORE SENATE

Wets Force Action at This Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Senate drys vied with senate wets today in predicting that the senate will have an opportunity to vote on prohibition repeal this session.

Senator Tydings [Md.], Democratic wet leader, and Senator Bingham [Conn.], Republican wet chieftain, smiled in triumph. For they consider that their petition, already signed by twenty-five, requesting the ultra-dry judiciary subcommittee to report to the senate repeal and resubmission resolutions now pending before it, has been a victory in tactics and has forced the drys to bring the discussion on to the floor of the senate.

Plan Hearings Next Week.

On the other hand, Senator Norris [radical Rep., Neb.], very dry chairman of the judiciary committee, and Senator Blaine [radical Rep., Wis.], very wet chairman of the subcommittee, smiled in confidence. The drys are certain they will win any test vote that may be made on the floor of the senate just now.

Senator Norris, however, is willing for the measures to come up. And Senator Blaine announced that his committee will begin to hold hearings next week on three proposals now before it.

One is Senator Tydings' proposal for state option; another is Senator Bingham's proposal for repeal; the third is the proposal of Senator Bulkley [Dem., O.], a wet, for a similar repeal plan.

Tydings to Delay Vote.

When informed by Senators Norris and Blaine of their intention to hold the hearings Senator Tydings declared that he would abandon his original intention of making a motion March 30 asking for action on the resolutions before the subcommittee.

"I shall let the petition continue to lie on the clerk's desk," Senator Tydings said. "Anybody who wishes to may sign. Some of the wets are away. Bob La Follette will sign as soon as he returns. And J. Hamilton Lewis is going to sign. The important thing now is not that we get many more signatures but that the petition did its job. It will bring the prohibition question out into the open."

Dr. Starr, Former Chicago Professor, Ill in West

Seattle, Wash., March 24.—(AP)—Dr Frederick Starr, 74, for more than 30 years professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, was seriously ill here today. He has been a resident of Seattle for the last 10 years.

PASTOR RAIDER SCORES POINT IN TRIAL FOR KILLING

Palatka, Fla., March 24.—[Special.]—Earl H. McGaha, Christian church minister, who shot John W. Malone to death when he led a posse of deputy sheriffs in a raid on a liquor still in the Lake Hewitt scrub on Dec. 24, appeared to have won the first round today in a battle for his life. He is on trial charged with first degree murder as a result of Malone's death.

The attempt of the state to introduce evidence showing the course of the shotgun bullets through the underbrush failed when it was shown that the examination of the crime scene was made several hours after the shooting.

McGaha, who admitted his gun was discharged when he stumbled in the underbrush as the signal was given to close in on the still, made statements that if any member of the raiding party shot Malone, he must have done it, since only one other shotgun was in the party and that had not been discharged.

His admission was ruled as competent testimony, although the attempt of the state to show that the bushes surrounding the still bore evidence of Malone having been shot from a point where the pastor said he was stationed had so far been ruled out.

The entire morning session was exhausted with the selection of a jury. Thirty-three talesmen were excused before the body was completed.

McGaha's wife, who has brought his meals to him at the county jail since he was incarcerated following the killing, occupied a front row seat.

McGaha's desire to roam about the courtroom brought on a clash with Sheriff R. C. Howell, who refused to permit the prisoner to go outside the railing.

"You've imposed on me long enough," McGaha informed the sheriff.

"Hereafter you'll stay in the bullpen," the sheriff informed him.

BALDNESS IS UNNECESSARY

WELL, HELLO, JACK, HAVENT SEEN YOU IN YEARS. YOUR THE SAME OLD BOY - HOW ABOUT COMING UP FOR DINNER AND WE'LL TALK OVER OLD TIMES ?
THANKS A LOT, TOM I'LL BE THERE!
BUT, JACK, YOU LOOK YEARS OLDER! YOU'LL NEVER GET THAT GIRL UNTIL YOU GET MORE HAIR.
MARY, I'VE TRIED ALMOST EVERYTHING BUT I'M STILL LOSING MY HAIR TOM IS CERTAINLY LUCKY
TOM THOUGHT HE WAS GOING TO LOSE HIS HAIR TOO, UNTIL HE TRIED THOMAS TREATMENT, AND NOW LOOK AT HIS MOP OF HAIR. I'LL BET THOMAS CAN HELP YOU TOO.
MY HAIR WAS ALMOST GONE ON MY TEMPLES BUT THOMAS TREATMENTS SOON BROUGHT IT BACK. THEY'RE EASY TO TAKE TOO!

TWENTY years ago the man who found himself becoming bald was helpless to prevent it. He tried a lot of highly perfumed "cure-all" tonics which usually did more harm than good.

Today baldness is treated in the sensible, scientific way by The Thomas scalp experts. They determine exactly which of the 14 local causes of hair loss is causing your scalp trouble and then administer Thomas treatment to meet your precise scalp need. Your dandruff soon disappears, your hairfall stops, and new hair starts to grow on the thin or bald spots. Why be bald? Fees are reasonable! Come in today for a free scalp examination.

Short-wave radios, equipped with rugged 4-pillar tubes, get New York police-cars to the spot in time

"STICK 'EM UP!" The harsh words whip out like a lash, as the clerk turns back to the counter, package in hand. The first of the two "customers" backs slowly toward the door, holding the clerk rigid with the tiny, wicked eye of his gun. The second thief makes for the cash-drawer. A few seconds and they'll be gone—one more successful hold-up; another clean getaway!

They finish, and start out the door . . . but blue uniforms bar the way. A coincidence? A stroke of luck? Not in New York City!

A few brief minutes before, a neighbor glanced from a window into the brightly lighted store . . . and seeing the clerk hold up his hands, he ran to the telephone. Before the echo of his voice had died, the air was filled with radio-signals in code. A cruising police-car near the scene caught the flashing message, and sped to the spot . . . in time!

220 police-cars, radio-equipped, protect the public in New York. Day and night they patrol the streets. The messages come trigger-fast . . . clear . . . accurate . . . because they are received through 4-pillar tubes. For none but Eveready Raytheon Tubes and Eveready "B" Batteries are used . . . assuring dependable, flawless reception where a failure or an error might cost a life.

With 4-pillar tubes, they are sure that engine-vibration and the constant jolting of the cars will never endanger reception. Eveready Raytheon Tubes have the strength to protect their vital accuracy. Four pillars anchor their elements in place. All other tubes use only two supports, and are easily damaged in handling and usage.

That's why 4-pillar tubes will improve your radio. They bring out the best that's in it . . . put a new thrill in every program. Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of these accurate tubes.

BRITISH THREATEN TO USE ECONOMIC WEAPON ON IRISH

May Halt Imports to Line Up Free State.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—An Easter calm descended upon the Irish crisis today—a calm which is expected to last for a few days at least, and possibly until the Free State's Dail Eireann meets on April 20.

Eamon de Valera, new president of the Free State, has made his intention clear that his government intends to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British king, as well as the land annuity payments to England, and Great Britain has replied, insisting it can't be done.

So far as can be seen the next move lies with De Valera. This move is expected when the dail meets to introduce legislation translating De Valera's policy into law, unless in the meantime negotiations are opened between the two governments to obtain a settlement.

Claim Britain Started It.

Political observers, out of justice to De Valera, point out that Great Britain and not Ireland forced the pace. They contend that it was perfectly clear from De Valera's statements before and after his election what was his policy, but no action was contemplated before the end of April.

J. H. Thomas, minister of dominions, however, demanded a formal statement of the Free State's position from De Valera and he got it. It is said he reported this to the house of commons so as to give the impression that De Valera had taken the initiative. It is now evident that this was not the fact.

The British now seem to take the position that the abolition of the oath automatically means the separation of the Irish Free State from the British commonwealth of nations and in England many are now talking about the results of such a separation.

Economic Threats Voiced.

Doubtless there is considerable threat behind this talk, but the facts are that if the Free State should be deemed independent there is nothing that could be done in a military way that could bring her back, but it is whispered that there are strong economic weapons in the hands of the British.

First of these is the 10 per cent preference on Irish imports to Great Britain, which gives her an advantage over Denmark and Argentina and other suppliers of food. Secondly, there is the fact that millions of Irish, now living in England, would become foreigners and therefore ineligible for relief benefits. If they became destitute in England, they would become liable to deportation to Ireland.

Irish Study British Message.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 24.—The Irish government today received the letter from J. H. Thomas, secretary of dominions, in which he outlined the British attiude on the oath to the king. President Eamon De Valera met with the executive council this afternoon and an official announcement said that Thomas' communication was almost identical with his statement to the house of commons yesterday in which he stressed that the British government would not stand for the oath's repudiation.

The communique added that the council was engaged chiefly with economic problems. The imposition, effective Saturday, of a tariff of 33 1-3 per cent on agricultural machinery was announced. The tariff is intended to develop Irish factories, particularly at Wexford. Most of Ireland's farm machinery is imported from Great Britain, but the United States, France, Germany, and Sweden also are heavy importers.

It is reported here that in view of the new tariff the Ford factory at Cork will concentrate on the production of agricultural machinery.

PRUSSIA SUED BY HITLER TO GET SEIZED PAPERS

Demands Documents Be Restored.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 24.—Adolf Hitler, the National Socialist [Fascist] candidate for president, sued the Prussian government before the Leipzig Supreme court today, seeking a temporary injunction compelling the restoration of documents seized during recent raids on Fascist [Nazi] headquarters in various Prussian cities. The court postponed a decision, encouraging both parties to settle out of court.

ADOLF HITLER.

The proceedings today revealed that police had raided Hitlerite headquarters throughout Prussia at the instigation of the home and defense minister, Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm Groener.

Groener Bares Plot.

In a letter to the Prussian home minister, Karl Severing, written on March 8, five days before the first presidential election, Gen. Groener declared that he had learned through a trusted agent that feverish efforts were being made to secure arms for the Hitlerite storm troops.

"Great zeal is being displayed, especially in Silesia, in locating the arms stores of the reichswehr," he stated, adding that "the reichswehr has taken special precautionary measures such as to provide separate stores. Especially suspicious is the fact that where Hitlerite leaders in important places were not former officers they have been suddenly replaced by former officers."

Pointed to Coup.

Continuing, the defense minister said, "All this leads to the conclusion that a coup d'état must be reckoned with. Wilhelm Frick, Joseph Goebbels, and Gregor Strasser [Hitler lieutenants] have had their last chance to seat themselves legally in the saddle. Should the election demonstrate that victory for Hitler is out of the question then a resort to force can be anticipated."

LAKES TO GULF WATERWAY UNIT ABOUT TO OPEN

Ottawa, Ill., March 24.—[Special.]—The Starved Rock pool, a unit of the lakes to the gulf waterway, will be flooded April 1, government engineers have announced. This will open a waterway for navigation between Ottawa and the Gulf of Mexico. The dredging of the river channel from Ottawa to Marseilles is also to be started April 1.

Condemn Land for Waterway.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday issued an order giving the government immediate possession of some 240 acres of land in La Salle county along the Illinois river which will be flooded in the operation of the Starved Rock dam and pool of the Illinois waterway.

THREE NATIONS ACT TO CURB ACTIVITIES OF FASCIST PARTY

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 24.—(AP)—Baron E. Von Born, minister of the interior, issued an order today prohibiting all activities of the Lapua [Fascist] organization in Finland. A Lapuan march on the capital was organized recently, but failed when the government arrested the leaders.

Berlin Bans Nazi Meeting.

BERLIN, March 24.—(AP)—Gen. Wilhelm Groener, minister of the interior and defense, today especially forbade a proposed meeting of yound Nazis [Fascists] in Braunschweig on the ground that it would violate the recent order for an Easter "political truce."

Czechs Rule Out Swastika.

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, March 24.—(AP)—The ministry of the interior issued an order today forbidding the wearing of the swastika as a "dangerous emblem." The swastika is the emblem of the National Socialist [Fascist] party.

Flyer Lands in Algeria on England-Cape Town Flight

ORAN, Algeria, March 24.—(AP)—J. A. Mollison, flying from England to Cape Town by a new route over West Africa, reached here today. He planned to make a night flight to the Beni Abbes oasis, the southerly railway terminus in Algeria, whence he will take off across the Sahara.

CAPLIS SLAYERS GET LONG TERMS IN PENITENTIARY

Lawyers Clash Over Bribe Charge.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Mendez and Fred Szafrabski, robbery, sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary; Joseph Scott, assault to commit robbery, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

(Picture on back page.)

Three members of the robbery gang that shot and killed Policeman James J. Caplis in an attempted holdup of the Beachview Garden café at 804 Wilson avenue on Dec. 21 were sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary by Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court yesterday. The three pleaded guilty at their trial which was completed without a jury before Judge Kelly two weeks ago.

Yesterday's session in court was marked by a bitter verbal battle between Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler and Defense Attorney Barratt O'Hara.

The defense lawyer charged that the family of Hurlon [Jack] Burlison, one of the defendants, had been approached with an offer to free him for $1,500.

Gang Leader Gets 99 Years.

"The remarks of Attorney O'Hara are more than ordinarily hair-brained," declared Mr. Butler.

Burlison, who is 21 years old, was sentenced to 50 years in prison. Judge Kelly declared that Burlison probably would have received a lighter penalty had he been more honest in his testimony. Frank [Red] Freeman, leader of the gang, was sentenced to 99 years in prison, and Nick Bruno to 20 years. Charges against Marcella Royce, 17 years old, and Dorothy Evans Conroy, 16 years old, friends of the gang, who testified against them, were stricken with leave to reinstate.

Tony Pape, driver of the car in which the bandits escaped after the slaying, was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Kelly on March 18. Pape had been granted a severance in the case. The police are still searching for Rocky De Phillips, whom the gang named as the one who fired the shots that killed Policeman Caplis, and for Frank Piazzo.

Charge Arouses Prosecutor.

O'Hara, who is a candidate for state's attorney, waited until the sentences of Freeman, Burlison, and Bruno were pronounced before he made his charge. "I now state," he said, "that I have been informed by Burlison's sister that his family was approached and an offer made to free him for $1,500."

"This is a matter for the grand jury," said Judge Kelly. "Why did you wait so long? Are you attacking the state's attorney's office?"

"I challenge O'Hara to go before the grand jury and make these charges under oath," said Prosecutor Butler. If he made those charges outside of court, I'd break him in two." Judge Kelly remonstrated with the attorneys.

O'Hara was then taken to the office of Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse, where he said he did not mean to cast any reflection on the prosecutors. He declared that the $1,500 offer in the Burlison case had been made by a man named Casey. Mr. Rittenhouse said he thought the charge was "silly," but instructed detectives to investigate the matter.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In his speech at a Democratic meeting at the Hotel Sherman on Wednesday Judge John P. McGoorty did not refer to Michael L. Igoe. The statement that he did so, published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, was incorrect.

Shirly T. High, 2021 Prairie avenue, listed last Saturday by Mayor Cermak as not having paid his personal property tax and as owing $15,938 in 1929 real estate taxes, stated yesterday that he has paid his personal property tax and that he does not owe the other item. Property owned by him in the loop is under leases, he said, by the terms of which the taxes are paid by the lessees.

Indict Woman Bank Clerk in $30,000 Embezzlement

The grand jury yesterday returned an indictment charging Mrs. Agnes Steen, former bookkeeper at the Parkway State bank, 1950 North Clark street, with the embezzlement of $30,000 from the bank. Her bond was fixed at $5,000 by the grand jury and detectives were ordered to arrest her.

Louis Golding Pens Story of English Street

Tells 20 Years of Lives of Characters.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Magnolia Street," by Louis Golding. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

IT wasn't Mr. Dickens who set the fashion for long novels with hordes of characters, although most readers think he did. However, "Dickensian" has come to be the official descriptive adjective for outsize novels with a list of dramatis personæ which would make a life sized essay in their own right. "Dickensian" is the inevitable tag which will be applied to Louis Golding's "Magnolia Street." It is the story of a street in an English city where the working class live and have their being, one side inhabited by Jews, the other by gentiles. From that focal point the story trips about a little over the globe, always coming back to Magnolia street.

LOUIS GOLDING.

The years between 1910 and 1930 take their course through the five hundred-odd pages, divided into three periods, 1910, 1916, and 1930. Almost all of the vast array of characters span those twenty years in their lives. The result for the reader is a panorama that is tingling with life, as it is aglow with lives. "Magnolia Street" has the same luring quality that the long, complicated novels of Charles Dickens had for his generation [and for generations since then]. It gives the reader a "slice of life." Mr. Golding's slice is cut horizontally rather than vertically, however. Dickens did his slicing from the top to the bottom of the social scale. The lean larded with the fat was his idea.

Characters of Same Level.

Mr. Golding's characters are all more or less of a social layer economically. One of the families has seen very much better days, and there are gradations of the comforts enjoyed in the twelve little houses that line the tiny street, but the distinctions are rather those of race than of circumstance.

In 1910 the whole street could—and did—get excited over the fact that a Jewish girl was seen walking out with a gentile boy from the other side of the street. It was such a heinous crime, and the girl was such a nice girl and so considerate of her invalid mother that the street decided there could be no truth in the rumor. The street was united over the rescue of a small gentile boy by a young Jewish Adonis and torn asunder again when the Adonis failed to appear at a grand celebration and presentation party in his honor because the evening of the party was the evening the little boy's mother had chosen to make the hero her lawful husband.

Racial War Forgotten.

The racial war between the two sides of the street was entirely forgotten when the great war came and gave all of the fanatics an opportunity of uniting against the Germans on the street. They succeeded in ripping the heart [if not the actual life] out of the bodies of the "Germans." Magnolia street echoed in its twelve houses the sentiments, the horrors, the [few] joys and the resignation that filled the hearts of the inhabitants of houses all over the allied world in those days [and perhaps the German world, too].

And then after war prosperity came to Magnolia street, and one of its former children achieved international fame as the world's lightweight champion and another quietly became one of the great queens of New York Jewish society. And together they decided on having a party to which every one in Magnolia street during the twenty years of their memory should be invited. Part III of the tale is concerned entirely with the preparations for that party and its occurrence. Part III is, it seems to me, too much a business of the author's going about tying up all the ends, telling what happened to everybody, to belong with the really compelling parts I and II.

All Emotions Get Their Play.

Through the pages of the book all of the emotions stalk their way—love, hatred, malice, envy, tenderness, self-sacrifice, jealousy, covetousness, fiery patriotism, racial ardor. Fate does its ironic tricks, like taking the most adored youth of the street all the way through the war unscathed from the very beginning [when he enlisted under age] and then killing him in a squabble on a football field. There is a crime passionel in which a crazed man severs his wife's head with a razor and, unable to kill himself, buries his head in a gas range. There are two contrasted racial psychologies and the divergent mental reactions of a hundred or so individuals of those two races. There are memorable sketches of those hundred or so persons.

There is a luxury of word and space in "Magnolia Street"—the author is lavish with his pen and his energy. It has the same sort of opulence in its pages that G. B. Stern's "The Matriarch" had. It is the kind of book that gives readers a pleasant sense of leisurely vastness.

Daughters of Colonists Hold Convention Tomorrow

The eighth state assembly of the Illinois branch of the Daughters of the American Colonists will be held tomorrow in Marshall Field's Wedgwood room, with the Fort Checaugou chapter as hostess. Boucles Back in High Favor of New Season

BY RHEA SEEGER.

BOUCLES and hand knitted effects are back in fashion favor. Remembering all their inimitable though casual charm, the designers have recaptured the smart informality after days of revamping the old time designs, stitches and models . . . and the results are breathtaking! Dresses and suits of boucle will be the smartest of new models for spring and even summer day time wear!

One Chicago shop is showing a marvelous collection of these new boucles and if any faint indecision lurks in your mind that you wouldn't be interested you are in for a grand surprise. Unless you are one of the few shoppers who know the rather baffling beginning of boucle frocks . . . the first fact is this . . . two kinds of thread or yarn are used . . . twisted and knotted. When twisted thread is used the resulting dress and the manner of weaving is named, seemingly for no good reason at all . . . frill boucle. And, after the much more difficult sounding job of weaving a perfectly knotted dress with knotted yarn, the designers evidently were too exhausted to do any more than hurry it out into the waiting fashion whirl without any extra frill or name.

Chance to Get Smart Wardrobe.

Since this spring and summer will see the return of a lot of rough and rustic looking materials in use for fashionable day time and sports dresses . . . these boucles have arrived in plenty of time for the early shopper who shrewdly assembles a smart wardrobe while new models are new, and thereby earns the enviable reputation of being a fashion leader with a flair for the right clothes.

These new boucles are sold with a comforting assurance that they will not stretch any more than any other well knitted material . . . and as a further promise to please, should any models that you may buy wander, wishy washily away from the original boundaries, you can return it and at the end of two weeks it will be returned to you fresh and crisp, back from a resizing session at the shop where it was made.

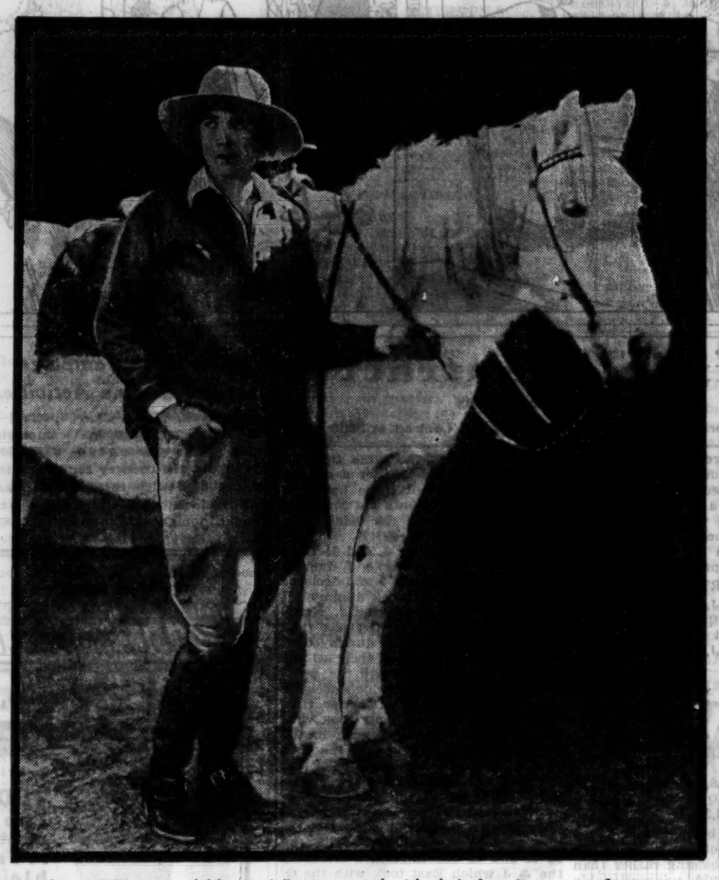
One piece dresses go in for large meshed blouse tops and closely woven skirts . . . necklines are as varied and as interesting as similar smart necklines in silk and woolen frocks . . . you can choose either a simple rounded neck or a long slender V or a vastly becoming cowl effect or the smart surplice closing. Some models have the surplice closings accented with narrow ruffled frills, also woven in the same manner as the dress.

Castumes for Street Wear.

Two piece costumes are splendid models for street wear . . . they are so designed that you can vary their chic with colored scarfs and belts. Three piece suites are the hits of the collection . . . stunning affairs with color combinations that will make you gasp with pleasure . . . for instance, a bachelor button blue colored skirt and short coat with a creamy white short sleeved blouse . . . this blouse with good looking designs woven in lipstick red and pale green. Other color combinations feature brown color schemes contrasted with coral and gold.

New colors are used for all these new boucle costumes . . . intriguing names that you will not forget . . . dale green, tropic sun, bluette, and beige rose . . . and when you see them you will probably decide that you must have two or three models for the new prices are but a fraction of what you paid a few years ago for exactly the same kind of wearable and practical and exceedingly smart knitted clothes.

From an Arizona Ranch



Mrs. James Minotto and Idamay Minotto posed with their favorite mounts for our camera man on their ranch, the Z Triangle, at Kirkland, Ariz., where the Minottos spend part of every year. They divide their time in the west between the ranch and their Phoenix house, and they usually spend the summers at Westleigh, in Lake Forest, the residence of Mrs. Minotto's father, Louis F. Swift. Idamay is becoming quite an adept at roping and bulldogging steers and her mother particularly delights in that grand old sport of "roundin' up the cattle."

Mere Beauty Not Enough to Keep Masculine Minds Fascinated

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The plaint now is that feminine attractiveness as a marketable stock is down about where certain of our other formerly sought after stocks landed—and for the same reason, overproduction.

Rumor further suggests that there is a hankering after the good old days when the pretty sister was the natural born cock of the walk. If there is any truth to the hankering, you may be sure that it isn't women who are indulging in it. It's the other half of the warring sexes. You name 'em, sisters. I hate to be always belittlin' Mammas' Bad Boys.

It appears men have a case which tends to temper my mercy! A case against this pretty girl overproduction. Their case isn't working hard to keep the pretty darlings in the clothes that help their prettiness; nor has it anything to do with the money spent for hair primpings, cosmetics, dancing, and reducing courses.

The trouble, as insinuated by Miss Gretta Palmer, a clever observer on one of our metropolitan dailies, is that the gentlemen simply have not the time to devote to the girls all dressed up and wanting some place to go. They're too deeply engrossed in business to give over hours to appreciation of all this feminine beautifying. Rumor's worst blow is the suggestion that there are more attractive women today than there are men with a desire to be attracted.

Now, there is a way to get around this crisis, if it is true. It is to make oneself indispensable in other ways, not to rely entirely on clothes and rouge and wave. Keep them up to the high standard now observed, but realize that style and chic and groominf are wide open commodities. They can be had on simple salaries, on moderate incomes. Let these things be accepted for the ordinary necessities they are today.

And then ask—where do we go from here, girls? Would a few neat little household virtues help? Would a more promising mental companionship help our cases any? What can we do to give solidity to this universal prettiness to make it more attractive to man?

Behavior Study in Public Schools Is Lecture Topic

Yale Professor Gives Address at Goethe Celebration

WEIMAR, Germany, March 24.—(AP)—Today's highlight in the Goethe week celebrations here was an address by Prof. Karl Schreiber of Yale on "Goethe and the United States."

Prof. Schreiber traced American culture from the outset, explaining the difficulty that Goethe's free and unbounded spirit had in entering into the thoughts of a people with America's Puritan heritage of church, state, and righteous living.

The speaker said Goethe was not easily accepted by a slowly evolving civilization retarded by five wars in its first century.

"But Goethe's spirit, his boundless meditations on the highest things, his great honesty toward himself and natural laws, and his lofty conception of man has slowly found sure entrance and welcome there," he said.

The speaker said Emerson had appreciated the real meaning of the Goethean spirit and that in the last five decades America had made real progress in development of its value. He said "Faust," when it was staged in the nineties, ran a close second to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" as the most popular play in America.

Doris Counsels Worms to Turn and Turn Hard

Otherwise They'll Be Trod Upon.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In the course of human contacts there comes a time when the law of self-preservation may have to be enforced—with a bang. That is, where an overbearing individual tries to reduce another individual to a state of total nonentity.

In married relationships you find this kind of teaming up. The strong minded, domineering male and the aim-to-please-at-all-cost, timid little woman. Just as often you see the situation reversed, the woman being the one in need of being barked back at every now and then.

Let's take a concrete case. In this one, it so happens, the man is the one carrying the big boss baton. The devoted darling he married years ago entered matrimony with the idea that the only thing that mattered was trying to be and do just what her husband wished. A noble idea, too, providing you're wise enough to take on a man whose wishes are reasonable. But this one never has been reasonable, and the older he gets the more tyrannical he becomes.

In the smallest things he orders and expects prompt execution. The woman can't do this. She can't do that. She cannot have friends. He doesn't want them. She can stay home from the movies, too, because he doesn't like them. Everything the poor woman does now offends. Even to her appearance, the way she talks, et cetera.

And she, misguided one, continues trying to please. What she should do is to stand right up on her hind legs and let out a few piercing blasts. Scare the bully to death with a scene. Throw a few brickbats at him. Muss up things around the house, just to show she has a little authority, too. Not that we expect this type will ever do it! But continuing trying to please n the pitifully abject manner is simply going to make a better football to kick around.

No? There comes a time in the affairs of men and women when the meek one has to find her pedal bearings and stand firmly on them. It's the only way respect can be recovered. You can't go on taking it on the chin till there's no chin left. When you feel some one in the family is bearing down too heavily on you you've simply got to gather what reserves you have left and hit back—with a wallop!

Draw Lots to Pick Winner of Chopin Music Contest

WARSAW, Poland, March 24.—(AP)—Two young pianists, one of them blind, played so brilliantly in the quintennial Chopin musical competition here during the last two weeks that the judges were unable to choose between them and the winner was decided by lot. Alexander Uninskii, 22, a Russian emigre living in Paris, won the draw from Imre Ungar, 23, a blind Hungarian. Eighteen countries were represented, including the United States, whose entry was Salvatore Sullo.

Straws Indicate Which Way Hat Style Is Blowing

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The thousands of new spring hats that French milliners are showing reveal clearly the demise of the felt hat and the omnipresence of the straw. Ninety hats out of a hundred are made of straw, and there are straws for every taste and occasion. Coarse straw, lacquered with colored varnish or with mother-of-pearl, is going to be chic, indeed. Leghorn, milan, picot, and bengale are four familiar straws that are used by all Paris milliners, and there are heaps of new synthetic straws, some of which imitate materials like shantung. Most straws are shiny, though a few are dull.

Among the smartest dull straws is leghorn, and it is the straw that makes the new Mado hat shown in profile at the top of our sketch. This hat silhouette is the high-in-the-back line that is an outstanding feature of French millinery fashions. The brim dips down in front, and in back is double, with one part turned up and the other down. Between the two is a garland of raffia flowers. The hat and its flowers are yellow beige in color.

Below is sketched another smart hat from Mado, a small hat of black milan straw, Spanish in its inspiration. The roll brim is split in front and back to show plaid organdy ribbon. At the left side is a bandeau made of the same organdy ribbon with a bow behind the ear. This hat is worn tilted over the right eye, as shown.

School Benefit.

Sisters of St. Dominic, in charge of Our Lady of Grace school, 2455 North Hamlin avenue, will benefit by the proceeds of a post-Easter party to be held Wednesday evening in the Gold and Florentine rooms of the Congress hotel, under the leadership of Mrs. James Walsh, 2517 Smalley court, and Mrs. William McMullin, 3719 Altgeld street.

Suburbs Enjoy Popular Wave of Sleigh Rides

Many Take Advantage of Snowfall.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE heavy snow made sleigh rides "the rage" in all the suburban communities around Chicago this week and any number of impromptu parties [parties dependent upon the weather cannot be anything but impromptu] have taken place during the last few days north, south and west of the city.

Out in Lake Forest Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Isaacs had a jolly party Tuesday night with an old fashioned sleigh in which hay and blankets added to the comfort. But it really doesn't matter much whether a sleigh is comfortable or not, for everybody always runs, or skis, or rides a sled behind the sleigh at all the sleighing parties I've ever been on. The party, numbering about 20, returned to the Isaacs house on Green Bay road for refreshments after the ride.

Mrs. Kingman Douglass gave a party for her eight year old son, Kingman Jr., Wednesday afternoon, taking 15 of his schoolmates sleighing, and that same afternoon Mrs. McPherson Holt took 50 boys from Arden Shore for a ride.

Many Call on New Colt.

I'm told that June and her new baby, Patrick, are probably the most "called upon" beings in Lake Forest these days, and that Ed, the riding master at the Onwentsia stables, has to be as stern as any fashionable obstetrician about not letting the new mother have too many visitors. June is 8 year old Isabelle Curtis' pony and Patrick is June's colt that was born on St. Patrick's day.

Isabelle's mother, Mrs. Edwin C. Welch, tells me that she and her husband have no plans for the spring and summer except to spend week-ends on their farm west of Antioch on the Fox river. Her mother and sister, Mrs. Alfred Landon Baker and Miss Mary Landon Baker, who are living in an old palazzo in Venice, have taken a villa facing the Forum in Rome for 6 weeks and are enjoying the Easter season in that interesting old city. They will return to Venice when their Roman holiday is finished and will go to England in June for part of the London season.

London Society Is Gay Again.

From London, by the way, comes a letter with the news that London is becoming gay again after a quiet and rather dreary winter. There are to be four courts as usual and a royal garden party during the season. Londoners had feared that since the king had given up, voluntarily, a quarter of a million dollars of his government grant, that perhaps royal entertaining would be cut, but by the exercise of the most rigid economy throughout the royal household the London season will progress with its usual royal functions.

Lady Burney, the Chicago wife of Sir Dennistoun Burney and one of the loveliest hostesses of London, gave a tea party recently at her Carlton House terrace residence in aid of one of the social service organizations in which she takes an active interest. Lady Burney is the former Gladys High.

Our correspondent writes that the last time she saw Lady Lavery [Hazel Trudeau Martyn of Chicago] was at a ballet produced by the Camago society and that the single orchid which for so many years Lady Lavery has worn as conspicuously as has Lord Lonsdale worn his mammoth yellow boutonniere, was missing. She has made that detail of her toilette so definitely a part of the picture that its absence caused every one to comment on the fact. In its stead she wore two tulips, one white and one pink.

Tea Opens Art Exhibit.

The tea which the Print and Drawing club gave yesterday afternoon to open the first international exhibition of etching and engraving created a pleasant hubbub for a few hours in the somber, high ceilinged print galleries of the Art institute. The usually quiet rooms echoed with a buzz of conversation as the guests made inspection tours round the gallery walls and then gathered at the tea table where a bowl of lavender and purple cineraria bloomed against a yellow and blue striped cloth.

Receiving informally were Walter S. Brewster, president of the Print and Drawing club; Mrs. Brewster, Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, and Mrs. Bertha E. Jaques, and Lee Sturges. Among the several dozen guests I saw Mrs. Tracy Drake, Mrs. Duncan Hodges [Sarah Brewster], who assisted at the tea table; Mrs. Philo Otis, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Mrs. Shreve C. Badger, Mrs. Martin Schutz, and Mrs. Howard Cunningham.

If Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed conquers a flu germ which was keeping her in bed yesterday, she and her daughter, Miss Mary Reed, will spend the Easter week-end in Lake Forest in the beautifully equipped building that houses their indoor tennis court as well as complete guest quarters. Mary Reed is at home for the spring holiday from Miss Hourigan's school in New York.

Mrs. Winston Is Recovering.

Mrs. Frederick Hampden Winston's friends will be glad to learn that she is recuperating nicely from the operation which she had about two weeks ago at St. Luke's, and it is hoped that she will be able to return to her apartment at 229 Lake Shore drive shortly. Mrs. Winston has had a bad winter from the standpoint of health, for earlier in the season she had an attack of measles and then after a fortnight's holiday in the south she had to undergo this operation.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins will return from a holiday spent at

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of "Ma" Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's Casino, a café of ill repute near the water front of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, "Ma's" daughter by her first husband of dubious color, have been trained to assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents and Faire feels their attitude keenly because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Philip Persian is governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward, Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Sir Philip is anxious to save the boy from a scandal. Malise Bookes, the governor's aid-de-camp, asks Faire, as a favor to the governor, to clear Mira by proving it was she who'd been meeting young Grand secretly, threatening to close Flaxen's and have the Chapelles deported unless she consents. Sir Philip is furious with Bookes when he learns that Faire was forced to accept Mira's guilt. He sends for Faire to try to make amends. He arranges to have her return to her father's people in England. Mira Worcester sails on the same boat with Faire. In London Faire is met by her older widowed sister, Sheba, now Lady Rosewood, who owns a famous beauty salon. Sheba takes Faire into the business. Malise Bookes is sent home to London. He had been in love with Sheba, but she had rejected him. Mira has been spreading malicious gossip about Faire, which Faire will not deny because of her affection for Sir Philip and her promise to him of secrecy.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

MISINTERPRETED RETICENCE.

Sheba had known all too soon that Faire Chapelle entered her new world tagged with the sorry label of her last one.

Sheba sent for Malise Bookes again and asked him questions about Flaxen's—a water front café of doubtful morals. He had to tell her gingerly. She had heard there had been cocaine selling . . . the governor had meant to close it, but gave it grace on condition that Faire Chapelle left Bai.

Was that true?

"I must know, Malise. I must know what I'm doing."

"No, no," he tried to protest, vexed and ashamed, "it wasn't quite like that."

"Tell me, Malise."

"Sheba, I told you before; the whole thing is an official secret."

Now he saw Sheba Rosewood harden, lift her head and stare haughtily out at imagined shames, rejecting them. He loved her the more for it—for seeming cool, unapproachable, inflexible, an ideal.

She was the only kind of woman he would ever marry, the angel from a heaven where he had not cared to dwell.

"I must know, Malise. I must know what I'm doing."

She suffered and he knew it and comforted her delicately and carefully, privately accusing herself: "I feel a swine; it's my doing, all of it."

Only to feel himself, in this degree, a swine, increased his sense of pleasure, rapture, in her aloofness. For he could only worship the unapproachable. He knew that about himself. His desire for the unapproachable! Wasn't that why he had desired Faire Chapelle of Port Bai, and, failing to touch her, had tried to drag her down to where he could reach her?

He had dragged her down, yet still had never touched her.

Faire worked hard and with absorption at the salon, learning in one week what a different type would have learned, with labor, in six. Her fingers were flexibly thin and strong. The beauty crazy women who came there liked her when she was allowed to give them treatment. She thought daily as she worked: "Here at least I will be useful, valuable, to Sheba. Here I will make good." Mme. Francois, the obsequious manageress, said: "Your sister's wonderful, Lady Rosewood. There's nothing like knowledge of life to teach a girl this business in a nutshell."

The obsequious manageress, then, also knew the stories.

She affected to be both incredulous and oblivious of them.

Sheba knew that her staff knew.

So, to the end of July. The Westminster house seemed to rest in anticipation of solitude. The water lily room went into dust sheets. The butler was due for his holiday. Sheba said:

"Shan't you be at all lonely, Faire?"

Faire thought: How tell Sheba of this new loneliness which had come after the promise of so much happiness? The new veil was between them, obscuring each from the other. She thought of the quick communion of their first meeting, which had seemed permanent, indestructible. And then the slow, small estrangement growing! When the chill had first touched her it had been difficult to think that Sheba, warm and kind, could judge, could deny, could freeze. But she showed all these, judgment, denial, frigidity, without a word to express them.

Faire only guessed at some of the things that Sheba had heard; and she said to herself fairly and squarely: "Well, look at the way I walked into her beautiful, ordered life, a sort of gypsy from the sort of place she couldn't contemplate. She took me on trust. Now she thinks she misplaced her trust. O Sheba!" It must look to Sheba now—and Faire knew it—as though, tacitly driven from Bai, she had come here to get what she could.

Yet she could not put this in words to Sheba, neither could Sheba put it in words to her. Only, Mira Worcester had done her work very fully. The small part of the social world left in London after Ascot, without fresh news and fresh scandals, had seized on these titbits about Sheba Rosewood's sister.

When Sheba hoped, gently but coldly, that she would not be lonely in the Westminster house, Faire tried for candor between them:

"I shan't mind loneliness, Sheba. I am lonely now." Silence. "For the last two weeks I have been lonelier than ever before in my life." Silence. "I think I had better find a place of my own."

Sheba replied: "Well, Faire, you might like your own flat better. You might like to live your own life."

Then Faire was silent.

"I don't blame you, my dear," said Sheba, unwontedly flippant and hard. "And you are getting on extraordinary well in the salon. Mme. Francois says you have a flair for the work that she's never seen before in any one. She says, already she would trust you to give an ordinary treatment to any client. Your salary's going up——"

"No, Sheba!"

"Don't be absurd if you please, my dear Faire. It is either an increase in salary or an allowance from me."

"Neither!"

"We had better talk this out, Faire."

"It's what I want to do, to talk out the last two weeks."

"Not the last two weeks," said Sheba quickly, "but the future."

"I've already had favored terms in your salon because I'm your sister. Most girls pay a premium."

"Yes. It was natural that you should have favored terms."

"I don't want them to go on. I'd rather work elsewhere."

"Where?" asked Sheba swiftly, answering herself: "There is not a great deal of well paid work for untrained girls. Besides you owe me something, Faire."

"I know I owe you something. Your kindness and hospitality, and you've been generous and——"

"I meant to do so much for you," cried Sheba, stopping her with a little gesture. "Now, I don't know if I can. People are terribly hard. Remember that. The world I live in is just, but it is hard."

"Just!"

"Just. It demands certain standards. It has—requirements. Anyway, don't let us talk like this. You want your own flat?"

"It'll be more convenient for you to close your house just now?"

"I usually do."

Formal, empty, practical, loveless talk! "Very well, Sheba, I'll find a tiny place."

"I want you to be careful, please."

"Because I am your sister?"

"O Faire, you owe it to me to be careful."

"I pay what I owe, Sheba, always." She thought of the price that she had paid for Flaxen's, the price that she was still paying. "I'll leave your house today."

"No!"

"Tomorrow," said Faire more softly.

"At your convenience, my dear. There'll be cook and caretaker here. And listen: I'm paying you four pounds a week. Mme. Francois declares you are really marvelous."

"Don't you want to get rid of me altogether, Sheba?"

"I want——" a long pause—— "to help you all I can, Faire. I want to advise you; and——"

"Keep an eye on me!"

But in a moment Faire added: "Thinking what you do of me, that is more than I deserve."

Sheba would only say one more thing then, suddenly:

"Faire! I suppose you will not give me an entirely frank account of all this scandal?"

"I cannot."

And that night Sheba went north, and the next day the Westminster house was emptied of all save cook and caretaker.

Faire went to the salon punctually as usual the next morning, and saw as usual, in the lovely amber colored rooms, the same anxious women; haggard, haunted women, thinking mainly of love.

Who could doubt but that they thought mainly of what they had to call "love"—the snatched passing attractions and passions which promised a little sustenance to lives that were slowly beginning the starvation of the kind of middle age and even of the old age that unhappily cannot know peace?

Gardeners Told Rose Planting Time Is Near

Plans for Changes Should Be Made Now.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Roses, which travelers tell us are found in every country in the world, have taken their share of the love of plant life found in the hearts of American gardeners. Those experienced in their culture know that within the next few weeks will come the ideal time for setting out or rearranging new plants in the rose garden or in locations in the flower garden as a whole where roses are desired.

So along with other early plantings which can be taken care of as soon as the garden soil is in a workable condition, the hybird tea roses, the hybrid perpetuals, the bush types and the climbing roses can be planted.

Culture is probably as simple with roses as with any other garden flower. Foremost in importance is the preparation of the soil in which the rose, no matter the type or kind, is to be placed. This means deep spading in a location where the roses will have good drainage and plenty of plant food. Often the latter is made a certainty by spading in fertilizers.

If the climbing types are included in the rose plantings, then facilities must be provided for support on arbors, pergolas or trellises by the time the growth requires such support. A combination of the various types gives many Chicago gardens a flourish of rose blossoms from early June to the fall frost period.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

In contract bridge some hands that make excellent dummies are worth very little as closed hands. On the other hand, many a closed hand loses much of its value when led through and exposed in the dummy position. As an illustration let us glance at yesterday's play-a-problem which was:

NORTH.
♠—K,J,8,5,2
♥—A,Q,9
♦—8,3
♣—A,J,7

WEST.	EAST [Dealer].
♠—Q,10,9,7,4	♠—A,6
♥—7,3,2	♥—J,10,8
♦—6,5,2	♦—K,J,10,4
♣—9,5	♣—K,Q,10,6

SOUTH.
♠—3
♥—K,6,5,4
♦—A,Q,9,7
♣—8,4,3,2

East dealt and bid a club. Those players in favor of the more direct no-trump type of bidding rather than the approach would unquestionably have opened with a no-trump. The approach is more popular and is in most of the current systems the preferred. South overcalled with a diamond. West passed and North bid two no-trumps. There were several reasons for North's bid. In the first place the distribution after a diamond bid by his partner was ideal for no-trump play. Further as long as his hand was the closed hand and was led up to, he expected to take two or three tricks more than if it had been exposed in the dummy and led through.

For this reason he wished to play a declaration in which he was the declarer. While holding a no-trump count of 15, which would have allowed him to jump his partner's bid of one diamond to three, he did not feel that with such an unnecessarily high bid as two no-trumps over one diamond that his partner would be liable to pass him, and at the same time he wanted to give his partner a chance to bid a second suit if he had one. After East's pass, South bid three no-trumps which closed the bidding.

East opened the ♣ K, dummy played the 2, West the 5, and declarer the 7. East then led the ♦ J, dummy played the Q, West the 2 and declarer the 3. To the third trick dummy led the ♥ 4, West played the 2, North the A, and East the 8. Declarer then led back the ♦ 8, which dummy took with the ♦ A. Dummy then led the ♦ 7, which East took with the ♦ K. East now led the ♥ J which declarer took with the ♥ Q. Declarer then led the ♥ 9 which dummy took with the ♥ K. Dummy then took in the eighth and ninth trick with the ♥ 6 and ♦ 9 and to the tenth trick led the ♠ 3 which East took with the ♠ A. Declarer having played the ♠ J, East returned the ♠ 6 which declarer took with the ♠ K. Declarer now took the twelfth trick with the ♣ A and to the thirteenth trick led the ♣ J which East took with the Q. North and South made three odd and their game.

It is well to note that throughout the play North took care to have his hand led up to by East and not through by West. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH.
♠—4
♥—6,4,3,2
♦—K,8,7,5
♣—Q,J,10,9

WEST [Dealer].	EAST.
♠—A,K,3,2	♠—9,8,7,6
♥—K	♥—A,10,9,7,5
♦—6,4	♦—A,3,2

SOUTH.
♠—Q,J,10,5
♥—Q,J,8
♦—Q,J,10,9
♣—4,3

Bid and play this hand and compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

L. N.: ASTRINGENTS AND MASsages are often not enough for double chin removing. You need good neck exercises, for which I'd ask you to send an addressed, stamped envelope.

S. D.: TO BRING OUT THE EYE color clearly and to beautify the eye, internal cleanliness and good blood are first essentials. You might use an eyewash of salty water each night.

MARY: YOU CAN USE ANY GOOD cold cream on your lips to prevent the cracking and peeling. Camphor ice is good also.

Child's Energy, Like the Brook, Goes On and On Futile to Tell Youngster to Keep Still.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Did you ever play around a brook when you were a child? Do you remember what fun it was to dam it up with stones and mud and twigs and leaves?

Even then you quickly discovered that when you did so certain things were sure to happen. Either it immediately flowed out the side and made new channels, or the dam held it back for a while until, when the water had sufficiently accumulated, it came piling over the top of the dam. Or sometimes it even broke the dam.

If it happened to be a fast flowing stream all these things happened that much sooner. And you learned, too, that if your dam was so well built that the brook couldn't make itself a new channel, you had to scrape and dig a bed for it to flow down yourself. The water was there and it had to go somewhere.

The energy, activity, impulses, or life force—call it what you will—in a child can be compared to a river. It must go somewhere. Don't try to block it. Instead, direct it.

If it is flowing in destructive, unwholesome channels, don't try to choke it back, but give it a wholesome outlet. There's nothing wrong with the energy, just as there's nothing wrong with the water of the river. It's only when it flows where it shouldn't that harm comes.

This applies in physical things that concern the children—and in mental and emotional things, too. For the wrong kind of play substitute the right kind—don't expect inactivity. For trashy books gradually substitute good ones—don't forbid all reading.

For the experimentation of the little climbing, touching child, substitute durable chairs and ladders and slides, instead of fretting over the finish of pianos and delicate brocaded furniture.

Diagonal Lines of Vionnet Blouse Smartly Developed in Pastel Crepes

WOMAN'S OR MISS' OVERBLOUSE.

This Vionnet blouse is one that many women will want, and it isn't at all hard to make. The sharp diagonal line is slimming, and it meets the softly falling revers that also do duty in detracting from the breadth. Eggshell, pale pink, or a vivid yellow crêpe de chine will be chic.

The pattern, 3,167, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Good morning!

The Junch and Judy's new propaganda picture was, to me, incoherent and wearying.

It is concerned with showing how arid areas of land belonging to the Turks are rendered once more available for agriculture and living purposes by the efforts of a gallant band of young soviet engineers. These indomitable chaps are sent to the aid of the unhappy "Turkman," and, through their courage, skill, and resourcefulness in the face of apparently unconquerable odds presented by Mother Nature herself, turn the course of a river and send it rushing down to slake the thirst of the "Turkman's" soil.

The human types presented are the best thing about this picture—and there's a hurricane that's a humdinger.

Subtitles are in English.

"Killing to Live," also on the program, is one of the longest "short subjects" you ever ran into, and one of the most unpleasant. It presents with relish wild things hunting and devouring one another and is accompanied by a lecture that is the last word in dryness. There is a deadly sameness to the thing and it goes on and on and on until you could scream. Was I bored!

If the Punch and Judy is to thrive it will have to give buyers something better than yawns and squirms for their money.

See you tomorrow!

Pottery Group Tells Story of Rural England

Miss Bush Has Collection of Old Figurines.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

What a delightful sense of humor the old Staffordshire potters must have had! Take for example their whimsically interesting figurines which afford us so much pleasure. Every one is the expression of some impish mood, a grotesque fancy, satire, or jest!

Recently I stopped to talk Yucatan and Mexico with Miss Emeline Bush, who has just returned from a two months' trip through the southwest with her mother, Mrs. William H. Bush, of 1508 North State parkway. She has some fascinating stories of the Mayan excavations being made in Yucatan under the direction of Dr. Sylvester Morley of the Carnegie Foundation; of the thatched cottages that served as hotels, and the great "pilote" where talking machine concerts are held. Some of her experiences are recorded in the three lovely paintings she made while away—one of the facade that was once part of Montejo's house, Spanish conqueror of Yucatan; another of the flaming bougainvillaeas in the garden of Mrs. Alfred MacArthur in Cuernavaca just outside Mexico City, and still another of the adobe huts and continental market place in this little town.

Collection of Figurines.

Charming, these travels—but withal I am going to tell you instead about Staffordshire figurines and the collection Miss Bush has acquired. For after an hour or more on Mayan Indians and Mexicans, we hit upon this subject. Miss Bush assembled the group during her three trips abroad, the last in 1929 when she attended the famous Dublin horse show and, with her sister Carol, was the guest of Baron Johan Mannerheim at his country estate, Grensholm, near Surkopping, Sweden.

"It was such fun to browse in the old shops of London and the cathedral towns for the little figurines," Miss Bush said. "The collection represents the work of the Staffordshire potters of the 18th century. Often it is hard to distinguish the work of the old masters of this craft but the glaze and the coloring will generally tell the story."

The very word "Staffordshire" means pottery to us in America and recalls such names as Adams, Wood, Spode, and Minton. We forget that it is an English county with towns and villages, and farms.

Not More Than 200 Years Old.

It is not such an old ware, this Staffordshire, at least as age goes in antiques. We trace it back 200 years or so and find pots as primitive as our early American butter crocks, pickle jars, and vinegar jugs. Experts set dates by exact years for each potter, but seldom do we remember these figures. For the enjoyment, however, of putting a work into its appropriate setting, old Staffordshire ware can be snugly tucked into the 18th century with the feeling that it belongs there.

One pleasant and comfortable fact about this pottery is that the craftsmen seemed to like their work for they persisted at the trade from father to son for generations. In the Adams family, for instance, the whirl of the potter's wheel seems to have been pretty continuous from the early days of pot making in Staffordshire to the delectable "Adams blue" jasper ware of the days of Wedgwood and the "Mocha ware," which brings us well into the 19th century.

First of all the ware is cottage stuff, neither more nor less, comfortable and commonplace, as far removed from the ceremony and restraint of aristocracy as from the porcelains of China. Like all good pottery it smacks of the soil from which it was taken. [Porcelain, later made by the Staffordshire workers, also comes from clay and is baked in a kiln, but the firing continues until it becomes translucent—the dividing line between porcelain and pottery.] Staffordshire pottery is "homely" in the English sense of the word, that is homelike and likeable for what it is, not for what it is not.

Used for Cottage Decorations.

Take for example the little figures which the potters enjoyed making, perhaps most of all to decorate the shelves around the cottage walls. Two of the best known groups are the "Sailor's Farewell" and the "Sailor's Return"—nice little figurines colored in bright blues, soft greens, pinks, and yellows. The sweetheart, faint with sadness, is seated disconsolately in the first group while the sailor makes a brave show of courage and, incidentally, of his trousers patterned in alternating straight and zigzag stripes. Upon his return, for these ornaments were made in pairs when so dramatic a theme was chosen, the joyful meeting is well depicted. The slow step has given way to the sprightly one, and the sailor has new trousers boasting an even more conspicuous stripe. Just the sort of thing the whole countryside loved, and clearly cottage decoration.

There are also loftier themes among the early figurines—busts and plaques of Admiral Nelson and other naval heroes. Enoch Wood [1759-1840] was especially responsible for the portrait bust. And who does not know his brother, Ralph Wood's comic groups of the bibulous vicar and his faithful servant, Moses?

But the humble subjects are in the majority—stodgy cows and stodgy dogs with an occasional touch of the unfamiliar in a zebra or a suggestion of aristocracy in a pack of whippets. You could almost write a history of rural 18th century England from these Staffordshire figurines.

Mere froth on the wave, perhaps, as compared to the practical tableware made in Staffordshire then and ever since, but that's another story. The collection of figurines made by Miss Bush has been appraised by connoisseurs at the Field museum as one of the most authentic groups assembled.

Wins Feature Role in Movies

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Miss Katrina McCormick, daughter of Mrs. Albert G. Simms and the late former Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson for several days and returned to her home in Virginia today. Mrs. Davidson was formerly Miss Betty Hanna, granddaughter of the late Senator Mark A. Hanna of Ohio.

Countess Felicia Gizycka, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, formerly of Chicago, who spent a short time with her mother in Washington, has been visiting Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey at Middleburg, Va. She returned to her New York home yesterday.

Kendall Ide Lingle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bowman Church Lingle of Chicago, and Otis T. Wingo Jr., his classmate at Princeton university, are visiting the latter's mother, Representative Effiegene Wingo of Arkansas in her Washington apartment for the Easter holidays.

Miss Priscilla Wrightson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wrightson, formerly of Quincy, Ill., went to New York today on her way to West Point, where she will be the guest over Easter of Maj. Robert L. Eichelberger, U. S. A., and Mrs. Eichelberger. Miss Wrightson is a granddaughter of the late Gen. William Crawford Gorgas, chief sanitary officer of the Panama Canal Zone during the construction of the present canal.

Winner in Beauty Contest Files Suit Against Husband

Mrs. Helen M. Glason of the Monterey hotel, 4300 Clarendon avenue, filed a suit for separate maintenance, charging cruelty, yesterday in the Circuit court against William I. Glason, vaudeville comedian known professionally as Billy Glason.

Mrs. Glason, a former Chicago beauty contest winner and Mack Sennett bathing girl, stated in her bill that her husband earns $750 a week. She asks custody of their daughter, Shirley Marie, 6 years old. The couple married in 1923 and separated last October. Glason is now in New York.

Frances Dee, Former Want Ad Girl, Is Featured in New Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 24.—Frances Dee, the former CHICAGO TRIBUNE want ad girl, who is going over big in the movies, was promoted to bigger lettering in the headlines at the Paramount studio this week. She has been assigned to the other featured rôle with Stuart Erwin in "Merton of the Movies." In reality Miss Dee is being co-starred. She and Sylvia Sidney are regarded as the two best bets among the horde of younger actresses at their studio.

Incidentally Harold Lloyd's new picture with a sort of a "Merton of the Movies" idea also has been permanently titled "Movie Crazy." Considerable portions of the Lloyd comedy drama have already been finished, particularly many of the sequences, with Constance Cummings the only femme in the cast.

There's a new racket in the swell Hollywood suburb of Beverly Hills which the Chamber of Commerce and business bureaus of that palm fronted and gold doorknobbed center are trying to break up. The racket is for slickers to rent vacant homes and estates for a day or a week and then move a lot of furniture into the places for the purpose of holding an auction, as though the furniture had been accumulated by some wealthy connoisseur. It is the same stunt as was worked so successfully when Valentino "valuables" were sold for weeks after the actor's burial.

Mrs. Edward H. Robinson says Hannen Swaffer, London critic, combines one of the sharpest tongues and sharpest wits she ever observed. Not that she particularly admires the Britisher's cutting disposition. She met him at a party in the Savoy, London. Swaffer, being informed she was the wife of "Little Ceesar," leaned toward Mrs. Robinson and said: "You know, you Americans make us feel very superior with your gangster pictures and outlawry outbreaks. You know we never experienced anything like that here." To which Mrs. Robinson retorted, "I don't know about that. It seems to me that everywhere I go in London I see a memorial or a painting or something of some noted person being assassinated or beheaded." Which brought from Swaffer: "But my dear lady, all those are silent pictures."

There is one desert stopping place of the film and society celebs at Palm Springs which serves steaks at $5 a steak. The steaks are said to be air mailed to Palm Springs daily from Chicago.

The United Artists theater in downtown Los Angeles has closed. This Jonah movie palace, erected at cost of something like $3,000,000 when movie producers were also partners in construction companies and had promotional interests and expansion delusions about the building of theaters, never emerged from red ink since its opening, according to a recent curtain speech by Douglas Fairbanks, who ought to know, because large scads of the dough buried in its masony and plush seats is Douglas' dough. The theater backers finally reached a conclusion they would lose less money by darkening the house.

A furniture company yesterday removed $1,300 worth of furniture from a storage warehouse, where it was held under supposed ownership of Helen Walton Langdon, Harry Langdon's former leading woman and recently estranged wife. The corporation claimed the furniture had not been paid for and made legal showing that it had served notice on Mrs. Langdon by mail in New York.

Northwestern Adds to Number Allowed in "Prodigy" Class

President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university announced last night that the number of "precocious students" to be admitted to the university next September had been increased to ten boys and ten girls. Originally it had been intended to accept six boys. This was broadened to include six girls also.

It is the plan of Northwestern to enter the students considered precocious into a special program of study, to watch them as they progress in class work, and to observe their careers afterward. The plan met with approval, and letters from all sections of the country seeking admission for the writers have been received.

President Scott last night also announced the appointment of three special committees to handle the "precocious students" program. He will head one committee supervising selection. Dean Addison Hibbard will head another directing the course of study, and Dr. Paul A. Witty will head the third committee to make a special study of the students.

Justice of Peace at 79 Gives Rules for Marriage

Samuel Harrison, Evanston justice of the peace, celebrated his 79th birthday yesterday by giving out some rules for happy marriage, drawn from his 29 years as a justice of the peace, during which he has married hundreds of couples. "Treat your wife as a mate, not an idol," he advised. "Marry early but not too often; women care too little for a man who cares too much for adventure. A woman's place is in the home, but her husband's should be right beside her."

Stock Selects Proper Program for Holy Week

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Stock assembles a Good Friday program with the same unfailing taste and skill that characterizes the rest of his public life as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. For last night's concert he began with two extracts from "Parsifal," the Procession of the Knights of the Grail from Act 1, and the Good Friday Spell from Act. 3.

The next was "Gethsemane," Victor de Sabata's composition which he describes as a "contemplative poem." This was followed by Leo Sowerby's "Medieval Poem," for organ and orchestra, in which the composer appeared at the organ as he has done on former occasions when the work has been presented in Orchestra hall. And that the program might not have an air of continuous solemnity, Mr. Stock devoted the second half of the concert to a performance of Brahms' Second Symphony, the cheeriest of the four.

With one possible exception, this was about an ideal set of music for the occasion. That one is the De Sabata work. Neither when it was first played six seasons ago nor again last night did it seem to have either the weight or the flame for its intended purpose. Given another title it might have conveyed the impression of pleasant music, but under the circumstances it was an unattained ambition.

But "Parsifal" long ago took its place in the field of fine music, and a shorter time ago and though less widely current, the Sowerby work also earned its commendations. As for the Brahms Symphony, it has a habit of remaining in the memory whenever Mr. Stock plays it. The first movement in particular was a masterpiece.

Anton Dvorak's cantata, "At the Foot of the Cross," will be sung by the choir of thirty voices of the Fourth Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock tonight. The soloists will be Anna Burmeister, soprano; Maurine Parzybok, contralto; George Harold Rigler, tenor, and Hugh C. Dickerson, bass. Barrett Spach, organist, will play Vierne's funeral march and Bach's "O Sacred Head Surrounded."

London Finds Immoral Film Bores Children

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—Juvenile filmgoers in Britain survive questionable moral influences of vamps and sex on the the screen through sheer boredom and lack of understanding of subjects which are over their heads. But boys still stand in their seats to cheer a cowboy hero and adolescent girls throb and thrill over a romantic love story.

The London county council looked into the matter of the movies as they affect 21,280 children between 3 and 14 years of age to find out what these youngsters like and why. Dr. F. H. Spencer, chief inspector for the council, headed the inquiry which embraced the whole of London, from the west to the poor slum districts of the east end. He found the films good.

Out of every 100 children nine go to the cinema twice a week, thirty once a week, 48 at irregular intervals, and 13 never go at all. Out of children under five there are seven in each 100 who go twice weekly and 30 who find enough pennies to visit a picture palace once a week.

Commenting on the effect films have on the young mind, Dr. Spencer declares: "There is no need for serious alarm. The film is no worse than the old time 'blood' universally read by boys only a few years ago and no more falsely sentimental than many of the feminine equivalents of the 'blood.' Evil, on the films, never pays.

"The normally questionable element in films for adults only is ignored by children, who are bored by it. The one distinct evil is the fear and bad dreams caused by films depicting acts of violence.

"The cinema can be an effective instrument for enlarging the children's experience and for giving clear cut knowledge of certain kinds."

LAMB CALLS FOR MUCH SEASONING AS AID TO FLAVOR

Use Anything from Fruit to Fish.

BY VIRGINIA THOMPSON.

Lamb, to go all Gaul one better, is divided into four parts: that is, four wholesale parts. Sometimes there are again subdivided, but for our purposes today they are as follows: the leg, the loin, the rib, and the shoulder. Each of these provides the chop and roast retail cuts with which we are wont to grace our tables. Lamb roasts, with or without bone, are derived from all four wholesale cuts, even though you may be one who thinks of lamb roasts in no terms other than the celebrated "leg-o-lamb!"

Since lamb is a young animal, its flesh is characterized by a light pink color, as also are its bones. The latter are frequently etched with light streaks of red. The fiber of the carcass is fine and firm. For these reasons lamb is generally cooked to the well done stage, while mutton, its respected parent, is generally cooked to the rare stage.

Cries for Condiments.

Great variety of flavor may be achieved with the cooking of lamb because the delicacy of its meat invites condiments and contrasting flavors. Mint is an old standby from the period of grandmother's tiny mint garden. Capers, chutney, currant, and pomegranate, jellies, curry powder, sage, and fruits make excellent stuffings and sauces for roast lamb. They bring out the delicacy of the flavor if used with discretion. The more delicate sea foods such as anchovies and crabs, combine flavors with lamb for epicurean tastes.

Taking up the roast cuts one by one, we have first that of the leg of lamb. You are familiar with this, I know, so we can skip to the next, which is the loin roast [No. 2 in the illustration]. This corresponds to the loin roast of beef, and after the skin covering has been removed, it is equally tender and delicious. Roast it in the same way you do the leg of lamb, and as for the leg, allow thirty-five to forty minutes cooking for each pound. Serve it with a caper or mint sauce and potatoes which have achieved a rich mealiness inside of a crisp outer coat—in other words—simple browned potatoes.

Crown Roast Suggestions.

The crown roast of lamb is a most fetching cut. It is taken from the rib, or rack [this is No. 3 in the illustration] and consists of an equal number of ribs from each side. The ribs are stripped down, and the meat which is whisked off is heaped into the center of the crown. Paper frills lend an esthetic touch if they are perched on each spare bone. We might add that they are put on after the roasting!

The cook may combine the cut off meat with any of a number of stuffings, and so fill the crown, or she may have a stuffing alone for this inviting void. Vegetables, freshly cooked and tastily seasoned, may be placed in the crown as the roast is about to be served. Cauliflower is especially good, cooked whole, and treated to butter and flecks of parsley and paprika.

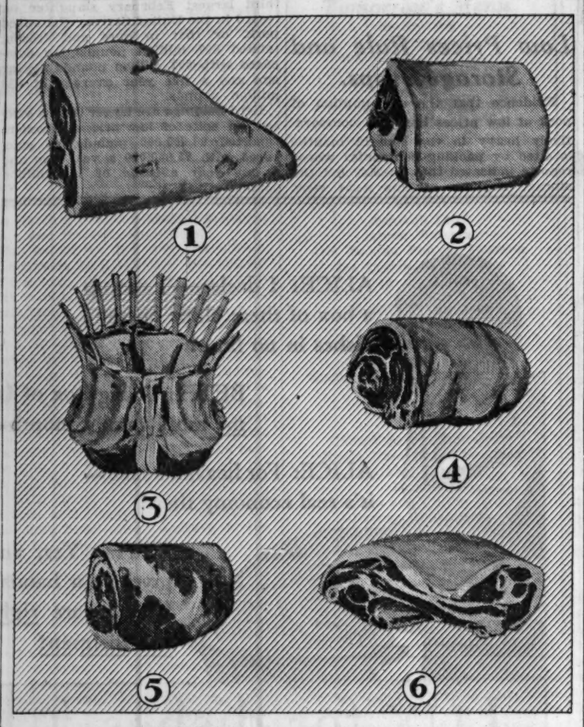
Digressing from the illustration order, we next come upon the breast of lamb which is together an inspiration and challenge to us cooks. The one shown here has been boned and it is cut by one's butcher from the loin and the rib of the carcass. Cooked in Creole fashion with a touch of this and a touch of that—which means all those savory seasonings known to French and American cooks—sage, garlic, onion, and tomato—it's irresistible, though it does cost but street car fare per pound!

Shoulder Variations.

The housewife may, if she is so inclined, bone the shoulder or what we are considering the "shoulder" cut of lamb [the entire forequarter of the animal] herself. Merely have the butcher remove the blade and cut all the bones. Bone it at home, and roll it up tight before tucking it snugly into the roasting pan. This, in finished form, is the cut shown in No. 4 of the illustration.

Lamb shoulder, however, is good roasted with the bone in, as well as out. Such a roast may be flattered by the addition of canned baked beans, a clove of garlic, and some chopped pimientos. These, with liberal butter, salt, and pepper seasoning, are made into a sauce with which the roast is basted. Another suggestion for the boned shoulder roast is to roast it with a puree of apricots and brown sugar. This is illustration No. 6 in the accompanying picture.

POPULAR LAMB ROASTS



The six popular lamb roasts are as follow: No. 1—Leg roast, No. 2—Loin roast, No. 3—Crown roast, No. 4—Shoulder roast (without bone), No. 5—Breast roast (without bone), and No. 6—Shoulder roast (with bone).

EXPERT WARNS MILK DIET FOR CHILDREN CAN BE OVERDONE

Ames, Ia., March 24.—[Special.]—Milk, sometimes termed "the perfect food" and given to children in as great quantity as they can drink daily often leaves them without appetite for other foods which may be just as beneficial or necessary, is the comment of Dr. Pearl Swanson of the home economics faculty at Iowa State college.

Scientists and nutrition experts agree that milk is essential in the diet of a growing child because of its energizing and body building constituents, the doctor declares, but says there are cases in which the milk diet can be overdone.

A quart of milk per day for a child may be a good guide, but this does not mean that the entire quart should be served as a beverage, according to her studies. Her recommendation is that in cases of poor appetite, the beverage servings can be reduced and more of the milk served in cooked forms such as cereals cooked in milk, milk desserts, and creamed vegetables.

NOT ONLY YEARS BUT SOME FOODS ADD TO OUR AGE

Old age is not a matter of years, but, to a great extent, a question of what you eat, says Olga Brucher of the New York State college of home economics at Cornell university. One can enjoy life, she says, just as many years as the body maintains an active mind, and how long the body can do this, she pointed out, is determined by how well the body is cared for.

"To care wisely for our bodies," Miss Brucher says, "we must have an intelligent and scientific attitude about matters of health. We must learn to pay as much attention to the kind of food we give our own bodies as to the feed we give our chickens, and our dairy cattle.

"We must think of food as a builder of strong bodies, not only for ourselves, but for our children and our children's children as well. What we eat has an effect on our lives, on our teeth, our strength, our resistance to infection, on almost everything relating to what we are and what we do. Being well born is not enough. It is the feeding during infancy and throughout life also that determines health."

LIKE SAUSAGE? HERE'S WAY TO MAKE THE BEST

Meat Specialist Advises Mixed Sort.

For the "last word in tastiness" try a recipe for sausage that can be made with either beef or pork but preferably equal portions of each, is the recommendation of Al Severson, meat specialist of North Dakota Agricultural college.

"Beef or pork tongue, cheek meat and trimmings may also be used. Fresh meat, of course, is the secret of the most delicious sausage," says Mr. Severson.

Ingredients for 25 Pounds.

For 25 pounds of meat the ingredients are as follows:

One cup salt, two level teaspoons sage, same of black pepper, one level teaspoon of sweet markoram, one level tablespoon of crystallized sugar, and one level teaspoon of mace and the same quantity of red pepper.

Trim the pieces and cut into proper size for the grinder. Sprinkle the seasoning over the meat and add one-half pound of flour to serve as a binder. Thoroughly mix and grind and the second time through the grinder, add a small quantity of cold water to make a more desirable consistency for shaping into patties.

Do Not Guess.

For best results use all the ingredients called for and do not change the quantity or guess at the amounts.

Smoked Hams Temptingly Priced for Easter Menus

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Meal Council of Chicago states: "Cured and smoked hams represent an unusually economical meat purchase for the Chicago housewife over the coming week-end. An Easter dinner with baked or boiled ham as the main dish can be prepared at a figure that will please the most economical shopper."

Too Many Cooks Spoil the Broth, Mashed Potatoes, Etc.; What's a Man Going to Do?

Dear Editor:

How can a man feel at peace with the world or with his fellow men when he has eaten in a restaurant and been fed underdone pork chops, overdone Brussels sprouts and cold mashed potatoes? Isn't it a fault in our jurisprudence that a man cannot plead directly that his wife is a bad cook and get a divorce on that ground alone?

I would have you understand, sir, that I am not a chronic dyspeptic. I have been eating my victuals for about 40 years and my digestion is good. It is a whole lot better than the food I have to give it to work on about half the time. Neither am I a chronic letter writer. But I feel I owe it to myself and to all other folk who like good eating to outline to you a few of the most flagrant sins of our cooks—God save the mark!

What Happens Other Half?

It is marvelous to contemplate the fine quality of food that flows into the Chicago markets daily. It is awful to think what happens to at least half of it.

There are some thousands of restaurants in Chicago. Off hand I could name you about 20 in which the cookery is eminently satisfactory and 10 or 15 more in which it is as good as could reasonably be expected. Now, I have not been in all the restaurants in Chicago, but I have been in many more than 30 or 35 where shooting the chef de cuisine would be justifiable homicide at any time.

Most restaurant proprietors, I believe, purchase good foodstuffs. Portions are large enough in general, although some places serve meat shaved pretty thin. But what happens to the food after it gets in the kitchens!

A Couple of Crimes.

Take your green vegetables. Cabbage is boiled until it's flabby. Thirty-five minutes or so is enough to cook that delicate vegetable. How often can you go into a reasonable price eating house and get Brussels sprouts that haven't been cooked until they turn a purplish red and are mushy? Ah, there's a crime for you; there're two crimes.

If our chefs just have to boil their greens, why not try them out on kale a while. That's fine after its been boiled for three hours; but most restaurants seem never to have heard of this one—and I consider it the finest of all greens. Spinach seems to resist the cooks more than any other green. Maybe it's because of the protective coating of sand.

Your chef can French fry a potato O. K. He can bake one and he can even boil one. But when he takes one more step, what happens? Some mash the lumps out and some don't. It's discouraging to order mashed potatoes, expecting them to come in light and well whipped, and to discover them lumpy. Put them through a small mesh sieve, brother.

And they're just about invariably cold, or barely tepid, when they reach the table. Here's a secret for the chefs if they want it: After the mashing is completed put your mash into the oven and bake it until there's a rich brown crust all over. That keeps the heat in longer and it adds to the flavor of the dish. Good cooks in the south always bake the mashed potatoes.

Why Smash Peas?

Some excellent restaurants in Chicago escape perfection only by the overcooking of the greenstuffs and the arctic temperature of the potatoes, mashed.

Among the minor misdemeanors I would list the heating of the canned peas. Is it necessary to break them up? They're good in their skins. Also, it always seemed to me they were bettered, made more tasty, by pouring off the water that was in the can and using fresh.

Cauliflower is another one that's overcooked. So is broccoli. I sometimes picture my chefs with fevered brows standing in their kitchens and shouting:

"Boil that blasted broccoli till the bloomin' buds bust."

You can cover up bursted broccoli with Holland sauce or mayonnaise, but it's still busted.

The soup's all right, except when they try cream of tomato. When that's bad it's really not the chef's fault. You can't make that soup and let it stand around. If you do it gets sour. The only way is to make it up and consume it right away. Where they can't do that, perhaps, restaurant owners ought to pass up cream of tomato.

Ham and Eggs Good Unless——.

Sweet potatoes? So-so. Navy beans? Who could miss? Ham and eggs? Always the universal masterpiece unless they cook the eggs in the same grease they cooked the fish in. The fish? Most places just plain guesswork; you take a chance.

Let's take the meats. I'd say that the roast beef, where it was tender when they bought it, is almost always well cooked. Your chefs seem to have better than fair luck with broiled steaks. But when they have meat to fry or chops to broil I protest. If it's liver they smear some gosh-awful stuff called gravy over it. They never heard about dipping it in meal and cooking over a fire just moderately hot.

Somehow in this matter of chops I can't be too harsh with the cooks in restaurants. The patron wants his about a minute and a half after the order goes in. So the chef shoves them under as hot a fire as he can find, sears one side and then the other and sends it in—pretty greasy and raw inside.

Have to Be Patient.

If you want a good chop you have to wait for it. Cook the outside fast, then turn the fire a little lower and let the inside get a slow heat. I don't want my chops bristling with fat and I often have tried to get them done all the way through. But the cooks have a tradition ingrained in them and they can't understand what you mean.

Also, I have noticed that if the waiter asks you how you want your chops and you say rare or medium or well or extra well, it doesn't mean a thing. You get the same thing anyhow.

Reading over what I have already written, Mr. Editor, I have come to a curious conclusion. All I have said about the chefs in most restaurants is true and it is time to make a drive on these public enemies. However, sir, it seems to me it is the fault of the diners, too. They are just like taxpayers. They don't pay any attention to what is going on until things get to be positively unbearable. Then taxpayers quit paying taxes and eaters start eating at home and growling at their wives.

Does Next Best Thing.

It seems to me that there are not enough of us in Chicago who like good food enough to fight the cooks for it. So I have done the next best thing. I eat all I can at home, where the food is cooked to my taste—all but the coffee, and that is terrible. Unless I make it myself, which I do when I am provoked to it.

What about it? Is there a really patriotic element in this city that would like to see some reasonable price restaurant advertise that it has good cooks and prove it? Anyhow, yours for better cookery wherever you find it.

BISCUIT TRAVELS LONG WAY; TURNS INTO A DESSERT

But It's Still Useful in Lowlier Capacities.

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

The rise of the lowly biscuit took more than one thousand years, but it finally got the credit it deserves. The tale of its homely struggles is a creditable one. It is a food that has traveled far and wide and met with adventures that so changed it that at times it is almost unrecognizable.

The first type of bread stuff was made by the Egyptians, though some historians give the credit to the Chinese. They produced a leavened loaf of tasteless bread, which they evidently thought was not tasteless, for the custom traveled to the Greeks, who passed the good word on to the Romans. The roaming Romans never could keep a secret and soon the method spread to the northern countries.

Bread from Most Anything.

However flat the bread was, we must give them credit for the variety of grains they used. Athenaeus says his people employed the flour of wheat, barley, rye, millet, spelt, rice, dried lotus roots, and the boiled root of cornflag. It seemed the gods were never happier than when munching lotus root bread and sipping the jewel wines of Bacchus.

As time went on some one got the bright idea of cooking it twice. Then practically all moisture would be expelled and the loaf would keep a much longer time, which came in handy for sailors and soldiers, although I never heard of Columbus' men eating hard-tack or anything like it. When the French got hold of this information they decided to glorify the bread by baking it in smaller quantities and instead of saying "twice cooked" every time they went into a café gave it the name of "biscuit," which means the same thing anyway.

Angry Chef Raises Bread.

You know the rest—when the French get hold of anything they just keep on adding new ideas to it all the time. This, however, was accidental. One of these chefs had "ze temperament" very bad one day. His hands were full of dough and there was no one handy to throw it at so the dough got it. Bang, bang, smash! On the floor it went, up against the wall, and back on the table with a fat s-q-u-s-h. When he cooled down he put the battered dough in the oven and when it came out lo and behold it had risen to prodigious heights [see theory of air bubbles made in dough by kneading.]

Shortly after, all chefs not having temperament, a baking powder was invented. Biscuits have come a long way since the early days of bread making in Egypt and today biscuit dough is used in many ways other than for plain hot biscuits.

Peach pinwheels, one of the newest desserts, uses biscuit dough to good advantage. Drain the juice from one can of peaches and boil in one and one-half cups of sugar until it makes a thick sirup. Make a rich biscuit dough and roll out thin. Chop up peaches in small slices and place on the dough, sprinkling with cinnamon and nutmeg. Roll up the peaches in the dough lengthwise. Cut in slices one and one-half inches thick, place slices cut side down in sirup and bake in a moderate oven one and one-half hours. Serve with whipped cream. This will serve eight.

Poor man's pie is a convenient and inexpensive dish. Take two cups of leftover meat [beef, pork, or lamb is best]. Add one onion, chopped fine, two carrots, one stalk of celery, and thicken with leftover gravy, soup stock, or flour and water to which two tablespoons of butter have been added.

Recipe for the Dough.

Place in a casserole and cover with short biscuit dough. Prick a few holes in the dough to allow steam to escape and bake until brown in a moderate oven. This will serve five people. The sides of the dish may also be lined with dough and the top crust made with circles cut with a biscuit cutter to indicate individual servings.

There seems to be no end to the various ways in which to use this short dough: Cinnamon rolls, dumplings, meat turnovers, and puddings are only a few more variations. Here is the basic recipe for biscuit dough.

Sift together two cups of flour, four level teaspoons of baking powder, and one teaspoon of salt. Cut two tablespoons of lard into your dry ingredients. Add one cup of milk and work together with a fork, handling the dough as little as possible. For those small tea biscuits add one beaten egg.

ASPARAGUS, RHUBARB, AND CUCUMBERS ARE NOW GETTING CHEAPER

Asparagus, cucumbers, and rhubarb are getting cheaper in Chicago as they become more seasonal, storekeepers report. Prices are about half what they were two months ago on these commodities. Asparagus is being sold from 15 cents a bunch and up, depending on the size and freshness of the southern grown stalks. Rhubarb is around 10 cents a pound, while cucumbers of the size that were selling not long ago for a quarter each now are about 10 cents.

CUT DISTRIBUTION COST, HE TELLS MEAT INDUSTRY

Consumer Would Benefit in New Plan.

A plan by which the meat industry would create and finance a system of improvements in the production and distribution of meats was outlined in Chicago this week by John A. Kotal, secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers. Mr. Kotal spoke before the annual meeting of the National Live Stock Marketing association at the Morrison hotel.

Outstanding among the differences between retailers and producers of meats, Mr. Kotal declared, is the broad spread which the farmer now observes as existing between the price he receives for his live stock and the price the consumer pays for selected cuts of meat.

Would Cut Distribution Costs.

To correct such conditions as this he suggested that the packers, butchers, and live stock producers create and finance a supervisory committee, to operate from three principal markets: Chicago, New York, and San Francisco. Its purpose would be to eliminate some of the present distribution costs of meats and give each of the three groups in the industry a more equitable share of the consumer's dollar.

Through the operation of his plan, Mr. Kotal believes that consumers will benefit, in addition to price adjustments, by obtaining a three-fold guarantee of fair treatment from each of the groups of men whose profits depend upon the consumer's appreciation of meat.

"First among the problems for this committee," declared Kotal, "is that of definite grades by which everybody may know that the particular grade of meat sold is the same as the one mentioned in the advertising. Uniform grades of meat are the first step in an improved program for meat distribution.

Not Properly Instructed.

"On the other hand, too many retailers of meat are not properly instructed as to their occupation, particularly in securing the relative costs of various cuts from meat carcasses. Many retailers conduct their business with a limited knowledge of the costs of doing business. His success depends largely on his ability to increase his volume, which in turn depends upon price, cost of live stock, and ability of consumers to pay."

There are at least four classes of meat buyers among women, Kotal said. One buys on price only, another wants the best at all times regardless of price, a third wants the best including service at a price they see advertised for price appeal only, and the fourth are those unswayed by advertising appeals and who are able to judge for themselves.

REPORT MORE APPLES IN COLD STORAGE HERE THAN A YEAR AGO

Larger holdings of apples in storage in barrels and baskets, but not as many in boxes as a year ago on March 1 are indicated in a report by Chicago cold storage warehouse operators. The total quantity of apples is about 4 per cent greater than a year ago. Chicago had 764,000 barrels, 8,756,000 boxes, and 5,180,000 baskets of apples on March 1 this year, as compared with 484,000 barrels, 11,371,000 boxes, and 2,855,000 baskets of apples in storage a year ago.

PORK PRODUCTS DEMAND HEAVY PAST 12 MONTHS

Low Prices Rule and Storage Drops.

Evidence that the consumption of pork at low prices has been comparatively heavy in the last 12 months is cited by packing companies whose reports indicated that on March 1 the storage supplies of this meat were smaller than a year ago and also smaller than for a five year average, although slaughterings have been in large numbers.

During February 4,589,752 hogs were slaughtered in packing plants, the third largest February slaughter on record in the United States. Yet cured pork, or that in cure and frozen, totaled 807 million pounds, as compared with 853 million pounds a year ago and a five year average of 823 million pounds.

Lard holdings are larger than a year ago, in spite of low prices. Packers reported 93,000,000 pounds, as compared with 75,000,000 a year ago and a five year average of 112 million pounds.

COLORING EGGS FOR EASTER IS EASY TASK NOW

Modern Methods Provide Artistic Results.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

There is a legend about the origin of Easter eggs which a Russian Orthodox priest once related to me and which, I have heard, is told to children in Latin and Slavic countries where they do not have an Easter rabbit.

It is said that as Jesus was passing between lines of scoffers on the road to Calvary a mother busy with her household duties gave her son an egg to throw at the Man. The child ran out into the street, but in a moment came back to her in amazement. The egg, as he held it in his hand, had turned crimson.

So it was that red became the favorite color for Easter eggs in those countries where the legend is recounted.

Likes All Colors.

As for our own Easter rabbit, he seems to have no preference for eggs of any especial color. Not much is known about him beyond his generosity in the matter of these gifts, but he is suspected of being a contemporary of Eostre, the old Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring, who gives us our name for the day on which he brings us the eggs.

Incidentally, he may have learned the art of making beautiful Easter eggs in that far off age from the Persians and Greeks, who regarded eggs as emblems of creation and colored them early every spring.

However that may be, dyeing and decorating eggs has become a cherished custom among children, whether prompted by an old legend or merely by the idea of helping the Easter bunny fulfill his mighty task. And fortunate it is that modern ingenuity is contributing new and easy methods of adorning the eggs so that tinted eggs no longer mean tinted fingers, clothing and table tops as well.

Crêpe Paper Is Effective.

No less destructive or more amusing method than the use of colored crêpe paper has been offered so far. Cut a small piece of this colored paper, moisten it and rub the egg with it. If your young painter has artistic leanings he can run the gamut of colors, using the many crêpe papers on the market, and all on the same egg if he desires. Add a crayon or two to his equipment and he can adorn his egg with scrolls or features, depending on whether he prefers pattern or personality.

But not all of us are artistic, even if modern schools are giving us a creative education. And where else but from Germany, favorite home of the Easter rabbit, would come a solution for our difficulties? For a trifling sum imported papers bearing a dozen effigies of the bunny himself, and of other timely objects, all gayly colored, can be obtained. These can be transferred to the egg without undue strain on our artistic faculties.

Dyes Have Their Friends.

Then, of course, there are the Easter egg dyes which have been doing their share of coloring for years. Or if truly artistic result is wished, the method explained to me by the Russian priest. For the finest eggs a pattern is traced and covered with wax; the egg is dipped, then part of the wax is removed and the egg dipped in a second color, and so on, until a complicated effect of color and pattern is obtained.

What method is used matters little, however, so long as the eggs are colored and the younger generation comes in for its share of the fun. And next to decorating eggs children probably most enjoy the Easter egg hunt. Arrange it outdoors if the weather permits, but if necessary, indoors will do.

This last survival of the old Easter ball games which our ancestors enjoyed even in church ought to be renewed whenever the weather stops short of a blizzard. Who can't remember those exciting searches for the Easter Bunny's hidden treasure and discovery of an egg here in a hollow tree or there behind a shrub?

"ALL-BRAN LIVES UP TO REPUTATION"

Her Constipation Overcome by This Delicious Cereal

If you are troubled with constipation, read Miss Bundy's enthusiastic letter:

"I would like to congratulate the one who discovered ALL-BRAN It really does live up to its reputation when it is said to 'relieve constipation.'

"I used to feel poor all the time —just down and out—and after reading an advertisement in a magazine about ALL-BRAN I got a box. It has evermore helped me, and it is not hard at all to eat."—Miss Mary Bundy, Bennettsville, S. C.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to correct common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes.

How much safer than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MENUS FOR THE WEEK-END

BY MARY MEADE.

For years nutritionists and homemakers alike have had controversy over the pièce de résistance of the main Easter meal. We hold the opinion that ham, by virtue of its popularity among children and grownups, has won the day. So we have given it the place of honor. Ham makes excellent luncheon and dinner leftovers which may be given the family later in the week. And cold ham sliced can be the starting point for several delicious plain and toasted sandwiches.

But before we deal with the subject of leftovers let's consider the baking of the ham. Wipe a ten pound ham with a damp cloth. Dry, and over the fleshy side sprinkle a little clove, a teaspoon of cinnamon and half a teaspoon of ginger. Then cover the ham with a thick paste of flour and water. Put the skin side down in a roasting pan and fill the pan with cider. Bake slowly for three hours at a temperature of 300 degrees F. Baste the meat frequently. Then remove the paste and rind. Return the ham to the baking pan, flesh side down. Brush the fat with beaten egg, sprinkle generously with chopped parsley and bread crumbs and continue the baking for one more hour. Make a gravy of the cider by boiling it down.

You will find that about four and one-half cups of pastry flour will be required for the "blanket" and about one pint of cider. If desired, a blanket can be made of this amount of flour, three tablespoons of mustard, one-half teaspoon of pepper, two tablespoons each of cinnamon and cloves, and one cup of medium brown sugar. Sift the ingredients together and add only sufficient water to make a soft dough. Roll the dough out about three-eighths of an inch thick and then wrap it about the meat. When you use this blanket for the meat, baste with water, not cider, in the pan. Bake and baste as directed.

Ham sandwiches made with minced ham and minced Bermuda onion on whole wheat bread; minced ham, hard-cooked eggs, parsley, and mayonnaise on rye bread; ham slices alternating with chicken slices on white toast; and minced ham mixed with chopped peppers and pimientos are a few sandwich combinations for lunch or early April picnics.

DIET HELPS GIRL ATHLETES TRAIN FOR OLYMPICS

Build Speed and Stamina by Right Foods.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

The approach of the 1932 Olympic games has nearly every candidate for the United States women's team watching her calories. Girl athletes have one opponent in common, the old jinx weight, which must be governed by diet as well as training to remain in form.

The most important item on all the girls' diets is fruit. Swimmers, runners, hurdlers, skaters, and jumpers admit without hesitation that fruit, in liquid, cooked, or raw forms, in the diet schedule is of great benefit as a conditioner. Whether the girls were reducing or gaining weight, fruit seemed to be the leveling agent by which they gauged the remainder of the meal.

Fatter Foods for Slender Girls.

For instance, fruit salad, with a light mayonnaise dressing, crisp rye toast and a glass of milk or cup of hot chocolate is a favorite lunch. The salad, for the slimmer ones, may be mixed with whipped cream, and toast made of white bread and buttered substituted. For those who are reducing, bananas should be eliminated from the salad, and French dressing made with very little oil served in place of mayonnaise. In this case the girls drink hot tea, with lemon, instead of the milk or chocolate.

All the girls eat hearty breakfasts. This includes fruit, one or two eggs, hot chocolate or milk, and if it does not violate the rules of their diet, buttered toast.

They Like Their Stews.

Vegetables also have a necessary place in the diet. Many of the girls prefer salads, though some preferred side dishes, such as peas, beans, spinach, broccoli, and cauliflower. But the surprising answer received was that many of the girl athletes liked their vegetables in stews and soups.

The kind of meat to eat and how it should be prepared is one that receives a great deal of attention from the feminine athletes. Pork is seldom included in their diets, for it is hard to digest, rich and greasy. All other meats, with the exception of chicken and fish, are eaten rare to derive the utmost in nutrition.

All Have Sweet Tooth.

It was hardly fair to delve into the tastes of the feminine athletes for pastry and ice cream. All admitted liking sweets and said "it was awfully difficult to give up desserts."

But they added, "a piece of pie or cake is much easier to forfeit than such as potatoes, white bread, pie, cake, and ice cream. One should also eat sparingly of sugar, milk, and cream. One should not starve in reducing, but just use a great deal of discretion in eating fattening foods.

"Of course none of the girls should use tea or coffee, but as some of them say they can't get along without it, I permit them to drink the beverage weak."

Miss Elizabeth Waterman, physical director of the same club and with the credit of training Betty Robinson, Helen Filkey, Evelyne Hall, Annette Rogers, and other cinder path record holders, agreed with the training diet of Mrs. Reilly as being equally beneficial for potential track stars.

Household Hints

To make cookies soft and still prevent sticking cover molding board with a linen cover; flour as you would the board.

Every child is entitled to one temper tantrum before he is four years old; but whether he has another depends on the way the first one was treated.

The miles she walks in her work, not to her work, are what make the homemaker weary. Rearranging equipment may reduce the distance.

a championship. After working and training for two or three years to compete in the championship ranks it is really worth a little self-control on the matter of eating to remain in competition."

Mrs. Lillian Reilly, swimming coach of the Illinois Women's Athletic club, who has trained such stars as Ruth and Jane Fauntz, Evelyn Kennedy, Emma Shemaitis, Dagney Van Maarth, and Jane Frye, said she paid little attention to the girls' weights until their swimming began to suffer.

Divers Train Off Weight.

"A swimmer not only has to train but also diet," says Mrs. Reilly. "For those who must reduce I recommend total abstinence from starchy foods

WHEN IT'S TULIP TIME IN HOLLAND SET OUT ONIONS

Anyway, the Dutch Stick to Raising Bulbs.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

It takes the Dutch to beat the depression. An entire colony of Dutch farmers and business men at South Holland, Ill., 30 miles south of Chicago, bless the set onion industry, which they have nurtured to a point where it pays their taxes, keeps them in bread and butter and all the trimmings, and enables farmers and dealers to pay outside help for labor several months each year.

Chicago consumes green and dry onions by the carload throughout the year. It is an interesting situation that finds a group of set onion growers only a few miles away producing a crop that is transplanted hundreds and even more than a thousand miles away, grown into bulbs and then shipped back here in large quantities for wholesale and retail trade.

Prices Come Up.

The first of the year found set onions of 1931 a losing crop, at least for the dealers who had contracted for them at 80 cents per bushel. Those sold at first to Florida, Texas, Arkansas, and Oklahoma were sold for but 90 cents a bushel of 32 pounds, although warehousing, cleaning, and bagging is considered efficiently done at a cost of 25 cents a bushel.

But now the price has risen to around $1.75 a bushel, and the carloads that are still to be shipped represent goodly profits. Those whose sets kept well this winter have an especially cheery countenance the last few weeks.

South Holland is the center of this set onion growing, involving four other communities of Lansing, Blue Island, South Chicago, and Thornton. In this area in Cook county there is an estimated total of 5,000 acres annually planted to onion sets and producing around a million bushels, or more than 90 per cent of the set onions grown in the United States each year.

Business Handed Down.

Grandfathers have retired, but fathers and sons carry on, either in growing these small red and white bulbs for garden and market planting or contracting with growers for a crop that can be stored away and later cleaned, sorted, and bagged for shipping to buyers. Sales this month are going largely to Iowa, while later on set onions will catch the eye among the gardeners' supplies in seed stores.

Charles Waterman, now president of the South Holland bank, and George Engel are credited by T. T. Gouwens, grower and shipper, with planting out the first onion seed for sets in South Holland. This was about fifty years ago. Now there are about 300 growers in and around South Holland and an estimated 1,000 producing sets in the lower part of Cook county.

Plots Range in Size.

Plots planted range from one acre to 80. The level black soil typical of the farms which the Dutch picked out scores of years ago are not considered of exceptional fertility, says Mr. Gouwens, but they are kept in good condition and as near weed free as possible.

Labor required during the growing season depends on the weather. Rains in quick succession mean that cultivation and weeding must be nearly as continuous as daylight and the soil condition will permit. Sunday is never a day of work for the Hollanders, yet in the other six days they will work 12 to 14 hours a day in the fields.

"We have come to estimate production according to the number of bushels of sets we get from a pound of seed," explained Mr. Gouwens yesterday. "The reason for this is that seed costs 80 or 90 cents or even a dollar or more a pound, which means a heavy investment for seeding. Depending on the season, the crop may be anywhere from a fair average of four bushels to the pound of seed up to seven or eight.

"We might set down the cost of a crop in the following manner, figuring on planting an acre to sets:

"Sixty pounds of seed, $48; fertilizer, $20; formaldehyde treatment, $5; rent of land, $15; rent of crates, 12; harvesting, $17, or a total of $117, not counting cultivating and weeding, which might be $25 to $40. This put onion sets into our storehouses in 1931 for 56 cents a bushel, but a wet, weedy year might make these same onions cost 70 cents or more."

The industry has been far removed from the early days, when seed was planted with a small hand drill and one and two wheel cultivators were used, for now six rows are usually taken each trip down a field. Shipments this year reached their height on March 1, when 17 cars went out from South Holland. A few other Cook county farmers raising onion sets each summer are located near Des Plaines and Morton Grove.

COOK COUNTY SHIPS ONIONS TO IOWA

COTTAGE CHEESE CAN BE UTILIZED IN MANY DELECTABLE DISHES

Cottage cheese offers an opportunity for the housewife to put inexpensive and yet a variety of dishes on the table. Salads, desserts, soups or sandwich spreads are easily made from cottage cheese, says Mrs. Alma A. Plagge, instructor in foods and nutrition at Iowa State college.

Creamed cottage cheese with cinnamon and sugar to taste makes an unusual dish. Chopped nuts, olives or pimento sometimes are mixed with it.

Other dishes include prune and cottage cheese salad, cheese and apple salad, cottage cheese pie, cottage cheese fruit pudding and lemon cheese treat.

TWO MORE FRUITS ADDED TO LIST OF ICED PRESERVES

Pineapple and Cranberry Frozen in Tests.

The pineapple and the cranberry are the latest fruits added to the rapidly growing list preserved by the frozen pack method.

Both of these fruits have been frozen and preserved experimentally under varied conditions at Seattle, Wash. Other fruits now preserved on a commercial scale by freezing are the strawberry, raspberry, cherry, apple, plum, and peach.

Pineapple Freezes Best.

Pineapple preserved by the freezing method has a distinct advantage over many other fruits in that it does not darken when exposed to the air. In the pineapple experiments it was found that the fruit kept best if it was fully matured at the time of freezing, that sugar in dry or sirup form was desirable in preserving it and that sugar sirup apparently gives a better texture to the sliced pineapple but does not affect the flavor of the crushed product. Freezing apparently does not affect the protein digesting power of bromelin, a characteristic enzyme, or ferment, of pineapple.

Cranberries were frozen whole and crushed and packed with sirup or sugar or without any sweetening agent and also packed after the cranberries had been made into a sauce by cooking with sugar.

Ordinary Container Preferred.

The texture of cranberries packed in vacuum containers was not as good as when ordinary containers were used. The cranberry apparently is the first fruit which is not well adapted to the vacuumized container. The cranberries were kept for several months at temperatures ranging from 5 degrees F. to 28 degrees F. Because of high acidity cranberries keep as well when frozen at higher temperatures as at the lower ones ordinarily used for the frozen pack method.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Use paper napkins instead of cheesecloth to strain fat that has been used for frying; it saves laundry.

Cream colored oilcloth bound with colored bias tape makes attractive kitchen curtains.

PATE DE FOIE GRAS OR GOOSE LIVER SAID TO BE CURB OF ILLNESS

BERLIN, March 24.—[Special.]—Devotees of Lucullus, tempting their jaded palates with pâté de foie gras—which practical Germans are content to call goose liver—may bring ease to their consciences if not to their internal organizations with the reflection that the noted Swedish scientist, Prof. Dr. von Euler-Chelpin, has assured a medical gathering in Berlin that "gaenseleber" possesses valuable properties.

Pâté de foie gras, Dr. von Euler-Chelpin has discovered, is plentifully supplied with vitamin A. This vitamin strengthens resistance to infectious diseases so that the consumer of goose liver can console himself with the knowledge that he is warding off the possibility of future ills, even at the risk of immediate discomfort.

Resistance to illness, however, is not the primary task of vitamin A, which is to encourage growth. And as the consumers of pâté de foie gras are in general persons of mature years they may find it difficult to convince their friends that their chief concern is for their health.

PETROLLE STOPS BATTALINO IN 12TH ROUND

MISSIONS ROUT HENRY IN 4TH INNING; BEAT CUBS, 11-4

BRUINS HIT LIKE CHAMPIONS BUT THINK LIKE DUBS

Add Mental Errors to Bad Pitching.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 24.—The knack of hitting was recovered by the Cubs today, but weaknesses broke out in new spots. They were guilty of excusable errors and inexcusable thinking in the field and on top of this were considerably embarrassed by ineffectual pitching. The Missions used all these against the major leaguers to win the daily exhibition, 11 to 4.

Much of the afternoon's activity centered around a pitching effort by John [Dutch] Henry, the ex-Tiger, Giant and White Sox southpaw. Henry was started with the idea that he might travel the full distance. But he didn't even come close.

He had to be recalled in the fourth inning, by which time the Missions were in possession of ten of their eleven runs. Ed Baecht finished the inning none too impressively and thereafter the Missions were kept in restraint by Jakie May and Sherwood Mackenzie, the youthful southpaw who belongs to Los Angeles.

The Cubs Hit a Few.

The Cubs gave a pleasing exhibition of how to hit in the early innings, but it didn't mean anything. Hack opened the game with a single and Herman beat out a bunt. Cuyler rolled as far as the pitcher and Moore lined into a double play. In the next inning Richbourg singled, English was thrown out, Grimm doubled, and Hartnett walked, filling the bags. This rally met an untimely end when Henry grounded into a double play.

Henry underwent such rough treatment in the second inning that he began to make inquiries about train departures for Minneapolis. Moseif singled and Welsh walked. Both scored on a triple by Sherlock, who scored in turn on a single by Dahlgren. The Cubs replied to this outburst by getting one run in the third inning, but it took singles by Hack and Herman and a double by Moore to do it.

Hartnett Pulled "Skuller."

In the Missions' third inning, Hartnett was guilty of what is known among the trade as a "skuller." It helped in the accumulation of three more runs off Henry. Sankey doubled, Hafey walked and Mosolf beat out a bunt which Henry lost under his shoe. Welsh flied to right and when Moore's throw reached the plate, there were two Missions on third base. Gabby didn't see them. He pegged to second to get the man going down from first base and before Herman could return the ball Sankey had dashed home from third. Sherlock then singled to score Hafey and Mosolf. That made the score 6 to 1.

The show became louder and funnier in the fourth inning and Henry was provided with relief, much to the satisfaction of himself and the few hundred spectators. This five run disturbance started with Ricca's single. Hack fumbled Caster's bunt. Mulligan bunted along the first base line and nobody thought about picking up the ball. That filled the bases. Sankey doubled to score a pair and Baecht then stepped in to aid Henry. Baecht managed to choke off the hilarity after two hits had scored three more runs.

Cubs Finally Score.

Before Caster could escape from the park in the fifth the Cubs clubbed home two runs. Hack singled through short and was forced by Herman. Cuyler bounced a single over the pitcher. Gudat, who had taken Richbourg's place walked. A single by English scored Herman and Cuyler.

Ted Pillette, a brother of Herman, once famous as a Tiger, went wild in the ninth after three innings of meritorious work and the Cubs were presented with a run. Hack doubled and was forced over on walks to Herman, Moore, and Gudat.

REFEREE HALTS BATTLE AS BAT BEGINS TO FADE

Bout Most Savage in New Garden.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 24.—The greatest cleaver and blackjack prize fight ever fought in the new Madison Square Garden came to queer, untimely conclusion in the twelfth and final round this evening when Gunboat Smith, the referee, stopped Billy Petrolle, an Italian from Fargo, N. D., and ordered him to desist from punching Bat Battalino of Hartford, Conn., the overgrown featherweight who lately resigned the championship of the 126 pound division.

Neither fighter had gone to the floor for an instant in eleven and more rounds of chin punching reminiscent of the forty round days of Gans, Nelson, and Wolgast.

Bat Fades Away in Twelfth.

In the twelfth round, however, Battalino suddenly and strangely began to fade under the force of punches which up to that time had rattled off his chin like bird shot off the skin of a dreadnaught. Battalino, naturally, was under suspicion, winning or losing, on account of his previous record, which may be looked up in any recent newspaper file or boxing record.

Gunboat Smith watched Petrolle firing uppercuts unimpeded and unretarded at Battalino's jaw for a minute and thirty seconds of the final round and, deeming Battalino to be helpless, stepped in and awarded the fight to Petrolle by a technical knockout. Battalino assumed an appearance of drunken stupor as he went to his corner and his seconds gave him great attention as he slid into his clownish red and white bathrobe to leave the ring. He seemed to be very well used up as he slumped off the platform and sagged away in the arms of his handlers, but Battalino had established a theatrical reputation in other fights before this one and there was naturally some reason to wonder whether he felt as ill as he seemed to feel.

Seconds Strangely Calm.

The fact remained that Bat Battalino, who has been one of the greatest featherweight and lightweight fighters of his time these last couple of years, was technically knocked out and a further interesting fact was that his seconds, contrary to the custom of the prize fight business, did not hop into the ring screaming and bleating against the injustice of it all.

But it is a matter of guess work and no importance except to the bookmakers, whether Battalino could have finished the fight on his feet to lose merely by a dicision.

The fight was one of those mad battles which become slightly histrionic on the sport pages, and the attendance, at a top price of $8, brought out 18,000, more patronage than the Garden had ever been asked to absorb since the day Tex Rickard, threw open the doors.

The receipts were announced as $65,000 gross, or $57,000 net.

While the fight was in progress, with Battalino lurching always forward, both arms swinging, the boys in the foremost ringside seats were seen to hold up the canvas aprons of the ring to protect their neckwear and the clean, white vastness of the typewriter sheets from the casual spray of the gladiators.

Battalino Looks Like Winner.

In the first five rounds of the fight It looked as though Battalino might somehow outnumber Petrolle to win. He was taking two punches to land one but, whereas Petrolle hitherto had knocked most of the good lightweights into loose attitudes with his left hook, here was the little grownup featherweight champion taking them on the chin and shocking Petrolle with loose, erratic counters of both hands, always to the head. There were not half a dozen body blows of any consequence in the entire fight.

Both boys fought from a forward posture, Petrolle whipping up his blows to the face and Battalino firing his with a rather more side arm motion to the ears and chin. Battalino was more substantial than he had been as a featherweight, and it was amusing to speculate on the force of the punches which put him down on a recent occasion when he was fighting his friend, Freddy Miller, in Cincinnati, and was interrupted by the referee, who thought he went down without due cause. Petrolle is one of the great punchers of his weight and time, but he was never able to set him back, much less upset him.

Petrolle in Line for Canzoneri.

Recalling the matter of the Battalino-Miller fight, the more cynical patrons naturally wondered what sort of meat Battalino had been feeding on that he could now fight Petrolle, toe to toe, and take two of Billy's famous clouts on the chin for the chance of landing one. It only contributed to the general confusion and, if one must say so, the suspicion regarding Battalino's sincerity.

For Petrolle, the fight won priority in the competition for a bout with Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight championship, but there is no telling how many bets may have been decided by the referee's sudden compassion. Battalino was not knocked out. He was not knocked down and he could have gone on to finish the fight, losing only by a decision.

Battalino weighed 135 pounds to Petrolle's 139.

SHAMROCKS WIN 30TH GAME, 4-2; EQUAL RECORD

Make Tulsa Ninth Victim in a Row.

The Chicago Shamrocks equaled the American Hockey league record of 30 victories for a season last night when they defeated the Tulsa Oilers, 4 to 2, at the Stadium in the final game of the regular schedule.

It was the Chicagoans' ninth consecutive triumph and followed one of the most pleasing hockey exhibitions of the year in the American league. Nothing was at stake except the Shamrocks' opportunity to tie Tulsa's record of games won, and both teams forgot hockey's usual rough tactics.

This made for beautifully executed offensive maneuvers, in which passing was at its best on both sides and body checking was practically negligible. Bouncer Taylor, Peewee Wiseman, Gordie Brydson and little Ching Johnson scored for the Chicagoans, while Marker and Hanson got the Oilers' goals.

Title Series Next.

The Shamrocks now will rest for the championship playoff early in April against the winner of the Duluth-Kansas City runnerup series.

The opening faceoff was delayed 20 minutes, as Mike Karakas, Shamrock goalie, was struck on the top of the head by a flying puck in practice. Eight stitches were taken in the wound and Mike took up his position wearing a football headgear.

Paddy Byrne, who plays goal for various teams in the league off and on and also referees, was in the Tulsa net and kept the customers amused with his fight to retain a clean slate and his equilibrium. Once when play was at the other end of the rink Paddy fell prone on the ice, cursing his skates. He said they were a bum pair. No statement was given out by the skates.

Paddy Falls in Wrong Place.

Play was fast, but lacked the customary desperation. This added to the exhibition instead of detracting from it, since it gave both teams a chance to skate and pass with more abandon. One of the Shamrocks' numerous well executed offensives clicked at a time when Paddy was not falling in the way of the puck and a score was recorded in 14:17.

Clayton passed to Brydson across the rink inside of the blue line. Brydson shot and McFadyen took the rebound, making a perfect pass out to Taylor. Taylor promptly essayed a chip shot which went in at a spot where Byrne arrived seconds later.

There was another five minutes delay at the start of the second period, and it was announced five stitches were being taken in Byrne. When Paddy appeared with a patch on his head, it was presumed the stitches had been taken in his ear, not his pants.

Both teams seemed more disposed to go somewhere in this period and play became faster as well as rougher, Tulsa battering its way to a tie in 6:37. Hanson carried the puck down the right side for a close shot at Karakas. Mike blocked the shot, but it slipped from his fingers and slid just over the red line for the score.

Faulty Shooting Costly.

Faulty marksmanship cost the Shamrocks several chances to score while Goalie Byrne was playing wing somewhere. Tulsa's best opportunity to break the deadlock ended when Karakas raced 30 feet out to the boards on the right side and fell on a loose puck which Marker was pursuing.

The tie eventually was broken by the Shamrocks with what was called a world's fair goal. It was scored in 19:33. Riley skated down center, threw the two defense men off balance and then passed between them to Wiseman right under Byrne's nose. Peewee faked a shot and then drove the puck high into the net.

There was no delay at the start of the third period although club physicians did their best to make somebody believe he was maimed so they might use up the last half dozen stitches on hand.

The Shamrocks' advantage was increased to two goals in 2:25 when Johnson scored on a solo effort. Fifteen minutes later Brydson scored on a pass from McFadyen. The last goal went to Marker on a pass from Sheppard in 19:17, bringing the final tabulation to 4 to 2.

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

While 24 young men from Chicagoland and a similar number from New York are nearing the end of their long preparation for the annual intercity Golden Gloves bouts, you may be interested to know that hundreds more are getting ready in Germany. The biggest amateur boxing movement in the history of the country already is under way.

The bravest and strongest of Germany's youth have been urged to apply for their vacations in July, so they will be able to make the trip to America to fight Chicago's Golden Gloves champions at Soldiers' field July 26 in case they qualify for the team.

There are eleven regional boxing organizations in Germany, all combined in the Deutscher Reichsverband für Amateur-Boxer. [Quick, boy, my text book.] Each of these groups will conduct an elimination tournament. Eleven teams of eight men each will be sent to Munich next week for a national meet to determine the personnel of the group that will fight Chicago.

The eight boys who survive the meet at Munich will be taken to Berlin, where they will battle French, Italian, and Danish teams. Thus, the Germans will have been tested in international competition before coming to Chicago. If weaknesses in the makeup of the squad are detected in the European bouts, substitutions will be made before the party leaves for America.

These amateur boxers will be the first German fistic notables to visit the United States since Max Schmeling came over with an extra shirt, a gaping bewilderment, and a manager who didn't know what it was all about four years ago. To the boys in the trade Der Maxie was just another one of "them foreigners."

From which you may conclude, and rightly, that there is nothing in sport comparable to the magic of the beak busting business. For those who have the stuff, plus the breaks and shrewd leadership, the jump from pancakes to caviar is swift and simple.

THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY.

Thomas J. Shaughnessy, president of the Chicago Shamrocks, submits the following comment concerning the Stanley cup:

"Your hockey writers emphasize that the Blackhawks have qualified for the Stanley cup playoffs. Evidently they are not informed of the fact, or deliberately ignore it, that the playoffs for which the Blackhawks have qualified are simply the National league championship playoffs. The board of trustees of the Stanley cup have decreed that the Stanley cup series shall be between the champions of the National and American leagues and there is no more basis for labeling the National league championship series as Stanley cup playoffs than there would be to confer the appelation on the American league playoffs.

"For a long time the National league has monopolized the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world's championship, simply because no other league challenged for the trophy. This year the American league has notified the trustees of the intention of its champion to challenge and under the rules governing the trophy competition this challenge must be accepted by the winner of the National league or the cup forfeited to the challenging team, and the president of the National league has been so notified by the trustees.

"The American league is desirous of having the hockey public correctly informed and I know that THE TRIBUNE is just as desirous of correcting any erroneous impressions that may be given to its readers."

Comment—William Foran, chairman of the board of trustees of the Stanley cup, last night said the committee would meet in Montreal today to make a decision on the American league challenge.

"Prior to that time any statements regarding the cup, the qualified challengers or action of the trustees are premature and unofficial," he remarked.

The directors of the National league in their meeting at Montreal March 12 drew up the playoff schedule with the understanding that the winner would be awarded the Stanley cup, according to William J. Tobin, business manager of the Blackhawks. Tobin said that President Calder of the National league had been told by Foran of the board of trustees that the American league challenge would not be accepted.

"Calder received this assurance some time ago when he visited Foran in Ottawa," Tobin stated. "The trustees had been reported to have accepted the American league's challenge. When Calder told Foran that the American league was not in good standing because its players were not being paid, Foran said that if that was the case the bid would be ignored."

GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM LEAVES FOR NEW YORK TODAY

Training Grind Finished; All Boys at Peak.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Gloves team leaves for New York at noon today. In Madison Square Garden on Monday night sixteen of the squad of twenty-four boxers will defend Chicago's intercity championship against the team sponsored by the New York News.

Chicago's team finished training yesterday. It is a splendidly conditioned crew of fighters which starts east. Led by Capt. Leo Rodak, bantamweight champion, who last year held the flyweight title and won both intercity and international honors, all the boys have put in two weeks at the Illinois Athletic club. Not only has their diet been subject of minutest scrutiny, but daily workouts on the road and in the gymnasium have brought these young men to highest physical strength.

Stop at Toledo for Sprints.

This afternoon at Toledo the boys will indulge in a short series of wind sprints. This, with the final workout this morning at the I. A. C., must suffice until the team takes its final boxing drill tomorrow afternoon at the gymnasium in the New York Daily News building.

Twelve of the 24 boys are from outside of Chicago. They won their places on the squad by fighting through sectional tournaments and the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium which ended March 9 with the semi-finals and finals. These boys are the best of 3,000 which commenced the fifth annual tournament held by 20 newspapers in five states and three metropolitan meets.

Name Fighters Monday.

The 16 boys who will fight Monday night will not be named until just before the bouts. However, it is understood that the eight champions will meet New York's eight champions. The Chicago squad is composed of the following:

Flyweight—Al Soukup, champion; Johnny Balzar and Al De Schepper.
Bantamweight—Capt. Leo Rodak, champion; John Ginter and Richard Noonan.
Featherweight—Joe Roman, champion; Gene Salvatore and Anthony Marcy.
Lightweight—Henry Rothier, champion; Dan Neenan and Stanley Krannenberg.
Welterweight—John Phagan, champion; William Celebron and William Treest.
Middleweight—Charles Neigo, champion; Ambrose Geoghagen and Charles Novak.
Light heavyweight—Vernon Miller, champion; Adolph Wister and Max Marek.
Heavyweight—Adam Smith, champion; Walter Karpinski and Gene Klopack.

The Chicago coaches, Johnny Behr, Benny Yanger and Jabber Young, have been responsible for Chicago's team conditioning. They have completed a splendid job. These same coaches have brought two successive titles to Chicago in the intercity series. In 1930, the first year they had charge of the Golden Glovers, Chicago defeated New York, 10 to 6. Last year Chicago piled up the overwhelming score of 13 to 3, winning six of the eight titles and seven of the eight secondary bouts.

To Washington After Bouts.

The team will leave from the La Salle street station at 12:40 p. m. on a special train which the New York Central will route as a section of the Twentieth Century. New York headquarters will be at the New Yorker hotel.

After the bouts Monday night the boys will remain Tuesday in New York. They will be guests of THE TRIBUNE at two shows while in New York and will tour the city. Wednesday the Golden Glovers will travel to Washington, D. C., where for two days they will visit points of historical interest, including George Washington's home at Mount Vernon and Arlington cemetery. The team will return to Chicago one week from today.

New suits were presented to the squad yesterday afternoon. They conform to the suit which Chicago always has worn in the intercity bouts.

OKAY, CHICAGO!

LOUIS SALICA.

These are two of the 16 fighters New York will send against Chicago in the intercity Golden Gloves bouts Monday night. Salica is a flyweight and Hogan a lightweight.

Dempsey Arrives in Chicago; Drills for Detroit Bout

Jack Dempsey arrived in Chicago yesterday from Toronto, Canada, to finish preparation for the last bout on his present tour, which started last August. He will appear at Detroit next Thursday against Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla. The former heavyweight champion looks tired, but bears only a cut on his right eyelid as evidence of his numerous exhibition bouts.

LEONARD SACKS.

From Detroit Dempsey will go to Reno, where he will establish a training camp. He was accompanied here by James C. McKay, his partner in various business endeavors, and Leonard Sacks, his manager. Sacks said the former champion plans a meeting with Primo Carnera at Reno early in July. He also said Dempsey would not consider any overtures for matches with Ernie Schaaf or Max Baer.

White Sox End Stay in Camp; Start North

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 24.—[Special.]—Lew Fonseca's spirited crew of 32 undefeated athletes is moving northward to Fort Worth tonight. Aside from a little practice paring which eliminated two stalwarts Tuesday, Manager Lew decided to let all hands ride with the team for a spell. So it is to be a great big happy Easter for several rookies.

The Sox manager and his principal performers on breaking camp expressed the belief that the routine here had placed the men in good physical condition. Since the big cold snap, which kept the Sox indoors for a week, San Antonio has enjoyed balmy temperatures, rising as high as 89 degrees.

They Look Pretty Good.

There has been little test of the team's baseball ability to date, but one or two of the minor league teams on their card should be able to furnish enough opposition to give observers slant on the ability of the outfit.

It is a pretty good guess right now, however, to say that the Sox probably will not land in the cellar this year, and they have a good chance to improve their seventh place rating of the two preceding years. While sixth place seems their likely windup, many would not be surprised were the Sox to climb to fifth.

Fonseca Is Popular.

Manager Fonseca has proved a popular boss during the first weeks of his incumbency though a strict disciplinarian. The only real bearing down he has had to do in the disciplining phase of his work was to order several of the players to travel on railroad trains. Lu Blue and Ted Lyons have new motor cars and hoped to drive them north, but Fonseca ordered them to get rid of the vehicles.

The Sox will play tomorrow and Saturday against the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas league, and then will journey over to Dallas for Sunday and Monday games with the Dallas Steers. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday they will be opposed by George Sisler's Shreveport Sports.

Doc Spears Says No to Wisconsin Again; Means It

Eugene, Ore., March 24.—(AP)—Dr. Clarence W. Spears, football coach at the University of Oregon, said positively today that he has definitely ended negotiations with the University of Wisconsin alumni who had asked him to accept a coaching position at that school.

DR. C. W. SPEARS.

Dr. Spears said he had not been in communication with the University of Wisconsin officials since he announced nearly two weeks ago that he will stay at Oregon.

He said, however, that since he announced this decision he had received many telephone calls from prominent Badger alumni.

VEENKER BUSY AT AMES.

Ames, Ia., March. 24.—[Special.]—While fans and alumni wondered, Coach George Veenker led the Iowa State football team in the first spring drill here today. Veenker was recently reported to have accepted a position on the coaching staff at the University of Wisconsin.

Veenker, speaking before several hundred Iowa State alumni last night at a college birthday celebration at Davenport, said he knew nothing of the Wisconsin position.

"The only thing I know about the Wisconsin job is what I read in the papers," he said.

Pla-Mors Score 3 Goals in 13 Minutes; Beat Fliers, 6-3

St. Louis, Mo., March 24.—(AP)—The Kansas City Pla-Mors defeated the St. Louis Fliers, 6 to 3, in an American Hockey league game tonight, the Fliers' final contest of the season on home ice. The Play-Mors made three goals in the final 13 minutes of play to double the Fliers' score, after the teams had stood in a 3 to 3 tie.

Canadiens Win First Playoff Game, 4 to 3

MONTREAL, March 24.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens defeated the New York Rangers, 4 to 3, tonight in the opening game of the playoff series between the first place teams in the National Hockey league's two divisions.

The triumph started the Canadiens, winners of the Stanley cup for the last two years, off ahead in their three out of five game series. The winner will go into the final playoff series, which may or may not be for the Stanley cup.

The Canadiens were out ahead most of the way tonight but they had a tough battle before they finally won. The Rangers twice came from behind to tie the score in the first two periods but lost out in the third when the Canadiens scored two goals before the final New York tally.

Howie Morenz, speediest of the flying Frenchmen, gave Montreal its first lead, and little Aurel Joliat did it the second time. In the third period Johnny Gagnon scored for Montreal and then passed to Pit Lepine for the winning goal. The Cook brothers did all the Ranger scoring, Bun getting the first goal and Bill the other two, both on passes from Frank Boucher.

STRANGLER LEWIS WINS 2D VICTORY OVER McMILLEN

Philadelphia, Pa., March 24.—(AP)—Strangler Ed Lewis of California survived five of Jim McMillen's flying tackles and then clamped a body press on the Chicagoan for a fall in 37 minutes 22 seconds in a wrestling match here tonight. It was Lewis' second conquest of McMillen.

Sammy Stein of Newark, N. J., threw Milo Steinborn, the German strong man, in 14:25 after four flying tackles.

MORTON ENTERS SEMI-FINALS OF STATE TOURNEY

Cicero Five Conquers Hillsboro, 29-12.

Tourney Facts

TONIGHT'S GAMES.
7:30—Canton vs. Lawrenceville.
8:30—Kewanee vs. Morton [Cicero].

YESTERDAY'S SCORES.
Canton, 19; Springfield, 12.
Lawrenceville, 31; Rantoul, 21.
Kewanee, 12; Benton, 11.
Morton [Cicero], 29; Hillsboro, 12.

Champaign, Ill., March 24.—[Special.]—Morton of Cicero went into the semi-finals of the Illinois State High school basketball tournament with a 29 to 12 victory over Hillsboro here tonight. Benton, southern Illinois' favorite, lost to Kewanee, 12 to 11, in tonight's other game.

Canton will meet Lawrenceville in the first semi-final game tomorrow night, while Morton and Kewanee will meet in the other. Morton, by virtue of Benton's elimination, is the favorite with Canton considered a dark horse.

Morton had little difficulty with Hillsboro, leading from the outset. Kopecky, forward, scored five baskets before he was taken out in the fourth quarter. Eral, guard, made four field goals. Martintoni, Hillsboro center, led his team with five points.

Lawrenceville won the right to meet Canton in the semi-finals by defeating Rantoul, 31 to 21, this afternoon. Canton defeated Springfield, 19 to 12.

Kewanee, the underdog, in its game with Benton did not lead until the final quarter, when Larson made a field goal to break a 9 to 9 tie at the end of the third quarter. Price made the victory certain with a free throw.

Kewanee Plays Safe.

Lawson, with less than a minute to play, scored a Benton basket, but Kewanee stalled the remaining time. Lawson scored three of the five Benton baskets.

Rantoul sent a small squad against Lawrenceville, but was a persistent threat until the fourth quarter, when it lost two men on fouls. At the half Lawrenceville held only a two point lead, 16 to 14.

Weger was the leading Lawrenceville scorer with 13 points, and McCulloch was the main stay for the losers.

Springfield Loses Lead.

Mester scored ten of the 12 Springfield points, seven in the first half. Vandermeer, tall Canton center, with four baskets and two free throws, led his team in scoring.

Springfield jumped into a 7 to 3 lead in the first quarter, all through Mester's efforts. In the second quarter, however, Canton made four points to tie the score.

Canton led, 10 to 9, at the end of the third period and then scored nine points in the final period when the Springfield defense cracked. Herschfield of Springfield went out on fouls.

Peterman's Sixth Chance.

It was the sixth time Coach Mark Peterman of Springfield had brought a team to the final round of the state championship. Peterman formerly coached Canton and five of his teams went to the final round.

HALL TAKES LEAD IN CUE MATCH WITH KIECKHEFER

Allen Hall took the lead over Augie Kieckhefer when he won both blocks of their 600 point three cushion billiard match at Mussey's Wabash avenue billiard room yesterday. Hall now leads, 400 to 391, in 358 innings.

Hall won yesterday afternoon, 59 to 50 in 56 innings, having a high run of 5 to Kieckhefer's 4. He triumphed last night, 65 to 41, in 51 innings. His high run was 10, Kieckhefer's 5.

The ninth and tenth blocks will be played at the Kieckhefer Recreation today and the last two at Mussey's tomorrow.

Kieckhefer took an early lead, 11 to 4, in eight innings. Hall made slight gains and got within 16 to 18 at the end of 22 innings. In the next four innings the champion scored 12 points to Hall's 11, but Hall continued to gain and took the lead at 32 to 31 at the end of 29 innings. Kieckhefer tied the score at 36 in the 35th inning and took the lead at 40 to 37 with 4 in the 37th. Hall made slow gains and counted his 50th point when Kieckhefer had 44. He added 9 more before the champion could register his 50th point.

In the night block Hall made a runaway. He led, 12 to 5, in 10 innings, and with a high run of 10 in the 21st he went into the lead, 35 to 14, and never again was headed.

BAIT CASTERS IN INDOOR TOURNEY AT OGDEN PARK

Leading fly and bait casters of Chicago will compete tomorrow afternoon in the first indoor casting tournament of the season sponsored by the Ogden Park Casting club. The tourney will be held in the Ogden park fieldhouse.

Competition will be in the ⅜ ounce and ½ ounce accuracy events.

SMITTY—THE CANDY KID

Brother Joe Is Bradley's Best in Derby Field

BY FRENCH LANE.

If it is to be a Bradley year in the Kentucky Derby, Brother Joe is the colt that will carry the famous green and white jacket to the victory.

That's what Col. Bradley says, and he ought to know. He has come to the conclusion that Burgoo King, which showed convincing signs last year that he was to be an extraordinary route runner, will never be much good at a distance of more than a mile.

There must be something about the colt Brother Joe that really speaks out for itself. For in the Derby Future book betting during the last week the price against him has dropped from 100 to 1 to 25 to 1. All I know about Brother Joe is that last spring he was the most highly regarded 2 year old in the Bradley stable.

Yet he wound up his 2 year old campaign a maiden, a colt that has never won a race. Maybe he is deceiving the Bradley folks again this spring just as he did about a year ago this time.

Certain wise turfmen have said to take the statement coming from the Bradley headquarters about Burgoo King with a grain of salt.

This dope about Burgoo King's shortcomings started several days ago when the Bradley trainer, Dick Thompson, was quoted as saying "Burgoo King hasn't got the size to be a Derby colt."

"Thompson might have been thinking about something else; he might have been dreaming of large juicy mutuel prices posted on the board in the infield on Burgo King at the end of the Derby," said one turfman.

However, I have yet to discover the Bradley people resorting to deceit to win a bet on a horse race, and I am inclined to believe that Burgoo King will not win the impending Derby.

It was Burgoo King's brilliant finish in the last Pimlico Futurity when he finished third and at the saddle girths of Top Flight and Tick On which made his reputation.

He was going faster than the two leaders when they passed the line of finish, according to folks who watched the race.

It was this race that caused some one to start the report, which has been widely circulated, that Col. Bradley had wagered $10,000 with Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago that Burgoo King would finish ahead of the Nash brothers' Burning Blaze in the Derby.

"I don't remember ever making such a bet," Bradley says. And the Nash brothers of Chicago can't remember it either.

If such a bet had been made the Nash brothers would surely remember it, for their colt Burning Blaze is at the Derby scene at Churchill Downs and the reports from his training camp are that he is going along even better than could be expected.

A copy of the instructions the Australian trainer Tommy Woodcock gave to Jockey Bill Elliott just before Elliott climbed into the saddle on Phar Lap in last Sunday's Agua Caliente handicap has just been received in Chicago.

The report was brought here by a Chicago turfman who arrived from the Mexican track yesterday.

According to this Chicagoan all Trainer Woodcock told Jockey Elliott was, "Get him out of the gate, gallop down the front side, and when you get to the back side find the shortest way home."

The form chart of the running of the race indicates that Jockey Elliott followed instructions. If he didn't, Phar Lap did.

The Chicagoan just back from Agua Caliente is worried about how most of the horsemen racing at Agua Caliente are going to get themselves and their steeds back to the central states and to the east after the meeting ends on Sunday.

"It has been a lean season, and if fresh money doesn't show up from some place 'The Covered Wagon' will be acted all over again, with the trek east instead of west," he said.

WOOD BEATS PAR TWICE TO LEAD PINEHURST GOLF

Pinehurst, N. C., March 24.—(AP)—Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., turned in two par breaking rounds of 69 today to gain the leadership in the 72 hole North and South Golf tournament.

Wood's 138 total gave him a two stroke advantage over Paul Runyan from White Plains, N. Y., whose 67 topped the first round cards. Wood's morning card showed five birdies and an eagle, while he shot the same number of birdies in the afternoon.

GIRL DIVER DIES OF BROKEN BACK AFTER 3 YEARS

Miami, Fla., March 24.—[Special.]—Anne Booker, 23 year old diving star, whose back was broken in executing a high dive at Vienna three years ago, died today at St. Francis hospital here.

"Miss Booker died as she had faced her injuries—smiling and conscious," said Mother Mary Alice of St. Francis hospital. "She had known for two weeks the end was near. We never tried to deceive Anne as to her true condition—she was too brave a person."

St. Johns, Out of Funds, to Close Track

Bayard, Fla., March 24.—[Special.]—St. Johns Park racing will end Saturday, because of heavy financial losses, it was decided today by the Florida Racing commission, acting on the plea of the management of the race track for a shortening of the session here. Racing at St. Johns is conducted by the Florida Jockey club and has suffered heavy losses since the opening on Monday. Bad weather has added to the difficulties of the meeting.

Closing of St. Johns Park and of the Agua Caliente meeting Sunday will leave no racing in any section of the continent until the opening of the eastern racing season at Bowie, Md., on Friday, April 1, the longest lapse of this sport in a decade.

Modesto Breaks Record.

Stepping the four furlongs in :48 4-5, Mrs. S. F. Murphy's juvenile filly Modesto established a new track record to score a three length victory over her eleven rivals in the best offering on the program today.

The daughter of Easter Bells, perfectly ridden by Jockey Leyland, opened up a wide margin soon after the barrier was released and continued in front for the remainder of the trip. Meany forced the pace of the record-breaker, but never seriously threatened her.

Meany Runs Second.

The latter finished second, a length in advance of Strait Jacket. The winner was held at odds-on and paid $3.50 for a $2 ticket.

Afridi proved his superiority over a field of eleven platers in the mile of the second event. Winnie C., the favorite, was rushed into command soon after the start, but weakened when challenged and finished second ahead of Pal to Pal. The winner paid $14.20 and stepped the route in 1:43 4-5.

A. A. U. Wrestling Meet Is Set for April 8 and 9

The annual Central A. A. U. wrestling tournament will be held at the Interfraternity club of Chicago on April 8 and 9, it was announced yesterday. There will be competition in nine weight divisions.

Bill Amos, Coach at W. & J., Injured as Car Hits Truck

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 24.—[Special.]—W. E. [Bill] Amos, star full back at Washington and Jefferson two years ago and until recently head coach at the college, was believed fatally injured today in an automobile crash. His companions were less seriously hurt when the car he was driving collided with a truck.

Amos was rushed to a hospital and placed on the operating table as surgeons tried to save his life. He suffered a skull fracture and a broken left arm.

Ald. I. E. Goodridge and E. G. Kaiser, both of Washington, Pa., suffered cuts and bruises.

Amos, an orphan, served with the 28th division of the A. E. F. He played full back on the division team and after the war entered Washington and Jefferson. He was made captain of the team in his senior year. Later he was associated with Coach Ray Ride, taking Ride's position when the latter resigned.

Amos for two years was coach at Washington and Jefferson, resigning Feb. 11. He also coached the track squad and the freshman basketball team.

Iowa State Wrestlers Elect Hess Captain

Ames, Ia., March 24.—[Special.]—Bob Hess of Cresco, 175 pound wrestler, has been elected captain of the Iowa State wrestling team.

Family Cares no Handicap to Mrs. Cowbird

BY BOB BECKER.

The cowbird, the species that lays its eggs in other birds' nests and lets them raise its young, is one bird that we never have seen around Chicago during the winter season. As far as looks are concerned, the cowbird is not much to see.

However, Mrs. E. H. Hollister of Williams Bay reports two "winter" cowbirds. She has had them around her feeding station and reports on this bird as well as other species as follows:

"I thought you might be interested in knowing that two cowbirds as well as three robins, one purple grackle and a large flock of starlings remained at my winter bird feeding station all winter.

Mingle Like Large Family.

"I have fed 100 pounds of chicken feed, quantities of suet, oat meal, rice, barley and sweetened corn meal cakes, to say nothing of bushels of stale bread contributed by my neighbor, Mrs. M. T. Peterson. It's very interesting to watch all these birds and the dozens of squirrels mingling like a large family, neither seeming to mind about the other."

The cowbird ordinarily spends the winter in the southern part of the United States or in central Mexico. It's the kind of a bird that will come and go without much notice from the average bird fan, because it wears no gay colored feathers.

The male has a brown head, neck, and throat, while the rest of his plumage may be described roughly as partly dark green and purple. The female is a drab, inconspicuous bird of pale brown and gray plumage.

No Home Life.

Anybody who wanted to write a story on the "Home Life of the Cowbird" would have a difficult time, because he has no home life. Apparently there is no mating of individual pairs and so far as is known the birds build no nests.

The female moves around slyly, depositing her eggs in the nests of smaller species of birds, thus shifting the duties of raising a family to those who are victimized by her depraved habit.

A. A. U. Lifts Suspension of Mrs. Balfe, Swim Star

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Mrs. Helen Meany Balfe, who was suspended by the Amateur Athletic union three years ago when she appeared in a Florida fancy diving exhibition without a permit, today was restored to good standing.

WAUKEGAN FIVE SHOOTS 2,775 AT A. B. C. TOURNEY

Former Champs Appear on Alleys Tonight.

Detroit, Mich., March 24.—[Special.]—Bob O'Farrell's five of Waukegan topped the 64 teams competing in the American Bowling congress tourney tonight. The Waukegan quintet shot 2,775, which will probably net it a slice of the $37,300 prize money. Dick Lyons Boosters, another Waukegan team, totaled 2,561.

Present and former A. B. C. champions will appear on the alleys tomorrow. Among them is Jimmy Smith of Chicago, rated as the greatest bowler of all time. Smith will shoot with a Youngstown, O., five and double Saturday with Mike Mauser, 1931 all-events champion. The Hub Recreations of Joliet, who captured the five man title with 3,063 at Chicago in 1929, and Larry Shotwell, who lived up to his name by setting an all-time singles record of 774 at Cleveland two years ago, also are scheduled.

Waukegan scores:

TWO NEWCOMERS MAKE MAT DEBUT ON FRONTON CARD

Two newcomers will make Chicago debuts on Tuesday night's wrestling card at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

One is Steve Sznosky, an American born Polish youngster, who meets Pat O'Shocker, Salt Lake City Irishman. The other is Leslie Grimes, a southerner. His opponent is Hans Bauer, Chicago German. Sznosky is a college graduate and has been doing all of his wrestling in the east.

Gino Garibaldi and Kola Kwariani meet in the semi-windup, with George Zaharias and Hans Kampfer wrestling the windup.

Kwariani and Garibaldi were matched a few weeks ago, but the Italian was unable to fill the date. Kampfer has piled up a string of victories.

A Shave as FRIGID as a Banker's eye

EVEN in these times of frozen loans and zero prices, Ingram's Shaving Cream is the coolest stuff on the market! It declares a soothing moratorium on every slip of the razor—scrapes, cuts and burns included.

A bad blade can do little damage when it meets up with this rich lather.

For Ingram's is loaded with three wonder-working things—things that give it the effects of shaving cream, lotion and skin tonic together! It soothes and cools long after the beard is gone.

And Ingram's is packed two ways, in a neat blue jar or a handy tube. Which you pick is a matter of personal preference. Jar or tube, the same cool, soothing cream is there!

Your druggist has both! And even he can't tell you which is better for your shaving!

RUTH HITS HOME RUN NO. 1; YANKS BEAT CARDS, 4-3

2,100 See Champs Lose Second Straight.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24.—(AP)—With Babe Ruth hitting his first home run of the spring exhibition season, the New York Yankees scored a 4 to 3 victory over the world champion St. Louis Cardinals today. The triumph was the Yanks' second over the Cards and their eighth in eleven games.

The biggest crowd of the season here, 2,100, saw Ruth send the Yanks away to a two run lead in the first inning, hitting his circuit drive off Bill Hallahan with Myrle Hoag on base. Lazzeri's triple and Dickey's double off Derringer in the sixth tied the game after the Cards had made three runs off Ruffing.

Derringer also yielded what proved to be the winning run. Gehrig walked, took second on a balk and scored on Chapman's single in the seventh. Score:

St. Louis	000 201 000	3	8 2
New York	200 001 10*	4	7 1

Batteries—Hallahan, Derringer, and Wilson; Ruffing, Allen and Dickey.

TIGERS LOSE, 14-11.

San Diego, Cal., March 24.—(AP)—The Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast league defeated the Detroit Tigers, 14 to 11, today in an exhibition game featured by three home runs, two with the bases loaded.

Quellich, star left fielder, got the first home run in the fifth with two on. Three were on base when White, Detroit center fielder, hit another homer, tying the score at 10 all. In the Hollywood half of the inning, after Mark Koenig had replaced Herring on the mound for Detroit, Bob Hipps, recruit first baseman for the Stars, hit into the right field stands to score three runners in front of him. Score:

Detroit [A.L.]	010 300 061	11	9 1
Hollywood [P.C.L.]	100 040 54*	14	16 1

Batteries—Herring, Koenig, and De Sautels. Wyatt; Turner, Thomas, and Bassler, Mayer.

GIANTS ROUT PIRATES, 5-1.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 24.—(AP)—Carl Hubbell outpitched Larry French today and the New York Giants downed the Pittsburgh Pirates in their first exhibition game, 5 to 1.

The Giants scored in the second on a walk, a hit, an error, and a passed ball. They added three more in the fourth on three hits, including a home run by Ott. The Pirates counted in the sixth on L. Waner's triple and a long fly by Comorosky. The Giants scored one more in the eighth on Ott's double, and sacrifice hits by Marshall and Verges. Score:

Pittsburgh	000 001 000	1	7 1
New York	010 300 01*	5	9 0

Batteries: French and Finney; Hubbel and O'Farrell.

NEWARK BEATS PHILS.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 24.—(AP)—The Newark Internationals, who have been treating big league clubs rough this spring, defeated the Philadelphia Nationals today, 5 to 3.

The Bears got the jump at Roy Hansen's expense and clinched the game in the fifth inning when Ed Holley developed a streak of wildness that gave them three runs. Score:

Newark	020 030 00	5	7 1
Philadelphia	000 120 00	3	7 2

Batteries—Sprece, Holsclaw, Manaux, and Hargreaves; Hansen, Holley, Nichols, Adams, and Todd

Rheumatism

New Medicine Guaranteed to Break Rheumatism's Grip

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

No matter how crippled and helpless you are with rheumatism; no matter how great your suffering; you can now ease that pain in a day, and break rheumatism's terrible grip on your system in less than a week or nothing to pay.

A $1 bottle of Ru-Ma is guaranteed to free your muscles and joints from all crippling stiffness and swelling, lameness and torturing pain or your money refunded.

No longer, discouraging wait while you wonder if that awful pain will ever stop; for it starts stopping right from the first day's use of Ru-Ma. Magically your muscles and joints limber up, swelling vanishes, aches and twinges disappear, away go limping and hobbling, crutches and canes.

So many once helpless rheumatic sufferers in this vicinity have been freed from rheumatic agony by Ru-Ma that Walgreen's invite you to try Ru-Ma under an ironclad guarantee of money back if it does not completely stop your rheumatic agony.

STRIKERS BATTLE POLICE; SEVERAL HURT IN CLASH

Pennsylvania Scene of New Outbreak.

Scranton, Pa., March 24.—[Special.]—The most serious outbreak since the beginning of the outlaw strike of more than 25,000 miners 11 days ago occurred today in Taylor borough, near here, when 500 pickets and their friends clashed with borough authorities and state police.

A half dozen persons, including Chief of Police James Morris of Taylor, were injured by rocks hurled by the mob.

Chief Morris and his policemen were getting all the worst of it when a detail of state troopers arrived from the Wyoming barracks, and drove their horses into the rioters.

James Gurnack, a picket, was armed with a meat hook and threatening miners going to work when troopers arrested him.

Michael Kepieck, another picket, had a blackjack when he was seized. Both were sentenced to jail for 30 days.

Pickets attacked automobiles carrying miners to work, tearing doors from some of the machines.

Edward Estok, a picket, may lose his life because he jumped on a miner's automobile. The driver ran his car against a telegraph pole and Estok was badly injured.

Fifteen pickets were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Through a mistake a deputy sheriff arrested Stephen Rausenbush, chief of the Pennsylvania state bureau of industrial relations. Gov. Pinchot had sent Rausenbush into the strike zone to make an investigation.

This Thief Seems to Have Bent for Matters Artistic

Thirteen sketches and caricatures of world figures, autographed by their subjects, were stolen last night along with an automobile, according to a report made to Hyde Park police. The pictures, the work of Herman Perlmann, are valued at $5,000. William Levy, agent for Perlmann, and T. G. Selander, both of 1840 California street, N. W., Washington, D. C., made the report. They said they had parked their car in front of the East View hotel, 4941 Lake Park avenue. The pictures were in the car.

Condition of Helen Keller Reported "a Little Better"

New York, March 24.—(AP)—The condition of Helen Keller, famous blind woman, who is critically ill at her home in Forest Hills, was reported as "a little better" tonight. Her secretary added, however, that she was still in a serious condition and that her physicans were fearful of the effects of an operation, "which will be avoided if possible." Miss Keller is suffering from a gall bladder trouble.

Edinburg, Tex., March 24.—(AP)—Louis I. Muckerman, identified by papers in his possession as a son-in-law of Bernarr Macfadden, New York publisher, was killed and Charles Murray, a motoring companion, was seriously hurt near here today in a motor car accident.

N.Y. BROADCASTER IN LAW NET OVER INSURANCE TALK

Case May Bring Curb on Air Advertising.

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—The first attempt to regulate advertising by radio through action under New York state laws brought a representative of the International Broadcasting corporation, operating station WOV, into the Court of General Sessions today.

Through the appearance of Louis H. Levin, counsel for the corporation, before Judge William Allen it was revealed that a grand jury has indicted the corporation and John Iraci, its general manager, for violation of section 50 of the state insurance laws.

That section prohibits foreign insurance companies from doing business in New York without a certificate of authority from the state superintendent of insurance.

Levin agreed to furnish $100 bail for Iraci, who is now in Washington. The case will be heard on March 30.

Action against the International Broadcasting company arose because J. Leverne Wood of the state insurance department on Nov. 29, 1930, happened to be listening to the radio in his home. He heard a speaker urge listeners to make use of the Union Mutual Life company of Iowa, and announced that the company could sell insurance at a lower rate than others.

Wood did not recall that the Union Mutual company had ever obtained authorization in this state and investigated, discovering that the company actually was not authorized here, had no office here, and consequently appeared to violate the state insurance laws.

Madison, Wis., March 24.—(AP)—Carl O. Gebhardt, 71, editor of the Staats-Zeitung and the Botschafter, German newspapers formerly published here, died today after an illness of five years. His widow, a son, and a daughter and two brothers, Chief Justice Frederick Gebhardt and Paul Gebhardt, a banker, both of Dresden, Germany, survive.

BITE OF SPIDER KILLS DETECTIVE SGT. GALLAGHER

A spider bite, developing into an infection, caused the death yesterday of Sergt. Patrick Gallagher, head of detectives at the Wabash avenue station. Sergt. Gallagher, a native of Ireland, lived at 7216 Rhodes avenue. He would have been 54 years old today.

The spider bit Sergt. Gallagher on the leg three weeks ago while he was at his desk in the Wabash avenue station. The next day his leg was swollen and he was taken to the Auburn Park hospital, where he died. Sergt. Gallagher joined the police force twenty-four years ago and was regarded as one of its most popular members.

Surviving Sergt. Gallagher are his widow, Mary, and eight children, ranging in age from 3 to 21 years. Funeral services will be held on Monday at St. Columbanus church. Burial will be at Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

Veteran Engineer Dead; Put Arc Lights in Chicago

San Diego, Cal., March 24.—[Special.]—Dave F. "Daddy" Drake, 82, veteran of early incandescent days, who installed the first arc lights system in Chicago in 1880, died here yesterday after a brief illness. Drake, retired for the last eight years, was known throughout the nation as an electrical engineer. He was also dean of the Westinghouse salesmen. Drake entered Edison's experimental laboratories at the age of 21 and during his five years there assisted in the development of the duplex and quadruplex systems of telegraphy and with electrical projects.

CHARLES F. NAGL, FEDERAL BLDG. CUSTODIAN, DIES

Charles F. Nagl, for thirty-one years custodian of the federal building and former general superintendent of the West Chicago Street Railway company, died suddenly of heart disease in his home at 6650 North Washtenaw avenue last night. He had worked as usual yesterday. He was 74.

Mr. Nagl rose from an immigrant Austrian boy. As a federal official he received a unique distinction accorded to no other—that of receiving three two-year extensions of time from the federal civil service board after he had reached the retirement age of 70.

Mr. Nagl was born in Zwittau, Austria, and came to Chicago when he was 14 years old. He worked as a water boy for the horse car line in Madison street. He became a conductor, a "tripper," a dispatcher, and in 1883 a division superintendent. In 1888 he was made general superintendent. Nine years later, Mr. Nagl was appointed a deputy collector of the internal revenue department, and in 1901 was made assistant custodian of the federal building, where he remained until his death. Officially, Mr. Nagl was assistant custodian, the nominal custodian being Collector Anthony Czarnecki.

Funeral services will be held probably tomorrow, with burial at Forest Home. Surviving Mr. Nagl are his wife, Ida, and daughter, Marie.

BOY KILLED BY TRUCK AS GIRL TRIES RESCUE

David Langer, 5 years old, 1708 West 15th street, ran into the path of a motor truck last night when he started to cross 18th street at Paulina street. He was struck and fatally injured as a girl companion, Rena Kamstra, 8 years old, 1744 West 14th place, grasped at his sleeve in an effort to save him. She was brushed aside by the fender of the truck and suffered only bruises. David died in the county hospital. The driver of the truck was Joseph Ryan, 35 years old, 4545 Maypole avenue.

This death and two others during the day increased the Cook county motor fatality toll to 248 since Jan. 1. The other victims:

Edward Hollander, 62 years old, 2306 Potomac avenue, a brother of Albert H. Hollander, president of the Hollander Storage and Moving company. Died in St. Elizabeth's hospital a few hours after he was struck by a motor truck at Western avenue and Bloomingdale road. Louis Colombani, 19 years old, was the driver.

Mrs. Nettie Bentson, 46 years old, 1418 West Center street, Park Ridge. Died of a skull fracture suffered on Dec. 27, when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another car at Henderson street and Long avenue.

MIDDLE WEST LEADS TRADING IN MART HERE

Hall Printing Shares Drop Slightly.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Irregular liquidation forced prices lower yesterday on the Chicago exchange. Trading was slightly more active but there was an absence of news to influence traders one way or the other. The carrying out odd and ends of necessitous selling was sufficient to cause an irregular retreat in prices.

Transactions in Middle West Utilities common accounted for nearly half of the day's total volume of 64,000 shares. The issue continued weak, breaking through to a record bottom of 1¼ as sales approached 29,000 shares. There was no spot news to account for the selling which came in in somewhat larger doses. Selling at present prices the issues are unacceptable as collateral which has forced the clearing up of several accounts over the last month.

Paid Dividend Recently.

The company's 6 per cent preferred stock, which is still nominally on a regular $6 annual dividend basis, was quoted yesterday at 8. The last dividend of $1.50 was distributed Jan. 15 on the preferred. A quarterly of 2 per cent in stock was paid at the same time on the common stock.

Timidity of buyers coupled with continued offerings caused a further recession in Commonwealth Edison yesterday of 2¾ points. Similar weakness in Public Service company of Northern Illinois shares resulted in rather sharp losses. The 6 per cent preferred, generally regarded as a high grade issue, sold off another 5 points to 70 on a 50 share turnover.

Hall Stock Drops Slightly.

Official announcement that Hall Printing earnings for 1931 exceeded $1,000,000 failed to stir any interest in the stock that the price declined fractionally. Fifty shares of Zenith Radio appeared on the tape at 75 cents as the company reported that operations for the quarter ended Jan. 31 resulted in a net loss of $98,603, compared with a loss of $165,386 in the comparable period last year.

New York, March 24.—Directors of the Reading company today declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock. In the preceding quarter the company paid 50 cents a share, prior to which the stock had been on a $4 annual basis.

The Vichek Tool company of Cleveland omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on preferred stock due at this time.

The American Ship Building company declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, placing that issue on a $3 annual basis, against $5 previously.

The Maryland Trust company declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents, placing capital stock on a $1.20 annual basis, against $1.60 previously paid.

The National Shawmut Bank of Boston declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents. Previously 75 cents quarterly was paid.

Banque de Paris et des Pays Bas declared a dividend of 60 francs per share, compared with 100 francs in 1930. The net profit was 24,900,000 francs, against 67,200,000 francs. Payment of the dividend required withdrawal of 12,300,000 francs from surplus.

Great Britain and Canada Investment corporation of Montreal has deferred the dividend due April 1 on the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock.

RESERVE BANK FINDS INCREASE IN EMPLOYMENT

Midwest Pay Rolls Also Expand.

Leading commodity and security exchanges, including the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade, will be closed today, Good Friday. The Chicago live stock market will be open. Banks will also be open. Major exchanges will resume operations tomorrow.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There is no doubt that widespread unemployment, with the resultant curtailment in purchasing power, is the chief obstacle to the return of good times. But this obstacle is being gradually surmounted, at least in the middle west, according to the monthly review of the Chicago federal reserve bank. There is the suggestion that industrial employment is gaining more than wages, but the prime need now is to put the idle to work at a living wage.

"Industrial employment and pay rolls gained between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15, according to reports from 2,672 firms," the review says. "Employment increased more than the February average of recent years, while pay rolls expanded less than usual. The trend in number employed and in their earnings has been steadily downward since late in 1929 and the gains reported for February were the fourth in employment and the eighth in wages in over two years.

Seasonal Gains Noted.

"Manufacturing employment determined the upward trend, as seasonal gains occurred for both men and pay in four groups, in two others for employment only, and in one group for pay rolls only. Estimated from monthly changes, manufacturing employment was slightly higher on Feb. 15 than in October and November, 1931, which were the lowest months of the depression to date, but was more than 15 per cent below February, 1921. Pay rolls were larger than in November, 1931, but fell short of a year ago by over 25 per cent.

"Seasonal trends have not been clearly visible during the depression period. However, the gains of last month in most groups corresponded quite closely to the February trend for previous years. Greatest improvement occurred in leather products, vehicles, and textiles. Wood products had larger pay rolls, with employment practically unchanged. Seasonal declines were reported for paper and printing and food products, while chemicals, which usually show February expansion, also had fewer employés and smaller pay rolls.

Continue Decline.

"Nonmanufacturing totals continued the unbroken decline which has been in evidence since last June. The downward trend was shared by all groups, except for larger pay rolls at Illinois coal mines as a result of longer hours near the middle of February."

For the 14 groups, composed of 10 manufacturing and 4 nonmanufacturing, there was a gain of 1.3 per cent in number of wage earners and an increase of 1.4 per cent in earnings.

HOARDING DECLINES

Further improvement in financial conditions was reflected in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system. Progress in the anti-hoarding campaign was shown by the fact that total money in circulation registered another decline of $42,000,000. Total money now in circulation is $5,480,000,000. More than half the decline in money occurred in federal reserve notes, which showed a shrinkage of $28,447,000, bringing the total amount of this currency down to $2,572,815.

At the same time, the country's stock of monetary gold increased $7,000,000 and now totals $4,381,000,000. Gold reserves of the federal reserve banks expanded $10,808,000 to a total of $3,007,487,000. The amount of credit now being extended by the reserve system, however, showed moderate contraction. While borrowings of the member banks increased $4,791,000 to a total of $655,583,000, the reserve banks absorbed credit from the open market by disposing of $24,018,000 of bankers' acceptances and $7,164,000 of government securities. Their deposits increased $5,381,000. Their ratio of total reserves to liabilities rose to 70.6 per cent, compared with 70 per cent last week.

Credit Needs Decline.

With sagging prices in the securities markets, the amount of credit needed by brokers declined. The weekly report on brokers' loans, issued by the federal reserve board, showed a decline of $37,000,000, bringing the total down to $824,000,000, which is $1,384,000,000 below a year ago. The New York banks reduced their own loans by $32,000,000 and interior banks withdrew $5,000,000.

Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. Maintains Strong Position

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company maintained a strong financial position while carrying out an ambitious expansion program in 1931, the pamphlet report issued yesterday shows. At the close of 1931 current assets were $32,338,213, including cash of $4,027,596, against current liabilities of $4,308,966. Inventories stood at $13,834,216 against $14,820,080 at the end of 1930. Reserves were $860,947 compared with $1,727,599. Earned surplus dropped from $17,899,110 to $16,840,313 at the end of 1931. Net earnings of $1,256,431 for 1931 against $3,604,609 were the same as shown in the preliminary report.

Sterling Up About 7 Cents in Sharp Rise

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Closing of the London market for the Easter holidays, which last there until next Tuesday, and the absence of official selling to keep down the price contributed to a sharp rise in sterling exchange today. Advancing about 7 cents, the cable rate made its best gain since the 20 cent rise of a fortnight ago. The closing quotation was $3.70⅝, or a net gain of 6⅝ cents.

Foreign exchange dealers attributed much of the activity to speculation on the theory that the British government would be unable to exert pressure on the price until early next week. England's policy has recently been to hold sterling down, presumably because she did not desire to attract unduly large sums of money to the London market from which they might be suddenly withdrawn, thus causing new embarrassment. Efforts to stabilize the pound, it is believed, will not be made for some time, at least until after the empire conference in July.

Expect Lower Discount Rate.

Although the Bank of England today made no change in its bank rate of 3½ per cent, following the weekly meeting of the board of directors, the sterling rise revived rumors that another reduction might soon be announced.

Part of the demand for sterling apparently came from France, for francs were heavy, losing ¾ of a point net here. Norwegian, Swedish and Danish currencies, which have been following the pound since the gold standard was abandoned, improved substantially. Japanese yen were also stronger on news of a political compromise.

The United States' monetary stock of gold was increased $4,001,800 today as a result of an importation of $999,300 from Canada and a decrease of $3,002,500 in earmark account. There were no exports.

London Market Quiet.

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet. The strength in sterling caused by foreign buying helped gild edged securities. German bonds and industrials improved, but movements otherwise were narrow. The closing was quiet and steady.

Paris Market Strong.

PARIS, March 24.—(AP)—The bourse was inactive, but the few trades which took place showed a better tone.

Berlin Market Firm.

BERLIN, March 24.—(AP)—Prices improved slightly on the boerse after an uncertain opening.

HEAR U. S. STEEL WORKERS TO GET NEW STOCK OFFER

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Reports were heard in Wall street today that the United States Steel corporation is considering an additional offering of common stock to employés.

As the story ran, the corporation reached this decision because the 200,000 shares offered Feb. 2 at $40 a share were oversubscribed. The amount of the new offering, it was said, will be proportioned to the amount of the oversubscription, the price to be determined by market values at the time of the offering. Officials of the corporation had no comment to offer on the report.

In trying to account for the recent persistent selling of U. S. Steel preferred, some Wall street interests are turning once more to the previously aired theory that insurance companies are liquidating their holdings. Whether true or not this story is not easy to prove, since insurance companies as a rule give very little information regarding changes in their investments.

American Insurance Union Elects Directors

Columbus, O., March 24.—[Special.]—Three directors were elected at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the American Insurance Union, Inc., here yesterday. Those named were William Baker, Kansas City, counsel for the American Conservation company, allied with the Trans-Continental Shares, Inc., Chicago; Judge C. S. Younger, Columbus, and Mrs. Mary E. Colburn, Columbus, president and secretary of the A. I. U. respectively. Baker and Younger are known to be supported by the Trans-Continental Shares, Inc., which several weeks ago gained control of the Columbus company. Whether Mrs. Colburn was also favorable to Trans-Continental was not ascertained.

Auburn Automobile Sales for Three Months Decline

Sales of the Auburn Automobile company for the three months ended Feb. 29 were 4,028 cars, including 186 for export. This was a decline of 39.7 per cent from the 6,668 cars sold in the comparable period of last year.

CHICAGO TRADE LEADER OPPOSES THE GLASS BILL

Passage of the Glass bill to curtail collateral loans by national banks would be a serious mistake, especially at this time when the government is bending every effort to ease the credit strain, according to George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mr. Rossetter's protest in the name of the Association of Commerce on the Glass measure now under consideration by the senate at Washington has been sent to the senate committee on banking and currency, to all members of the Illinois congressional delegation at Washington and to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with the request that it act promptly to defeat the proposed legislation.

"Curtailment of collateral loans would lower all security prices immediately, when the decline in prices which has already taken place has made the financial situation of many corporations and individuals a difficult one," said Mr. Rossetter. "It would force banks to curtail their loans to customers on collateral, which is the only security these customers have, at a time when borrowers are having difficulty in paying their debts.

"Now, when the government is using every effort to restore confidence, it would seem inopportune to arouse agitation against banks."

NO. AMERICAN LIGHT TO RAISE CAPITAL STOCK

Stockholders of the North American Light and Power company at the annual meeting yesterday approved the amendment to the charter increasing the common stock from 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 shares. The stock will be used yearly until 1936 to obtain funds to retire maturing notes.

The company's annual report shows 1931 gross earnings of $46,303,836, against $47,157,845 in the preceding year, a decline of 1.8 per cent. Net was $4,215,952, equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.85 a share on the average number of common shares outstanding during the year. This compares with $5,409,956, or $2.69 a share on the common in 1930.

More Receivers for United Paper Board Co.

New York, March 24.—(AP)—The federal court today appointed the Irving Trust company and Sidney Mitchell ancillary receivers in equity for the United States Paper Board company. That concern, capitalized at $14,000,000, controls the Benton and Fairfield railroad of Maine and the Upco corporation. The combined balance sheets of the three companyies at the close of last year showed assets slightly in excess of $14,000,000 and liabilities of approximately $1,000,000. Temporary difficulties, due to lack of liquid assets, caused the original petition in equity to be filed in New Jersey yesterday by J. Anderson & Co., a creditor to the extent of $6,147.

Curtiss-Wright Proposes Capital Stock Reduction

In line with action taken by a number of other companies, the Curtiss-Wright corporation yesterday announced the proposed reduction in capital represented by outstanding class "A" and common stock from $40,887,864 to $7,462,122 and the transfer from capital to capital surplus account of the difference. It is also proposed to put the 2,000,000 class "A" and the 10,000,000 common shares of no par value on a $1 per share par value. Each outstanding share of both classes of stock would be exchangeable for one new share.

SANTA FE REPORTS 656 NEW INDUSTRIES ALONG ITS RAIL LINES

During 1931 there were 659 new industries located along the lines of the Santa Fe railway system, according to J. H. McCabe, assistant freight traffic manager. Of that number 565 were permanent and 94 temporary. It is estimated that the yearly freight revenue from those permanent industries will amount to $6,250,000.

"Industrially 1931 was a house cleaning year with our industries," Mr. McCabe said. "Strenuous efforts were made to eliminate unprofitable operations. Some of the large oil companies took over smaller oil and gas companies and closed up distributing stations where there was a duplication of facilities."

NORTH SHORE RY. WINS CASE IN U.S. COURT HERE

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday dismissed the case of the United States against the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad company. In that case the government tried to enjoin the railroad from the issuance of further securities without approval of the interstate commerce commission. Judge Woodward ruled that he did not have jurisdiction.

Attorneys for the railroad contended that it was an interurban electric railroad and subject to the jurisdiction of state commissions rather than of the federal commissions. Since March 1, 1920, its securities have been approved by the Illinois commerce commission and the railroad commission of Wisconsin, now the public service commission of that state.

In a decree dismissing the case Judge Woodward found that the company at all times has been and is now an interurban electric railroad and that all securities of the line were validly issued.

Diamond T Reports Gain in Truck Export Sales

C. M. Wynne, export director of the Diamond T Motor Car company, reports an increase in sales during the last thirty days, with orders for immediate shipment from Porto Rico, the Philippines, Mexico, Belgium, Holland, and South Africa. Due to the large increase in the sugar crop, Porto Rico is taking more trucks this year than heretofore. The distributor at Shanghai, China, who specified a large quantity of trucks for delivery this year cabled this week that the situation there is better and the company would carry on.

MID-CONTINENT AGAIN GETS $1 FOR CRUDE OIL

Price Boost in "Gas" Is Expected.

Tulsa, Okla., March 24.—(AP)—Increased retail gasoline prices were predicted freely today as additional companies followed the example of the Continental Oil company, which last night boosted crude oil quotations to the dollar mark.

The new price, effective in the mid-continent area, boosts present quotations for crude 15 cents a barrel. A top of one dollar a barrel will be paid, effective April 1, for high test oil.

This was the first advance in crude oil prices in the important mid-continent field since last Nov. 2. An increase to $1 was sought vainly by state officials of Oklahoma, Kansas, and Texas in a campaign for restriction of production last summer and fall. Prices were as low as 10 cents.

Drastic Measures Taken.

Gov. William H. Murray out Oklahoma's output by martial law. National Guardsmen of Texas also were called out. The Kansas flow was reduced by civil action.

Sinclair-Prairie was the first of the larger independents to meet the Continental advance. Barnsdall offices later announced that company would join in the increase. The Barnsdall corporation and the Magnolia Petroleum company, one of the principal producing properties of the Standard Oil Company of New York, later posted similar advances. Officers of Standard Oil of New Jersey and of Sinclair expressed belief that their companies would undoubtedly follow suit.

Time for Adjustment.

Much comment was directed toward the advance notice given by Continental company, affording refinery and sales departments time to prepare for the increase. It was pointed out that heretofore increases have been announced effective immediately, or retroactive, and throwing other departments into temporary confusion.

The Continental announcement and subsequent reports from other companies were received with enthusiasm here, where many oil companies have operating headquarters. It was agreed generally that an advance in gasoline prices is imminent. Tank car prices for gasoline, now around 4½ for middle grade United States motor standard here, are expected to advance to 5 to 7 cents within a short while, bringing about a 2 cent increase in the retail price. Best grade white gasoline sold for 15 cents here today.

Reasons for Increase.

Principal reasons for the increase are the controlled operation of flush fields like Oklahoma City, East Texas, and Kettleman Hills [Cal.], to prevent overproduction and field destruction: the approach of summer and the season of peak gasoline consumption, and the decision of operators to obtain more money for their product in an effort to avoid losses incurred last year. Prices of basic gravity crude oil in the mid-continent field, which stood at 95 cents a barrel on Jan. 1, 1931, reacted to a low point of 33 cents a barrel on June 1, causing heavy operating losses. The price later rallied, reaching 77 cents a barrel on Nov. 2, and now is being advanced to 92 cents.

It was pointed out that a firmer crude price scale will work against price cutting by the smaller refiners, who buy all their oil and who will find their margin of profit sharply reduced. Another result will be to enhance the value of inventories, which had been substantially reduced at the end of last year.

Fox Eastern Theaters May Reorganize

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 24.—A plan of readjustment of the funded debt of the Fox-New England Theaters, Inc., has been proposed by the company, according to a circular issued by Halsey, Stuart, & Co. The plan will comprise the usual feature of advancing the position of holders of convertible debentures to that of first mortgage bondholders.

Holders of $3,621,900 outstanding 6½ per cent convertible sinking fund gold debentures of the company, one of the principal subsidiaries of Fox Theaters corporation, would have the privilege of exchanging their holdings pro rata for $3,326,000 first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds pledged as additional security for the debentures.

February Interest Unpaid.

The interest payment due on the debentures on Feb. 1, 1932, was not paid, although the company paid in full the interest requirements due the same day on its $13,852,500 first mortgage bonds, of which the amount being offered to debenture holders is a part.

The first mortgage bonds which will be delivered in exchange for the debentures will bear interest from Aug. 1, 1931. The bond issue is subject to an agreement between the company and present holders of the bonds deferring the sinking fund payments for one year.

Net earnings of Fox-New England Theaters, Inc., for the twelve months ended Oct. 25, 1931, were reported at $750,650 available for interest and other charges. The maximum annual interest requirements on the total funded debt upon completion of the proposed exchange of first mortgage bonds for debentures will total $692,625, or 5 per cent on the total amount of bonds.

Bankers Discuss Foreclosure.

The circular of the bankers points out that a forced foreclosure of the indenture securing the debentures can only be made subject to the first mortgage. Such a step, they say, would prevent the waiver of the sinking fund from becoming effective and would put the first mortgage bondholders in a position to foreclose.

In such an event, the debenture holders would be obliged to protect their position. No protective committee has been formed despite the default in interest on the debentures on Feb. 1.

Real Silk Hosiery Co. Adds 4 New Directors

Four new directors were elected to the board of the Real Silk Hosiery company at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. The new members are George W. Borg, chairman of the Borg-Warner corporation; Clement Studebaker Jr., president of the North American Light and Power company; G. A. Efroymson, and Howard E. Blood. Other directors and officers were reelected. Porter M. Farrell, president, explained at some length the manner in which stock of the company was sold to officers and employés.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 24.—The share market did little more than answer roll call today.

Traders had their minds in a muddle over the struggle down Washington way to raise the wherewithal for balancing the national budget.

Petroleum shares got ambitious for a while in the forenoon dealings, following the announcement that the mid-continent price on crude would be boosted 15 cents a barrel to a top of $1 on the first of next month, but general interest was at too low an ebb to be disturbed by the demonstration and the pool backing the move eventually gave up its efforts. Thanks to the upturn, however, the oils managed to hold around last night's closing levels, which was better than most other groups were able to do.

Hit Vulnerable Issues.

Operators for the decline were busy pecking away at supposedly vulnerable issues here and there throughout the session, but the talk of a possible short squeeze before the new exchange loan ruling goes into effect and the sudden show of strength in the wheat and cotton markets kept them pretty well within bounds. Most of the old time mainstays, too, revealed support under pressure and this lent a steadying influence to the entire list.

A. T. & T. Shares Hit.

Some of the most aggressive selling of the day was leveled at R. H. Macy, the big New York department store issue which has been under pressure since the cut in its dividend some ten days ago. The stock was driven down to a new all-time low on a loss of more than 4 points, about half of which it later recovered.

Another conspicuous soft spot was American Telephone. Word was going the rounds that the company had lost considerable business since the first of the year and the bear contingent made the most of the rumors in their efforts to start a drive on the utilities. General Motors gave way to a new low under fresh selling, ignoring the company's sales campaign plans published overnight.

STATE'S FACTORY LEADERS ASK RAILWAY RELIEF

Would End Recapture Clause of Law.

Declaring that the present financial condition of the railroads is the most deplorable in their history, the board of directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association has urged repeal of the recapture provision of Section 15-A of the transportation act. The repeal, the association argues, should be made retroactive in its application.

Copies to U. S. Senators.

The resolution, copies of which are being sent today to Senators Otis F. Glenn and James Hamilton Lewis, also recommends the repeal of the "present rigid rate making provision of Section 15-A" and suggests that there be enacted in its stead a flexible rate making provision such as is proposed by the carriers.

The Manufacturers' association directors also asked the repeal of Section 19-A and proposed "that in its stead there be enacted a provision that the railroads furnish to the interstate commerce commission from time to time a statement of additions, betterments and improvements, which, together with the work already compiled will constitute all that is valuable to the public in the present valuation provisions of Section 19.

Rail Bonds as Investment.

"The present financial condition of the railroads of the United States," the resolution says, "is the most deplorable in their history, with net returns probably the lowest on their property investment ever recorded.

"Bonds issued by railroads are largely held by savings banks, insurance companies and trust funds, representing the savings of the community and its chief bulwark in times of distress and these securities are seriously impaired by the depressed financial conditon of the railroads."

RAIL EARNINGS FOR FEBRUARY SHOW PAY CUT

February results of railroads reflect the favorable effects of the 10 per cent wage cut the statements of the carriers show. The first 12 roads to report for February show a moderate gain in net operating revenue over January. Aggregate of 12 roads for February was $4,695,000, compared with $3,216,000 in January and $5,688,000 in February, 1931.

Preliminary estimates indicate that net operating revenue of the Burlington in February was 33 per cent ahead of the preceding month. Net operating income for the month is placed around $880,000, against $635,006 in January and $1,816,326 in February last year.

Southern Pacific reported a February operating deficit of $402,557, against an operating profit of $411,823 in the comparable 1931 period.

The Soo line had a deficit for the month of $432,218, against a deficit of $117,671 in the second month of 1930. Lehigh Valley reported February operating profit of $295,591 against $358,196 last year.

I. C. C. SANCTIONS N. Y. CENTRAL LOAN OF $4,399,000

Washington, D. C., March 24.—(AP)—The New York Central railroad today was authorized by the interstate commerce commission to borrow $4,399,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The New York Central originally applied to the commission for permission to borrow $7,000,000. Later, however, the application was revised and the amount requested was lowered to $4,399,000.

The loan, which is to run three years, is to be used to complete the west side improvement in the city of New York, a project started in 1929. The money would be paid to the company in 18 installments, the first of which would be $800,000, payable immediately. For the next two months the company would get $100,000 a month, in the fourth month $400,000, and the fifth $399,000. For the next 13 months it would receive $200,000 a month.

WHEAT PRICES ERRATIC HERE; LIVERPOOL UP

Chicago Close ¼c Higher to ⅛c Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat market made a poor response to a sharp upturn in Liverpool yesterday. That generally was a disappointment to the traders. Prices held within a range of 1¼@1½c, advancing early only to weaken later. Then there was a rally toward the last with the finish ¼c higher to ⅛c lower.

On the bulges there was wheat for sale by operators and commission houses who were active buyers on Wednesday, while shorts took advantage of the breaks to cover. There was fairly general evening up toward the last for the practically world-wide holiday today.

Speculative interest in the wheat market failed to broaden as the trade expected which had considerable influence on sentiment as did weakness in stocks. March closed at 51½c, May 54@54¼c, old July 55⅞@56c and old September 58¼c.

The refusal of the wheat market to hold advances was in the face of a marked improvement in the export demand with the seaboard claiming 250,000 bu or more hard winter taken by foreigners and estimates on Manitobas ranged from 750,000 to 1,500,000 bu. The heavy purchases were registered as surprising in view of the Easter holidays abroad. Liverpool will be closed until Tuesday and Buenos Aires and European continental markets until Monday.

Liverpool Wheat Higher.

As was expected there was a marked change in sentiment in Liverpool overnight and general buying of wheat futures was reported in that market, more assuring news as to the farm board's policy having considerable influence. The close was 2¾@2¼c per bu higher with the May at 55⅜c or 1⅞c over Chicago, gaining rather sharply on the local market. Winnipeg fluctuated erratically within a fair range and closed unchanged to ¾c higher with May at 60⅜c in Canadian funds. Buenos Aires had a holiday.

No reason was assigned for the heavy purchases of North American wheat by Europe, although it was presumed the prospects for decidedly limited world's shipments had some effect. Argentine and Australia cleared 7,322,000 bu for the week compared with 11,351,000 bu the previous week, and 8,896,000 bu last year. The Black sea put afloat 376,000 bu against 336,000 bu the previous week and 104,000 bu last year.

Little attention was paid during the day to crop comments. The Nebraska mid-month report made the condition less than state 80 against 83 a month ago and 95 last year and around 12.5 per cent of the 3,042,000 acres seeded last fall are expected to be abandoned. Numerous complaints regarding the outlook are coming from parts of Kansas and are no longer confined to the western section of that state. Official reports generally indicate there is a prospect the recent freeze did more or less damage over a considerable area but the disposition is to wait for growing weather before trying to make estimates.

Corn Futures Firm.

While the corn market was relatively inactive there was no material pressure, and the close was ⅛@¾c higher. May finished at 36⅜@36⅛c, July 39⅜@39⅛c and September 41c. Continued light receipts of cash grain with an advance of ½c in the basis in the sample market had a little effect on sentiment, but the greater part of the strength was regarded as having been derived from short covering.

Oats were relatively firm, partly due to a better shipping demand with sales of 50,000 bu. Futures held within narrow limits but closed ¼c higher with May at 23¼c, July 23⅞c and September 24⅝c.

Cash interests and exporters were on the buying side of rye both here and at Winnipeg, presumably a reflection of sales abroad. The market showed a firm undertone throughout the day and closed ⅛@½c higher with May 44½c and July 46⅜c. The seaboard estimated around 350,000 bu had been sold for export in all positions, but the quantity could not be confirmed.

BUTTER FUTURES WEAKEN

Butter futures sold off sharply on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, although better support at the close brought prices back somewhat. March and November closed ⅝c lower, while April was unchanged. Egg futures were unchanged to ⅜c lower. Production reports brought selling into butter early, the centralizer's report showing an increase of 20 per cent in the make over the previous week. Storage figures, however, were fairly good, the four markets showing 66,000 lbs more out than last year. Egg reports again were fairly good, receipts and street stocks being sharply less than last year and the four markets reporting an increase of 39,000 cases in the shortage. However, uncertainty continues to dominate the trading. Sales: Butter, 95 cars; eggs, 23 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 1 car; potatoes, 1 car Idaho Russets. Prices follow:

BREAK IN LARD PRICES

Lard was sold by packers who were said to be hedging and by liquidators and bought sparingly by the trade in general. At the close prices on futures were 7½@10c lower. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower. Exports were 685,910 lbs. Bellies were offered more freely and had poor support, with the close on futures 10@17½c lower. Cash trade was moderate, with fresh pork loins 10@13c. Cash lard was 4.64c; loose lard, 4.02c; leaf, 3.87c; short ribs and bellies, 5.37½c. Hogs were lower, with heavier arrivals than a week ago and less than last year. Prices follow:

LOANS.

Personal, Property, and Salary.

Commonwealth Customers—Pay LESS-for-LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
